

Norwalk-La Mirada teachers chosen to serve as mentors

NORWALK -- Two Norwalk-La Mirada Unified elementary teachers will dedicate two years to learn and become mentors to a select group of colleagues, helping them to refine their teaching methods as part of the Art of Teaching program through the Cotsen Foundation.

Escalona Elementary School fourth-grade teacher Aaron Brown will mentor seven colleagues, and Morrison Elementary School resource specialist Lisa Lambuth will mentor six, improving their instruction techniques in a specific area, such as reading or writing.

Brown and Lambuth will be released from their current positions to be mentors full time – the Cotsen Foundation will pay for the entire cost of salaries and benefits of the mentors for those two years.

“I’m excited to work extensively with my colleagues to help them move even further into their careers,” Brown said. “By helping the fellows fine tune their teaching and become even greater teachers, they will in turn strengthen the students’ learning in the classroom.”

The following teachers will participate as Cotsen fellows:

- Escalona Elementary: Mari Brown, Ron Della Valle, Renee Ivy, Michelle Lee, Jennifer Liivoja, Lisa Moreno and Nancy Odell.

- Morrison Elementary: Renee Caloca, Erik Hartl, Ardell Hucko, Laura Iovino, Lori Knight and Gary Roels.

The mentors will spend two to three hours a week with teachers in their classrooms and in individual planning and feedback sessions, as well as organizing monthly inquiry group meetings. Twice a year, fellows will have their lessons videotaped and reviewed. Mentors and fellows will occasionally travel to other schools and conferences together to observe and learn more on how to perfect their teaching methods.

“This is an opportunity for our best educators to collaborate and help each other reach a higher level in their teaching,” NLMUSD Superintendent Dr. Hasmik Danielian said. “The development our teachers will gain from the Cotsen Foundation’s program will translate directly to our students’ success in the classroom.”

On June 4, Brown, Lambuth and the Cotsen fellows will attend an orientation session. In August, Brown and Lambuth will receive mentor training. The program is scheduled to begin in fall 2016.

“Our teachers are determined to be the best in their profession, and The Art of Teaching provides them with the ability to achieve that goal,” NLMUSD Board President Karen Morrison said. “Congratulations to our Cotsen mentors and fellows as they grow stronger in their profession.”

Norwalk gears up for Relay for Life

NORWALK – Cancer survivors, caregivers, volunteers and residents will unite for the annual American Cancer Society Relay for Life in Norwalk, taking place June 25-26 on the Cerritos College utility field.

Relay for Life is a national fundraiser in which participants walk around a track for 24 hours.

Dollars raised will help the American Cancer Society, which funds cancer research and provides services to people with cancer.

The Relay begins June 25 at 9 a.m. with an opening ceremony and celebratory cancer survivors lap. A luminaria ceremony will take place at 9 p.m., where candles are lit in honor and memory of locals who have battled cancer.

To learn more about the Relay for Life in Norwalk, or to sign up as a team member, search “Relay for Life Norwalk.”

Hahn and Napolitano make final pitch to the voters in Long Beach candidates’ forum

LONG BEACH – The two top candidates vying to replace Don Knabe on the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors agreed the county must do a better job of supporting the region’s most vulnerable communities during a Tuesday night forum in Long Beach.

“L.A. County is a safety net – and it’s our job to make sure people don’t fall through the cracks,” said Rep. Janice Hahn, (D-San Pedro).

The congresswoman – and former L.A. city council member – is running against Steve Napolitano, a former mayor of Manhattan Beach and Knabe’s senior deputy since 2005.

First elected in 1996, Knabe is being termed out of his Fourth District seat this fall.

“You deserve a voice and I want to be that voice,” Napolitano said before a sanctuary of 400 people at First Congregational Church of Long Beach.

During the candidates’ forum, hosted by the Coalition for a Just L.A., nearly a dozen community organizations and advocacy groups presented Hahn and Napolitano with a broad range of chronic issues facing the Fourth District.

Responding to questions, the two candidates differed less in ideology and most in style. While Hahn framed herself as a heartfelt visionary with national experience, Napolitano portrayed himself as a knowledgeable problem solver with local experience.

Both agreed in the need for expanded affordable housing and increased revenue to pay for such projects.

Last October, the county moved to create a new affordable housing fund intended to set aside $100 million by 2021.

“We need to put that money in a lock box like we do in Congress so we don’t even talk about using it for anything else,” Hahn said.

Napolitano, however, said the county can’t rely on just money alone, but must incentivize housing developers to incorporate low-income and senior housing into new developments.

Each candidate committed to safeguarding benefits for undocumented immigrants by increasing access to health care and protecting residents from deportations that separate families.

Hahn also promised to use her experience in Washington D.C. to jumpstart the county’s early childhood education program by acquiring available federal funding.

She affirmed support for the county’s efforts to seek a special tax on people earning more than $1 million per year. The funds would go towards homeless services, namely transitional housing.

Napolitano does not oppose the tax, but maintained it isn’t enough to tackle the problem comprehensively.

“The ‘Millionaires’ Tax’ only brings in $250 million and we need $500 million,” he said.

Taxing things like marijuana sales could help raise more money for this housing, Napolitano said.

Both candidates advocated for new environmental policies to address air pollution.

“We don’t have to choose between clear air and jobs – we can have them both,” said Hahn, who suggested third-party oversight of emission levels at the ports of Long Beach and L.A.

Conversely, Napolitano added the need for a broader policy that looks into clean truck lanes on freeways that would encourage eco-friendly trucks.

The primary election between Hahn, Napolitano, and Whittier Union High School District board member Ralph Pacheco – who didn’t raise enough fundraising dollars to participate in Tuesday’s forum – takes place June 7.

If no candidate receives more than 50 percent of the vote, the two top finishers will face-off in November.

The winner will represent nearly two million people in the county’s Fourth District, which stretches from the South Bay, down to Long Beach, and up through the Gateway cities to Diamond Bar.

Friné Medrano kicks off Downey city council bid

By Alex Dominguez
Contributor

DOWNEY – Downey City Council hopeful Friné Medrano officially started her campaign on Friday with a kickoff fundraiser held at the historic Rives Mansion.

Medrano is running to fill the council’s District 3 seat, where Councilmember Roger Brossmer currently sits. The position will be vacated later this year due to Brossmer’s term officially being up.

According to Medrano and her team, around 100 people attended Friday’s kickoff based off of registration. Some of these included representatives from Downey AYSO, the Historical Society of Downey, colleagues and friends from Medrano’s network, and Medrano’s own family.

State Senator Tony Mendoza was also present to say a few words and pledge his support for Medrano.

“I am so excited that Friné decided to run. I am so excited because Downey needs that experience, that commitment, that home-grown commitment that she brings,” said Mendoza.

Improved representation was also one of Mendoza’s selling points during his speech.

“I looked at the population makeup of this city; 70 percent of this city is Latino. I’m just floored by that, I’m thinking ‘wow that’s awesome,’” said Mendoza.

“And yet I look at the representation of the district, of the city; yes it’s a little bit diverse, but I do think it’s been seven or eight years now since they’ve actually had a woman on the council period.

“I’m thinking women bring a different perspective, Latina’s bring a different perspective, and I do think that Friné, not only – not because she’s a Latina - but she has the experience, she has the education, she has a relationship to make sure that Downey gets their fair share in any capacity whether it be local, state, or federal.”

Medrano also spoke briefly about some of her ideas, and also encouraging those in attendance to support and donate to her campaign and to spread the word.

“I think Downey could do better. I think my vision is 20/30,” said Medrano. “And so I definitely

Cerritos College student named one of nation’s top scholars

NORWALK – Alejandra Carranza, a Cerritos College honors student, was named one of the nation’s top scholars by the Jack Kent Cooke Foundation Undergraduate Transfer Scholarship Program.

Alejandra, of Huntington Park, was among 75 students chosen from a competitive nationwide pool. The scholarship – one of the most competitive undergraduate transfer scholarships in the nation – will provide Alejandra with up to $40,000 per year to complete a bachelor’s degree.

Alejandra discovered her interest in research last summer when she participated in the Bridges to Baccalaureate program at California State University, Long Beach, in which she investigated the effect of lead on the development of Drosophila melanogaster (fruit flies) and presented her research results at several national undergraduate research conferences.

She plans to continue her undergraduate research at UCLA in neuroscience, and further her study to complete an MD/Ph.D. program to combine her passion for research and desire to work with patients as a physician or surgeon in the future.

“I have seen first-hand the dire need in the Hispanic community for physicians who are culturally sensitive and dedicated to serving underinsured and marginalized communities with the same standard of care provided elsewhere,” said Alejandra. “I want to set a positive example for my two-year-old daughter, Audrey, to follow in the future as well as other women pursuing careers in STEM or medicine.”

The Cooke Foundation Undergraduate Transfer Scholarship is the largest private scholarship in the nation for students transferring from two-year community colleges to four-year institutions that award bachelor’s degrees.

Relay for Life raises $80k for cancer cure

DOWNEY – The community of Downey came together for another successful Relay for Life on May 21-22, which consisted of about 900 participants raising money to find the cure for cancer.

The theme, May the Cure Be With You, was enjoyed by everyone. From all the different booths and the walk itself, the whole event had such an incredible vibe. There were even themed laps like the YMCA Dance, Crazy Hat Dance, Chicken Dance, Couples Dance, Tutu Lap, and the Light Saber Lap.

People who have never met before from all over Downey and some surrounding cities came together for this amazing event and to share their stories.

Some volunteers like Abby Fernandez, Abrianna Amezcua and Julie Galicia, of Downey High School, had never volunteered at this event before but enjoyed meeting new people and hearing different stories.

“The fact that my family has been impacted by cancer has inspired me to volunteer here today,” said Julie.

Other volunteers such as Brittney Najera of Warren High School has volunteered at this event in the past. “Interacting with kids and seeing the smiles on their faces is my favorite part about volunteering at this event,” she said.

Cancer survivor and Relay participant Brigette Williams enjoyed interacting with everyone. In her words, “Relay for Life to me, means making people aware that the cure for cancer is attainable but everybody needs to contribute to the cause to find the cure.”

The highlight of the event was the Luminaria Ceremony, where participants gathered by the stage to honor those who passed away from cancer, those who are currently battling cancer, and those who have survived cancer.

This beautiful ceremony was truly an amazing sight to see, where the only light visible came from the presentation and the glow sticks that were handed out to everyone to represent the impact that cancer has had.

Just looking around at all the people who attended Relay for Life and realizing that they are all here for the same reason was the most comforting thing at this event.

Overall, Relay for Life has fundraised a total of $79,000 by the end of the event and is still accepting donations. Thanks to all the participants, volunteers, and the organizers, this event was truly a successful one!

PIH Health, Keck Medicine of USC announce partnership to expand services in LA County

LOS ANGELES – Keck Medicine of the University of Southern California (USC) and PIH Health have signed a letter of intent to jointly develop and operate service lines to enhance access and quality healthcare for the residents of eastern Los Angeles County. This represents a natural evolution in the longstanding relationship between Keck Medicine of USC and PIH Health. For many years, Keck Medicine of USC has served as a primary quaternary referral center for PIH Health.

“Affiliating with one of the country’s preeminent academic health systems means better care for our community,” said James R. West, PIH Health president and Chief Executive Officer. “PIH Health is the health and wellness partner for our community and we are striving to expand our capabilities and services to provide the best care possible for those we serve. This affiliation provides a unique opportunity to deliver comprehensive medical and surgical services and provide timely and convenient access to some of the best physicians in our region. We look forward to a long and beneficial partnership with Keck Medicine of USC.”

“We are proud to join with PIH Health, the foremost healthcare provider in eastern Los Angeles County,” explained Thomas E. Jackiewicz, senior vice president and CEO of Keck Medicine of USC. “Our affiliation allows patients to have seamless access to leading-edge treatments that only a university-based medical enterprise such as Keck Medicine of USC provides – either onsite at our co-branded facilities in Whittier and Downey – or at our main health sciences campus in Los Angeles when high acuity care is required.”

“This affiliation provides a myriad of educational opportunities between the Keck School of Medicine of USC and PIH Health, with access to clinical trials, academic affiliation for the PIH Health residency programs, and teaching and training opportunities for USC residents and fellows,” said Keck School of Medicine of USC Interim Dean Rohit Varma, MD, MPH.

Bellflower to recognize kindergartners for biliteracy

LAKEWOOD – Nearly 50 kindergarten students in Bellflower Unified’s dual-language immersion program will receive certificates recognizing their progress toward literacy in Spanish and English during a special ceremony with their families at 6 p.m. Monday, June 6 at the Intensive Learning Center, 4718 Michelson St., Lakewood.

The Pathway to Biliteracy Awards were created this year to encourage students to pursue the California Seal of Biliteracy, which is added to the diplomas of graduating seniors who demonstrate proficiency in English and a second language.

“Skill with a second language provides a host of educational benefits to students, including stronger performance on state tests,” Superintendent Dr. Brian Jacobs said. “But these skills also go well beyond the academic – they foster understanding of different cultures, help students succeed in our community and give them an advantage in their future careers in our evolving, global economy.”

In 2012, California became the first state in the nation to award a state Seal of Biliteracy to graduating seniors who demonstrated proficiency in English and a second language. Today, 13 states offer the seal and, at Bellflower Unified, 76 seniors will be recognized with the seal on their diplomas.

To receive the pathway prize, the program’s 48 kindergarteners will need to show they can count, respond to literature and perform other academic tasks in English and Spanish. Those who succeed will receive a ribbon and a certificate.

Along with the awards program, Bellflower Unified is announcing the addition of its first dual-language immersion preschool program. The preschool will be open in fall 2016-17 to up to 20 students at the Intensive Learning Center. Participation in the preschool will not be required for students who wish to enroll in the regular immersion program, which adds grade three in 2016-17.

Commentary: Whatever you do, please vote

By Raul Samaniego
Contributor

NORWALK – Okay. It’s here. Finally, after several years of discussion, debates and finger pointing, the California 2016 primary election arrives Tuesday, June 7 at a polling place near you.

In 2008, I was a trainer with the San Diego County Registrar of Voters. After four weeks of training, I was unleashed to help the poll workers in the most historical election ever.

And it was historic as the country elected the first African American as President of the United States.

As a volunteer election clerk in Chula Vista also, I was impressed with the turnout in that significant time.

The Iraq War was at its peak, the Great Recession was rearing its head, and many Americans were without affordable healthcare.

Regardless of what side of the political spectrum you hang your hat, all I cared back then was that people vote. They did. And in droves.

There were young, old, people of different backgrounds, sick and terminal. But they all wanted to vote.

Today, I find myself preparing once again for a historic election year. This time, I have volunteered to be the precinct inspector near my neighborhood in, where else, South Norwalk.

There is no council member being selected this go around. However, we do have to vote on many offices that will affect the local political scene.

With the seat held by Council Member Rodarte scheduled to be vacated at the end of the month, I wonder what the sitting council members will do.

Will they appoint their own hand-picked replacement? Will they opt for a Special Election within 60 days? Who knows?

‘42nd Street’ opens at Pantages Theatre

HOLLYWOOD – The musical comedy classic “42nd Street” opened at the Pantages Theatre this week for a three-week run.

With book by Michael Stewart and Mark Bramble, “42nd Street” tells the story of a starry-eyed young dancer named Peggy Sawyer who leaves her Allentown home and comes to New York to audition for the new Broadway musical “Pretty Lady.”

When the leading lady breaks her ankle, Peggy takes over and becomes a star.

The national tour opened at the Pantages on Tuesday and runs until June 19. Tickets start at $29 and can be purchased online at hollywoodpantages.com or by calling (800) 982-2787.

I truly believe that voting is a right we must all do our best to use.

Those individuals declining to vote in a show of protest, lack of interest or simple laziness, well, that is your option. Me, I like to be right in the middle of the process.

As a precinct inspector, I am sworn to defend the constitutional right of every registered voter to cast their ballot at the polls.

Yes, there is more to it than that, but by swearing to do just that, everyone eligible will be allowed to cast their vote, either regularly or via provisional ballot. I swear.

Granted, this election should produce a better turnout than the single digit response seen in some precincts two years ago. I expect many will show up Tuesday to show their support for their favorite candidates at the local, state and national levels.

But please, don’t make a liar out of me. See you at the polls.

To find your polling place, visit www.lavote.net.
