Norwalk students get unexpected thank you from Uganda

NORWALK – For past the five years Dean Gray, an American government teacher at Norwalk High School, has organized a student-led program known as Giving Charity to Charities.

The program calls for 12th-grade students in social studies classes to select a local, national or international charity organization to receive the proceeds from campus fundraising drives held by the students. The selections are based on the personal interests or connections the students have to issues or causes. Since 2013, the program has raised a total of $75,000 that have gone to 54 different charities.

In addition to an annual winter student assembly on campus where the classes present their donations of $1,000 to charity group representatives, there are usually also acknowledgement letters or phone calls received by the school from each of the charity groups. But this year, there was a special sort of thank you that was offered by Drop in the Bucket, which received a $1,000 donation from the students.

Drop in the Bucket, a Los Angeles-based organization that provides drinking water and sanitation systems to schools in African countries, passed along some photos of young students in Uganda expressing their gratitude. The shots showed the African youths with warm smiles holding a sign that said: “Thank You Norwalk High School.”

Gray was happy but not entirely surprised to see the kind messages. “It’s another success story of our kids making a difference in people’s lives. Fresh water. How awesome is that?” he said.

Bailey Martinez, 18, is the student who did the research to find a water-related charity to propose to classmates as a donation recipient. He found out that unlike some groups that just passed along funds to other organizations that perform the work, Drop in the Bucket was different.

The nonprofit was directly involved with staff on-ground in the countries doing the labor to plan and develop the systems.

“That’s was one I really liked. I felt that they did the most and they’re based here in L.A. and thought that was convenient,” Martinez said. “I think clean water is something we take for granted and it’s not something everyone has.”

Over a three-week period,

Martinez along with more than 300 other seniors hawked chewy energy bars on campus to fellow students and then also sold them off campus. All of the teams did fundraising in the same way for the same amount of time.

A total of $13,000 was raised for 13 charities. An additional charity, Race to Erase Multiple Sclerosis, received $1,000 donated from a local golf tournament organized by teachers and staff.

“Every year it’s unique,” said Gray about the program. “The kids find new charities and new ways to help people. It’s very personal for them. And 54 total charities are impressive. It’s amazing to be a part of it.”

Nineteen students representing the teams, along with teachers involved in the program, are scheduled to be recognized at the Feb. 26 meeting of the Norwalk-La Mirada Unified School District Board of Education.

Norma Amezcua chosen to fill vacant school board seat

► The Norwalk resident will fulfill the term of Sean Reagan, who resigned last month.

The seat is up for re-election in November.

By Raul Samaniego Contributor

NORWALK – By a 6-0 vote, the Norwalk-La Mirada Unified School District board of education appointed Norwalk resident Norma Amezcua to fill the board seat left vacant by the resignation of Sean Reagan.

Amezcua is scheduled to be sworn in May 29 in the board chambers where she was selected from four finalists including David Randall Fox, Christopher L. Staples and Jorge Tirade.

Amezcua and Tirado were also candidates in last year’s selection process to replace Margarita Rios after she resigned and won a seat on the Norwalk City Council.

Darrell Adams, long time school board member, did take the time to mention that no representation from the Norwalk council were present at the evening’s proceedings.

All candidates seemed genuinely nervous but Amezcua kept her answers specific and on target.

All four candidates were praised for their qualifications and efforts in the selection process in one form or another from all six board members as they cast their votes in the final choice between Amezcua and who was making his way to his seat.

With Ayala in place, the voting continued and both Perez and Ayala affirmed the agreement to make Athens Services Norwalk’s new solid waste hauler.

The agreement with Athens calls for the initial reduction in residential rates from $20.79 to $16.75 and senior rates from $9.79 to $4.19 a month. The rates will remain in place until at least Sept. 1, 2020.

Additional changes include the increase to 52 times a year when residents can call for a bulky item pickup; a Norwalk-based office location for bill payment; and new trash receptacles.

The contract also calls for all-new garbage trucks at the start of service to be powered by natural gas.

Amezcua currently is the assistant director of early care and education programs for the Mexican American Opportunity Foundation (MAOF). She is also a member of Norwalk’s Social Service Commission.

She will not have much time for rest as her board seat is up for election in November. Amezcua said she plans on running.

According to her LinkedIn profile, Amezcua earned a bachelor’s degree from Pacific Oaks College in Human Development and a Master of Education Degree in Human Development, Family Studies and Related Services from Cal State Long Beach.

Athens trash contract finalized

NORWALK – The Norwalk City Council finalized a solid waste agreement with Athens Services during a special meeting Tuesday in the council chambers.

The agreement was ratified 4-1 with Councilman Leonard Shryock continuing his disapproval of the contract with his solo “no” vote.

For a few moments, there was apprehension in the room when Mayor Jennifer Perez paused with the vote 2-1 in favor of accepting the staff recommendation to approve.

Councilman Tony Ayala was not present for the staff report given once again by administrative services manager Adriana Figueroa and the pause in the mayor’s voice seemed to waver on something other than a “yes” vote before Perez stated she wanted to wait for Ayala

No date was given for the event, but a plan must be in place by June 8, 2018.

Two Whittier men killed in crash

SANTA FE SPRINGS – Two Whittier men were killed in a traffic collision in unincorporated Los Angeles County during the early morning hours of Wednesday, May 2.

The collision occurred when a 2014 Ford Fusion, which was being driven eastbound on Slauson Avenue near Albutis Avenue crossed into opposing lanes of traffic and collided head-on into two other vehicles that were headed westbound on Slauson.

Both the driver and passenger of the Ford Fusion were killed as a result of the collision. The drivers of the other two vehicles received minor injuries.

According to witnesses, the driver of the Ford Fusion may have been racing another vehicle prior to this collision, and the Ford was going in excess of the posted speed limit of 40 MPH before the driver lost control.

The other vehicle possibly involved in the race was described as a mid-1990's to early 2000's BMW 3-series sedan, grey in color. The driver of the BMW was described as a Caucasian male in his 20's, who stopped briefly at the scene and got out of his car. This unidentified driver left the scene prior to the arrival of any first responders.

Names of the deceased are being withheld pending notification of next of kin.

I was living in New Jersey. When I was 14 years old, I went roller skating on the hill behind my house. I fell and hurt my knee. I took the skates off and went in my house.

Mama was in the kitchen. She said, "Sit down and I will give you a cookie. You will feel better."

I modeled in a dress shop on Saturdays. The girls I went to high school with went to Vassar College. Their mothers came to buy them clothes. I modeled sweaters and skirts. I would tell them the sweaters came in pink, blue, and yellow. They would buy them all. I got a commission.

The owner of the shop was my girlfriend's aunt. Mrs. Stein gave me money to go to New York to the Barbizon School for modeling. You had to be 5'8" or taller. I was 5'4".

I was disappointed. Mara said, "Be a model in the dress shops. You get commissions." My daughter Nancy is 5'2". She was a Wendy Wold model.

Then I went to work as a secretary for engineers at American Can Company. The engineers taught me to read blueprints and plan jobs. They just returned from the army and went to school under the GI Bill. The engineers collected $200 so I could go to college.

The next day I went to the college. They said they would not accept women in 1946. Mama said, "Be a secretary."

I was sweeping the kitchen floor when my girlfriend Sylvia came in. I swept the dust behind the pantry door.

Mama said, "Your boyfriend will leave you behind the door."

When I met Jack, he told Mama that he did not cook. He lived with his married sister.

Mama said, "How will he take care of you if he can't cook?" Well, he bought TV dinners and chow mein – enough for two days.

Mama listened to the soap operas on the radio. The only thing I remember was Rinso White, Rinso Blue. One day she dialed a different station and heard the song "Que sera, sera, what will be, will be."

Then Mama said, "What will be, will be."

Sadly, Mama is gone. The song lingers on. "Que sera, sera, what will be, will be."

What John McCain taught us about character

By Mark Shields

With news that Sen. John McCain’s last book, “The Restless Wave” — the seventh he has written with his friend and former speechwriter Mark Salter — is about to come out, I thought of the man I covered and traveled with and grew to both like and respect enormously.

On election night 1986, when he won the Arizona U.S. Senate seat long held by Barry Goldwater — the 1964 Republican presidential nominee — the two men met for a private visit. Sen. Goldwater, McCain recalled, got a little nostalgic: “You know, John, if I had beaten Lyndon Johnson in ‘64, you wouldn’t have spent all those years in a North Vietnamese prison camp.” McCain, referring to Goldwater’s hawkish support for widening that conflict, responded: “You’re right, Barry. It would have been a Chinese prison camp.”

Later, after his own White House runs had ended in defeat, McCain used his humor to console his disheartened supporters by reminding them that a number of his home-state leaders had also run, all unsuccessfully, for the nation’s highest office. After Goldwater, there had been Rep. Mo Udall, who in 1976 finished second to Jimmy Carter for the Democratic nomination, and Gov. Bruce Babbitt, who in 1988 won rave editorial reviews for his thoughtful candor but finished way behind Michael Dukakis. “Arizona,” McCain liked to say, “may be the only state in the country where mothers don’t tell their children they can grow up to be president.”

A couple of years ago, when the Gallup Poll found that public confidence in the U.S. Congress had fallen to a record low of 11 percent, McCain cracked that a favorable rating of 11 percent meant that approval of members of Congress was “down to paid staffers and blood relatives.” When a later Gallup Poll found that confidence in Congress had slipped to just 9 percent, he reported receiving a blunt call from his mother, Roberta, now 106 years old: “I can tell you that we in Congress are now down to paid staffers.”

But McCain was much more than a happy warrior. The 2000 campaign for the GOP nomination, when party leadership and all the big money had lined up behind front-runner George W. Bush, McCain held 114 town meetings in New Hampshire, where with candor and humor he answered every question, daring to explain that the Senate would not pass a so-called patients’ bill of rights “as long the insurance companies control (the Republican Party) and the trial lawyers control the Democratic Party.”

He had the courage to oppose his own party’s 2001 tax cuts, arguing presciently that they would completely sabotage the nation’s recently balanced federal budgets achieved by the previous Democratic president at real political risk. In the national debate over the use of torture on prisoners, McCain again took on his own party and its armchair commandos, many of whom somehow were missing in grad school or the doctor’s office when their own draft calls to serve in Vietnam arrived. (See Cheney, Dick.) McCain gave the debate moral clarity: “This question isn’t about our enemies. It’s about us. It’s about who we were, who we are and who we aspire to be.”

To see the men who for years had endured with the Arizonan the unspeakable brutality at the hands of their North Vietnamese captors come to New Hampshire to work for McCain — to knock on doors and testify to voters as character witnesses about the courage and patriotism of their fellow POW — made this cynical reporter stop and admire.

John McCain is no plaster saint. I have seen firsthand and experienced the sting of his temper and his unforgiving cold shoulder. As of today, he stands as the last American veteran to be nominated for president who could tell us convincingly that “only a fool or a fraud sentimentalizes the cruel and merciless reality of war.” John McCain teaches us once again that character truly is destiny.

How the dollar store saved the United States

By Marc Dion

In the city where I live, we have 88,000 people, 17 dollar stores and a Walmart.

This is why North Korea backed down.

North Korea, for those of you who belong to the tea party, is cuddled up right next to China.

Ad Feedback

The maniac running North Korea doesn’t give a damn about the maniac running the United States of America.

He does, however, give a good damn about China, a large semi-communist country capable of grinding North Korea into a fine powder without the use of nuclear weapons.

As the world’s leading consumer of cheaply made Chinese junk, and fentanyl, the United States is extremely important to the Chinese. Their junk flows into our country, and our money and jobs flow into their country. It’s a damn sweet deal if you’re China. Of course, we’re nearly out of money, but for now, the Chinese are still accepting our I.O.U.’s. If they ever stop accepting them, you, your husband and your kids will be living in a cave the next day.

China is not about to let their hayseed next-door neighbor start a nuclear war that’s going to threaten the dollar stores and the Walmarts, both of which are really just places that bale money and ship it to China.

If a real war starts, some of the dollar stores are going to be injured. The cheap plastic toys and the off-brand hair care products and the badly made lawn furniture is going to start piling up on factory loading docks all over China, and there will be a pause in the so-far-60-year process of bankrupting America.

No. Far better to make sure the dollar stores and the Walmarts stay open. Far better to make sure the money keeps coming. Far better to make sure the Chinese fentanyl keeps selling for good money everywhere they shoot heroin, which is everywhere in America.

Trump’s a bargain for China. He’s not that bright, he’s full of ego, and he and his family have done their utmost to ship money and American jobs to China.

The Chinese, I believe, leaned all over North Korea until North Korea folded and agreed to make it look as though they were afraid of the crooked contractor who is the American president.

Trump will never figure out what happened. His supporters, some of whom think Jesus rode a dinosaur to school, will never figure it out.

Trump will probably get the Nobel Peace Prize. President Obama got the Nobel Prize for nothing, too. Used to be a big thing, that Nobel Prize. Lately, it’s cheaper than a vaping set-up made in China.

Trump’ll take it, though. Stormy Daniels, the cover of Time magazine, Trump’ll take anything. He’s the owner of a car dealership who’s spent his career selling high-mileage cars to poor folks after tax refund time, and repossessing them by August. He gets chamber of commerce “man of the year”; him and his cheap-looking wife show up at the banquet; and he takes the award. Why not?

Did Trump bring us to the brink of nuclear war? Did the very rumor of his large, firm testicular pride cause the North Koreans to yell “Aaiiiee!” and scuttle back into their Communist hidey-holes?

Who knows? Who cares? That’s not the point.

The dollar stores, they are saved! Go buy some plastic flowers today. They’re only a buck. Everything is only a buck. Including America.

Marc Dion’s latest book, “The Land of Trumpin’”, is a collection of his columns from before, during and after the last presidential election,

Good riddance to the flawed Iran deal

By Austin Bay

The Trump Administration deserves thanks and congratulations for terminating American participation in the toothless Joint Comprehensive Plan Of Action, the ostentatiously official name of the Obama Administration’s “nuclear weapons deal” with Iran’s clerical dictatorship.

For numerous reasons, President Trump made the decision to exit the flimsy pact.

“We’re out of the deal,” Trump National Security Adviser John Bolton announced. “We’re out of the deal.”

In other words, there will be no re-negotiation. The Trump Administration didn’t say when it would reimpose economic and political sanctions, other than indicate there would be a 180-day “wind-down period.” Iran’s central bank may be sanctioned within the next week. Sanctioning the banks hinders Iranian oil transactions.

Whatever the timeline, the U.S. threat to reimpose political and economic sanctions on the robed dictators and their criminal regime is meaningful. Even if China, Russia and European nations continue to observe the JCPOA, America is the 800-pound gorilla in the global economy. With the pugnacious Trump in charge, the ayatollahs know their pocketbook will shrink.

A shrinking ayatollah bank account immediately makes the world a safer place. It’s especially a safer place for American allies like Saudi Arabia, the UAE and Israel who are already engaged in a slow war for national survival with Iran.

Sure, for the next 10 days or so, snide European toffs and Washington Beltway Clerks will swear American withdrawal means doom and horror. Already, they are on mainstream television shows howling and tearing their stuffed shirts.

Ignore them. They’re blind to the doom and horror spawned by vicious Iranian overt and covert troublemaking that savages our planet on a daily basis. Yemen, Syria and Lebanon are three of the bloodiest examples of Iran’s policy of geo-strategic mayhem.

The failure to penalize the Iranian regime’s covert and overt violent troublemaking and its organized criminal operations (yes, transnational crime, like smuggling narcotics and human beings) was the JCPOA’s most grievous flaw.

Unfortunately, the Obama Administration’s mis-deal had other flaws. The wicked nature of the Iranian regime may appear extrinsic to the mis-deal’s advocates, benighted actors like former Secretary of State John Kerry. Well, it isn’t. Failing to account for the regime’s corrupt nature is one of the stupid pact’s more serious flaws. Britain’s Neville Chamberlain learned that the hard way in 1938, when he made a deal with Adolf Hitler in Munich that supposedly guaranteed Western Europe “peace for our time.”

Check Tehran’s record since 1979. The ostensibly revolutionary sectarian regime founded by the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini cannot be trusted to tell the truth about its nuclear weapons quest, even when telling the truth would be in its best long-term interest.

Last week, Israel released an information trove that documented the regime’s failure to comply with a key JCPOA provision, which required Tehran to reveal in accurate detail the history and status of its nuclear weapons program. But the ayatollahs didn’t come clean. They temporarily mothballed part of their development program and then lied to the International Atomic Energy Agency and Washington.

So let’s return to Iran’s hideous behavior. “Violent meddling” and violent subversion are permanent policies of the Iranian regime. In 1984, the U.S. State Department put Iran on the U.S. list of state sponsors of terrorism for good reason; it was supporting terrorist operations directed at U.S. Arab allies in the Persian Gulf. Its own operatives were conducting terror attacks in Lebanon.

Iran is still on the list of states sponsoring terror. Since 1984, Tehran has been tied to subversion operations in Western Europe and terror attacks South America, North Africa and sub-Saharan Africa. The regime’s Shia Islamic radicals provided aid and support for al-Qaida’s militant Sunni terrorists.

In 2008, the Iranian regime was involved in at least 18 armed conflicts, and involved as an instigator or an escalator. The regime believed it benefited from bloody chaos.

In 2018, how many armed conflicts do the ayatollahs spark, stoke, spur and support? Somewhere between two-dozen and 30.

Negotiate with this regime? The Iranian people deserve better. America should be supporting Iranian dissidents.

Protect local jobs

Dear Editor:

When Downey City Councilmember Fernando Vasquez said he wants to attract jobs to the city, I thought he would also want to protect the good-paying ones that are already here.

My job and 60 others at the Kaiser Permanente warehouse in Downey are going to be eliminated. We need the Downey City Council to help, to do anything that says they support people like me whose jobs are going to be cut by Oct. 1.

When workers spoke during the April 24 council meeting, the members just sat there without saying anything and then moved on to the next thing like workers were never there.

Our community needs to protect strong jobs like ours. Now we need the Downey City Council to do something about it.

If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same Lender may hold more than one mortgage or Deed of Trust on the property.
