Norwalk's Summer Concert Series lineup revealed

NORWALK – Norwalk's Summer Concert Series at the Lawn will return this year, inviting the community to come out and enjoy several evenings of live entertainment.

Residents can bring their families, lawn chairs, blankets, and picnic baskets to the Civic Center Lawn, located at 12700 Norwalk Blvd., and be serenaded under the stars by several performing acts of various genres and styles.

The concerts are free, beginning Wednesdays at 7p.m.. Refreshments will be available for purchase at

The city is also looking for intermission acts to Singing acts, dance groups, entertainment acts, and other performances will be considered.

Extraordinary acts will be picked to perform during intermission for each concert. At the end of the Summer Concert series, one act will be chosen as the "winning" act for the series and will win a prize. For more information on performing, please call 929-5521 for further details.

You can find a list of each scheduled performance below.

June 13 Scot Bruce (Elvis Tribute)

Originally from the Pacific Northwest, where he was a radio personality and a drummer, Scot has lived in Los Angeles since 1990. While pursuing music and acting as a career (and having been a musician and big Elvis fan all of his life), he started doing a 1950's era Elvis show as a way to survive the

Because of his uncanny resemblance to the young "King" (and his ability to sing, strum a guitar, and swivel his hips), his live show has taken him across the U.S. and all over the world.

June 20 The Society Band (Top 40 Hits)

This collection of highly talented musicians will bring a collection of top songs that you know and

June 27 Mariachi Angeles De Pepe Martinez Jr.

For more than 30 years, Jose "Pepe" Martinez Jr. has lived on-stage inspired by the gift of music introduced to him as a young boy.

Pepe Jr. has been trained by the best, performed with the best, and now brings his experience, professionalism and leadership to his new group Mariachi Angeles.

July 11 Prizmatic (Katy Perry / Pink Tribute)

Prizmatic is a live-band tribute to the music of pop-phenom Katy Perry, delivering all the hits that have made her a global sensation.

The cast of Prizmatic features a group of topnotch musicians who have taken the best of Katy

Perry's chart-topping hits and turned up the energy to 11 to give every show the feel of a live concert spectacle. In addition to their infectious musical groove, Prizmatic delivers a spot-on recreation of Katy Perry's personality and outrageous over-the-top fashions that have made Katy's arena events one of the hottest tickets to get.

July 18 Knyght Rider (Flash Back 80's)

Knyght Rider is an 80's (and 90's) tribute band from Southern California.

Their diverse influences include now classicfavorites such as AC/DC, Aerosmith, the Backstreet Boys, Blink-182, Britney Spears, David Bowie, Eminem, Metallica, Michael Jackson, Twisted Sister, U2, The Who, and 2Pac, just to name a few.

July 25 The Hodads (70's Disco)

The Hodads are southern California's most versatile theme party band.

Combining high energy music, stylish outfits, celebrity impersonation and audience participation since 1989, the band has appeared in concert with Kool & The Gang, The Beach Boys, Bob Dylan, Brian Setzer, The Smothers Brothers, Jan & Dean, Tony Danza, The Surfaris, Jim Belushi, Steve Vai, Bob Saget, Louie Anderson, Jerry Lewis, Casey Kasem, Vince Gill, Trisha Yearwood, Lily Tomlin, and played in the movie, "The Replacement" with Eric Roberts and Ice T.

This concert is sponsored by the Los Angeles County Arts Commission.

August 1 L.A.vation (U2 Tribute)

Based in Los Angeles, L.A.vation derives its name from the hit song "Elevation", the third single released from U2's 2000 album, All That You Can't Leave Behind.

The band has faithfully crafted an amazingly accurate show, incorporating memorable stage elements from past U2 concerts with "spot-on" musical execution, all the while emphasizing the pride and passion of the four lads from Dublin.

August 8 Soto Band (Latin R&B)

SOTO, a Latin American musical powerhouse is a self-contained group, which includes family members and founders Bruce & Artie Soto.

Based out of Norwalk, the brothers started their own dance band and would perform at school talent shows, school dances, fundraisers, weddings, night clubs and eventually made it to concert tours in which they have worked with groups such as Earth, Wind & Fire, Patty La Belle, Dion Warwick, James Brown, Poncho Sanchez, Tito Puente, Teena Marie, Whitney Houston, and Marc Anthony, and can be seen with Ricky Martin on his "One on One" Asia MTV special as his back-up band.

This concert will also coincide with National Night Out, an annual event intended to bring communities across America together to take a stand against crime, drugs and disorder in their neighborhoods.

Murder suspect turns himself in NORWALK - A suspect in a fatal Norwalk stabbing earlier this month was arrested Tuesday, sheriff's officials announced.

Matthew Gonzales, 43, turned himself in at the Pico Rivera Sheriff's Station, authorities said.

Gonzales was named the prime suspect in a May 11 stabbing that occurred on the 14400 block of Pioneer Boulevard.

A week later, on May 18, Gonzales is accused of pointing a knife at someone near Leibacher Avenue and Hayford Street. He escaped before sheriff's deputies could arrest him.

Authorities described Gonzales as a transient whose primary method of transportation was a bicycle.

The long nightmare of the Dreamers

By Steve Chapman

A lot has happened in America since April 25, 2001 — the 9/11 attacks, two major wars, the Great Recession, the first black president, the iPhone, a Cubs World Series title and Donald Trump. That was the day the Dream Act, to protect young immigrants brought here illegally as children, was first introduced in Congress. Seventeen years later, they are still waiting for protection.

The fate of those immigrants, known as Dreamers, is stark evidence of the mind-numbing irrationality and dysfunction of our system of government. They did nothing wrong; they have contributed to American society; and they can be accommodated without harmful side effects.

The great majority of Americans reject this treatment. A January ABC News/Washington Post poll found that when asked if they supported a "program that allows undocumented immigrants to stay in the United States if they arrived here as a child, completed high school or military service and have not been convicted of a serious crime," a staggering 87 percent of Americans said yes.

Yet year after year, the simple, sensible, humane solution has remained on the shelf. President George W. Bush failed to get a comprehensive immigration reform bill with this included. President Barack Obama was also unsuccessful.

In 2012, Obama finally elected to shield many of these young people with an executive order called Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA). Some 800,000 immigrants who qualified got permits to stay here and work. But the program was of uncertain legality, and Donald Trump decided last year to end it.

DACA is now in the hands of the federal courts, some of which have blocked its termination. It is also in the hands of Congress, which could for letting the Dreamers stay, nothing has been enacted and nothing is Some grew up thinking they were citizens.

Granting them a path to citizenship is more than anti-immigration Republicans can tolerate. In closing down the program, Attorney General Jeff Sessions said DACA has "denied jobs to hundreds of thousands of Americans by allowing those same illegal aliens to take those jobs."

This is a hard argument to make at a time when the unemployment rate is 3.9 percent, the lowest since 2000. As economists universally agree, immigrants (documented or not) not only fill jobs but create them. Since Obama announced the program, the economy has added more than 12 million jobs.

Trump, whose understanding of the policy is close to nil, recently claimed that "caravans" of Central Americans marching through Mexico to cross the border were "trying to take advantage of DACA." But DACA applied only to youngsters who arrived by June 2007. Even the Dream Act would cover only people who came at least four years before its enactment.

Critics regard any accommodation as "amnesty," the term used for the legal status offered to some 3 million unauthorized foreigners in legislation signed by Ronald Reagan in 1986. Granting refuge to the dreamers, we are told, would stimulate unauthorized immigration by rewarding those who

This is wrong for two main reasons. The first is that the foreigners it helps didn't choose to break the law: They were brought by their parents. Many have no memory of or acquaintance with their native lands. Most approve the Dream Act in some form. But despite broad public sentiment come from Mexico or Central America, but some don't speak Spanish.

> To banish them to unfamiliar foreign countries would punish them for the transgressions of their parents. Those known to be dangerous — like the MS-13 "animals" Trump denounces — would not be eligible.

> The second fallacy is the notion that the Dream Act would be a magnet pulling in hordes of undocumented migrants. The potential beneficiaries have waited 17 years for a law offering them protection. If it were passed, the typical recipient would have to wait another 13 years to apply for citizenship.

> Even if such legislation were enacted into law, there can't be many foreigners who would bet their lives that another version will be adopted decades from now. Not to mention that the foreigners pondering that wager would know that in the best scenario, they would never gain legal status; only their children would. Some incentive.

> As it happens, though, there is hardly any chance Congress and the president will act to protect these innocents from the threat of bitter exile. Unable to muster wisdom and resolve, our policymakers will default to

Why the left won't call anyone 'animals'

By Steve Chapman

If you want to understand the moral sickness at the heart of leftism, read the first paragraph of the most recent column by Washington Post columnist F. J. Dionne:

"It's never right to call other human beings 'animals.' It's not something we should even have to debate. No matter how debased the behavior of a given individual or group, no matter how much legitimate anger that genuinely evil actions might inspire, dehumanizing others always leads us down a dangerous path."

Let's begin with the first sentence: "It's never right to call other human beings 'animals.'"

This is so self-evident to Dionne that he adds, "It's not something we should even have to debate."

Only someone who has never debated the issue could make such a claim. So allow me to debate the assertion.

My view is the antithesis of Dionne's. As I see it, it is not right to never call another human being an "animal."

Calling the cruelest among us names such as "animal" or any other "dehumanizing" epithet actually protects humans. The word "beastly" exists for a reason and is frequently applied to human beings. By rhetorically reading certain despicable people out of the human race, we elevate the human race. We have declared certain behaviors out of line in the left's world of moral-sounding platitudes. Leftism consists almost with being human.

Biologically, of course, we are all human. But if "human" is to mean anything moral — anything beyond the purely biological — then some people who have committed particularly heinous acts of evil against other human beings are not to be considered human. Otherwise "human" has no moral being. We should then not retain the word "inhumane." What is the difference between "he is inhumane" and "he is an animal"? Both imply actions that render the person no longer human.

Dionne provides his answer at the end of the paragraph: "dehumanizing others always leads us down a dangerous path."

He provides not a single argument or illustration for this truly absurd

Anyone who refuses to "dehumanize" the Nazi physicians — who, with no anesthesia, froze naked people for hours and then dropped them in boiling water to rewarm them; put people in depressurized rooms where their eardrums burst, driving them out of their minds from pain; rubbed wood shavings and ground glass into infected wounds, etc. — is, to put it very gently, profoundly morally confused.

What would Dionne have us call those Nazi physicians — "not nice," "badly flawed," "evil"? Why is rhetorically ostracizing them from the human race "a dangerous path"? He doesn't have an answer because he lives entirely of moral-sounding platitudes — statements meant to make the person making them feel morally sophisticated. But based on their relative reactions to the sadists of the MS-13 gangs, I trust Donald Trump's moral compass more than E. J. Dionne's.

It is ever dangerous to use dehumanizing rhetoric on people? Of course — when it is directed at people based on their race, religion, ethnicity, nationality or any other immutable physical characteristic. The Nazis did what they did to Jews and others because they dehumanized them based on their religious/ethnic/racial identity. That's why racism is evil. But why is it dangerous to use such rhetoric on people based on their behavior? By equating labeling the cruelest among us "animals" with labeling Jews "animals," Dionne cheapens the fight against real evil.

I once asked Rabbi Leon Radzik, a Holocaust survivor who had been in Auschwitz, what word he would use to characterize the sadistic guards in the camp. I will never forget his response: "They were monsters with a human face."

Incredibly, Dionne would not agree with him.

The case against higher education

By John Stossel

Today, all Americans are told, "Go to college!"

President Obama said, "College graduation has never been more valuable."

But economist Bryan Caplan says that most people shouldn't go.

"How many thousands of hours did you spend in classes studying subjects that you never thought about again?" he asks.

Lots, in my case. At Princeton, I learned to live with strangers, play cards and chase women, but I slept through boring lectures, which were most of them. At least tuition was only $2,000. Now it's almost $50,000.

"People usually just want to talk about the tuition, which is a big deal, but there's also all the years that people spend in school when they could have been doing something else," points out Caplan in my new YouTube for free. But almost no one does that. video.

"If you just take a look at the faces of students, it's obvious that they're concludes Caplan. bored," he says. "People are there primarily in order to get a good job."

book, "The Case Against Education," argues that there's little connection between what we absorb in college and our ability to do a job.

"It's totally true that when people get fancier degrees their income generally goes up," concedes Caplan, but "the reason why this is happening is not that college pours tons of job skills into you. The reason is ... a diploma is a signaling device."

It tells employers that you were smart enough to get through college.

But when most everyone goes to college, says Caplan, "You just raise the bar. Imagine you're at a concert, and you want to see better. Stand up and of course you'll see better. But if everyone stands up, you just block

"In people's bones, they realize that what really counts is that diploma,"

Because that diploma is now usually subsidized by taxpayers, college That sounds like a good reason to go to college. But Caplan, in his new costs more. Tuition has risen at triple the rate of inflation. It's not clear students learn more for their extra tuition, but colleges' facilities sure have gotten fancier. They compete by offering things like luxurious swimming pools and gourmet dining. That probably won't help

"If you're doing computer science or electrical engineering, then you probably are actually learning a bunch of useful skills," Caplan says. But students now often major in abstract topics like social justice, diversity studies, multicultural studies.

"But don't the liberal arts expand people's minds?" I asked. Philosophy? Literature? Isn't it all making our brains work better?

"That's the kind of thing you expect teachers to say," answered Caplan. "There's a whole field of people who have actually studied this (and) they generally come away after looking at a lot of evidence saying, 'Wow,

The retired general who stopped a Wall Street coup

Many Americans would be shocked to learn that political coups are part of our country's history. Consider the Wall Street Putsch of 1933.

Never heard of it? It was a corporate conspiracy to oust Franklin D. Roosevelt, who had just been elected president.

With the Great Depression raging and millions of families financially devastated, FDR had launched several economic recovery programs to help people get back on their feet. To pay for this crucial effort, he had the audacity to raise taxes on the wealthy, and this enraged a group of Wall Street multimillionaires.

Wailing that their "liberty" to grab as much wealth as possible was being shackled, they accused the president of mounting a "class war." To pull off their coup, they plotted to enlist a private military force made up of destitute World War I vets who were upset at not receiving promised federal bonus payments.

One of the multimillionaires' lackeys reached out to a well-respected advocate for veterans: Retired Marine general Smedley Darlington Butler. They wanted him to lead 500,000 veterans in a march on Washington to force FDR from the White House.

They chose the wrong general. Butler was a patriot and lifelong soldier for democracy, who, in his later years, became a famous critic of corporate war profiteering.

Butler was repulsed by the hubris and treachery of these Wall Street aristocrats. He reached out to a reporter, and together they gathered proof to take to Congress. A special congressional committee investigated and found Butler's story "alarmingly true," leading to public hearings, with Butler giving detailed testimony.

By exposing the traitors, this courageous patriot nipped their coup in the bud. But their sense of entitlement reveals that we must be aware of the concentrated wealth of the imperious rich, for it poses an ever-present danger to majority rule.

PROBATE

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF KATHRYN E. PERALES

Case No. 18STPB04072
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of KATHRYN E. PERALES A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Daniel Perales in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES. THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Daniel Perales be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on June 28, 2018 at 8:30 AM in Dept. No. 5 located at 111 N. Hill St., Los Angeles,

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney. IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on this property.

NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public as a available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (866)-960-8299 or visit this Internet Web site http:// www.altisource.com/MortgageServices/ DefaultManagement/TrusteeServices. aspx using the file number assigned to this case 2016-04093-CA. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale.

on her habit of accumulating things leads her to new insight on a pledge to a best friend who is terminally ill, and thoughts about the best form of eulogy. Shared Stories is a weekly column featuring articles by participants in a writing class at the Norwalk Senior Center. Bonnie Mansell is the instructor for this free class offered through the Cerritos College Adult Education Program. Curated by Carol Kearns.

By Maria Lou Garcia

While walking by the Sea of Galilee during a pilgrimage to the Holy Land, my best friend Victoria and I made a pact. Whoever survives the other will be the one to deliver the eulogy. It's been 10 years since we made that pact, and, though I have had my own health issues, Victoria has contracted and battled with colon cancer.

Early on, I expressed my strong desire to visit her in Maryland but she told me she was restricted from having visitors. Two years and three Philippines, something to be weeks past the prohibition to proud of. accept visitors, my husband, Ed, called me from work.

"I have a week off," he told me. "Call Victoria and ask if we could come and visit her."

With a smile on her voice, Victoria did not only say yes, she asked, "Would you be my maid of honor and Ed be Tony's best man?"

Victoria declared that our visit was timely as they were spending the week at their condo by Beach City, Maryland, and renewing vows at St Luke's Church for their leftovers, broken appliances, 47th wedding anniversary. There would be no other guests except us.

I noticed immediately that their condo was devoid of clutter. There was only a sofa, a dining set, a few necessary appliances, two wall paintings, and a bed for each room. I knew I was there for more than one reason. This would be a reminder of my recent goal to redefine and simplify my life.

Last October, my sisterin-law Zenaida, who had lived in New Jersey for over 40 years, came with the intent of moving to California intent of moving to California During our visit to permanently. When she Maryland, Victoria and Tony saw that our garage was packed with stuff from an accumulation of items unimaginable, she started the To qualify, the applicant must monumental task of tossing, be a Norwalk resident, be at least donating, and keeping stuff to the bare essentials.

From the darkness, Applications will be available created by piles of boxes from pipe, came a glimmer of hope and light the moment she picked up the first object. Now, literally, there was light at the end of the garage's

> Never in my wildest dreams did I think that all the clothes, shoes, books and what-haveyou - left by guest roomers, new teacher recruits, a friend distraught from a foreclosure, our own grown children, and ourselves - would stockpile into a nightmare.

While the sorting of the garage is still in progress, it is possible and not too late to become a minimalist.

First, I have to admit that I am a hoarder married to another hoarder. Once I admit

Mary Lou Garcia's reflection this to be true of myself, I have to pledge myself to dehoard 40 items a day (okay, so maybe four), and copy what Zenaida did, by creating piles for donation, trash and for keeps.

> as not to be So overwhelmed, I would repeat daily, like a mantra or affirmation, the proverb by Chinese philosopher, Lao Tzu: "A journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step."

> Secondly, I will seriously comply with my vow of no needless shopping. Though I can honestly say that I am basically not a shopaholic, I admittedly do binge shop. The culprit is when I am on a trip abroad and go overboard with buying souvenirs and pasalubongs (coming-home presents for others). Things I might "need" someday to gift others land in my garage, stashed and forgotten.

> In conversation Father Lester about hoarding, mentioned that the whole idea of hoarding can be cultural. Having more is a status symbol in the

> Also, after being deprived in the Philippines of things "stateside" or imported, and then moving to America, in the land of plenty, things are now for keeps and affordable. Then again, the custom of recycling, reusing, repairing is indigenous to the Filipino culture, long before recycling became popular in a throwaway society as that of the United States.

Not to be derogatory, I am referring to how fresh, clean, unwanted foods, expired food, and old sofas are conveniently disposed of. I've seen it in schools and along curbs during trash pick-up days.

Indeed, somebody else's trash can be, in fact, another's treasure. Growing up in the Philippines, it is not unusual to hear voices ring "Bote, Dyaro luma." Street recyclers of bottles and old newspapers solicit door to door to buy those items for the purpose of selling them as a living. In fairness, eBay, Craigslist, OfferUp, and thrift stores in the U.S. also create jobs of buying and selling for a living.

took Ed and myself nowhere near the malls. Instead, after daily Mass in church and lunch at restaurants, we scoured thrift stores.

In fact, Ed and I were able to buy our maid-of-honor and best man clothes from a Methodist thrift shop. There were also Catholic, hospice, and the hospital thrift shops to choose from. Being part of the equation for recycling and reusing was quite an adventure!

Though unspoken, perhaps even unintentional, Victoria's message was clear: detachment along with the old familiar adage, "You can't take it with you.

Victoria had told me three times, "You don't have to come to my funeral." I pretended not to hear. I guess she knew our time spent together was the eulogy that was better experienced and lived than heard.

REVIEW: 'Deadpool 2' is pure, sophomoric fun

► Don't overthink it: sometimes a superhero film is just two hours of viewing pleasure.

By Alex Dominguez Staff Writer

The superhero genre has been a mainstay on the silver screen for over a decade, and it has had a revolutionary impact on the entertainment industry and culture

The last several years have seen superhero movies build entire universes built from scratch, empower women, and elevate minorities.

Deadpool 2 does none of that.

Those familiar with Deadpool character know his schtick: he's obnoxious, he's vulgar, and he is inherently self-aware.

Deadpool (Ryan Reynolds) first hit movie screens in 2009 in X Men Origins: Wolverine, and fans of the foul-mouthed hero were hints of Wade Wilson's comic book made the character persona non humor wasn't there. grata for geek and nerd purists.

Pool's first headlining feature, when we got the red-clad assassin antihero we all know and love.

Heading into the second installment, it's hard not to keep in mind that it's not often that a sequel outdoes its predecessor. However, Deadpool 2 does just that. This film seems almost more natural than the first Deadpool movie, especially fourth wall breaks are more organic and feel less obvious or forced.

Even jokes that are rehashes from the first movie are done better, and thus don't come across

If there's anything that may definitely left wanting more. While get old in the film, it's the constant sophomoric banter. But at the end personality were there, a handful of the day, that's just Deadpool; of shall we say "creative liberties" I'd probably be complaining if that

The second coming This was corrected in 2016 with Deadpool just feels more like the real thing (no, not like that).

> The action and fight scenes just seemed a little more fun and energetic this time around too.

With Deadpool, you're going to get guns, swords, grenades, and lots of blood and guts, and there's plenty of it. It's not as if there is more or less action or gore this time around, more that this movie's violence translates as a little The jokes are funnier. The more fun and polished (which is impressive considering Deadpool's first movie already did that well).

Are you sensing a theme here?

You know the saying, another day another 27 candidates for governor. Well, it may be a variant of the old work ethic saying, but I think we all have our work cut out for us this 2018 primary season.

By the way, the primary election is next Tuesday, June 5, and we Norwalkians will be casting our votes for many local, regional as well as state and federal officials. Granted, we'll all be back here again in the General Election in November, but next Tuesday, we get to vote on many elected offices as well as several state measures.

In this era of "did he" or "didn't he?", "did she" or "didn't she?," and every Tom, Dick and Mary running for everything from governor, to judges, state senator and assembly representative, I truly don't have a clue as to how I will vote.

I stand corrected, there are no Dicks (Richards) running for any office that I could find.

Contrary to some beliefs, I am not always looking for dirt at city hall. As a matter of fact, I wanted to get out last weekend in Norwalk and see what was news in our fair Waking up Memorial Day about 8 a.m., I decided to forgo the Bermudas and sport shirt for a pair of jeans and a thin long-sleeved shirt. It was a bit chilly (that May Grey thing) and besides, the sun it came out: Fudge! I really didn't hadn't been coming out until the late afternoon.

Thinking I'd ride down to the bus stop at 166th and Pioneer, plan A called for me to be at the memorial service at the veterans' monument and then continue on from there.

I prepared to shoot photos, interview and write the story the same day for I wanted to chat with Norwalkians after the event Memorial Day meant to them."

Arriving at the bus stop, I took off my pack, combed back my locks it home from the Norwalk Square and grabbed some change from my coin purse, awaiting the first bus.

Checking by phone with the NTS office, a message greeted me stating that, "Service would resume Tuesday, May 29th." Okay, have a chance." I thought, plan B.

Peddling on, I passed the Senior Center. I checked the parking lot for my friend in her RV, but she wasn't parked there that day. Again, I peddled on. My back felt great.

What?! My back felt great? Then say fudge. I had left my backpack with my press kit on the bench way back at 166th Street. That was about a mile and a half in the other

As I turned around, I didn't hesitate. I began peddling the RMIV (affectionately called the Raulmobile 4) back towards the bust stop. I thought, "Camera: $350, Backpack: $75, Computer: $350."

Then, I realized something else. to get their perspective on "what I was praying. I asked, "please be Peddling even harder, I stop and saw what I thought was a blur next to someone sitting there.

It was the bag!

Stopping just to the right and pointing, I exclaimed, "That's my backpack.

The woman sitting there spoke in Spanish, something to the effect of, "I found it here and thought what kind of idiot leaves their pack?"

I guess I am.

With those words, she produced from her purse a blue digital 35MM camera and a Mexican change purse and handed it to me.
