

Marilyn Haight – a personal remembrance

►Norwalk resident Marilyn Haight was tragically killed in a hit-and-run the night before Thanksgiving. She left behind grieving family, friends and former co-workers.

A friend of mine has been on the local news recently for a very sad reason. She was the victim of a hit-and-run accident on Pioneer Boulevard the night before Thanksgiving. Eleven of us had just been to Marilyn’s house one week earlier for a regular monthly get-together. It is hard to accept how quickly life can change.

We heard that Marilyn did not want to travel on Thanksgiving, so her daughter and grandson were coming to Norwalk from Palm Springs.

Late Wednesday afternoon, Marilyn decided to walk four blocks to a local market to get a few last-minute groceries. She could have driven, but she often enjoyed the gentle exercise of a neighborhood stroll. There are traffic lights at the intersection and she crossed the busy street safely the first time. But it was much darker when she headed home and the images in the video from the street camera show car lights and street lights.

The TV reporter said she made it across to the center island and “was possibly confused.” Perhaps this means she wasn’t supposed to proceed. Perhaps the driver was not at fault for hitting her, but driving on without stopping is an egregious crime.

Marilyn died shortly afterwards at the hospital. Her daughter did not find out what happened until she arrived at Marilyn’s house, found the car in the garage with no one at home, and contacted the police.

This is a tragic way to learn about the death of one’s mother, especially since Marilyn was still a spirited and self-reliant person at age 79. As a friend, I console myself with knowing that she was living the way she wanted to.

Marilyn was from South Dakota and she flew back every summer to spend a month with her sister. She was a person who remained involved with friends and neighbors and liked to go on trips arranged for seniors groups. She had a strong sense of community.

Marilyn’s small three-bedroom house where she raised her two daughters was immaculately maintained – regularly repainted and refreshed. The uncluttered, slightly eclectic décor had an elegant look. Hand-crocheted doilies protected the surface of living room end tables while an area rug with an abstract pattern covered the gleaming hardwood floor in front of her couch. Pictures of her children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren graced chrome shelving and her upright piano. She told me that she used to play hymns at one time.

Up until a few years ago, Marilyn had been an avid gardener and her backyard crops reflected her high standards. I was envious when I saw her romaine lettuce standing upright, at crisp attention, in perfect rows. The look and taste of all her produce could meet standards for Gelson’s.

Marilyn was a modest, salt-of-the-earth person who shied away from the spotlight and did not want any special recognition when she retired after 45 years as a school cafeteria worker. But all who spoke at her memorial service echoed a common theme – Marilyn was generous with her time and effort and she made a difference in the lives of those around her.

I know with certainty that her behind-the-scene actions made a difference in the lives of many students at the school where I taught, and reflected the wisdom behind the saying, “It takes a village to raise a child.” Marilyn’s impact resulted from her daily approach to life – work hard, do your best, and help people when you can.

Hands-on Activities

I met Marilyn in 1997 in La Mirada. Our third-grade team of teachers was committed to hands-on activities as a way of helping students understand and retain cognitive learning skills. Classroom activities included gardening, sewing, music, artwork, and baking.

The month of Thanksgiving was a perfect opportunity for culinary activities. Every year, as part of our historical study of the Pilgrims coming to America, we planned a Thanksgiving feast for the last day before the holiday break.

We made cranberry sauce and apple sauce from scratch using a hot plate in class. Students peeled and cored the apples with a little gizmo, and everyone had to taste a bite of a raw cranberry to become familiar with this plant. This class-prepared food was part of our menu.

Marilyn allowed our three classes to store this food in the cafeteria coolers for a few days before we were ready to eat. This was extra work for her because items had to be rearranged so there was always enough room for the daily supply of milk, juice, and certain lunch food.

We also made pumpkin pies in class as a way for students to apply their math and reading skills in a real-world situation. This ambitious activity required the assistance of parent volunteers – and Marilyn. The cafeteria still had a working stove and she agreed to bake our pies.

It would have been understandable if Marilyn had said no to our wild idea because her official duties required more than just passing out food and collecting money. Substantial paperwork was required for her to keep track of daily deliveries from the central kitchen and note which classes planned field trips so that less food was ordered for those days. Marilyn also kept count of students on special lunch programs and sent along sack lunches for those students when they were on field trips.

Marilyn could have nixed our idea of baking pies at school and her work day would have been much simpler. But she viewed our request as a way to help the teachers and the school.

Pumpkin Pies

The day before baking, we reviewed the recipe thoroughly in class. Working in groups of four, each student volunteered to bring an ingredient – a can of pumpkin filling, sugar, spices, eggs, etc. We teachers provided the premade pie shells. We never had any trouble getting parent volunteers to help with this activity.

We started first thing in the morning after taking roll and turning in homework. Tables were cleared and covered with clean butcher paper. Each table had its own set of measuring cups and spoons. Then the students worked cooperatively to prepare the filling.

It got pretty messy as students measured out the sugar, broke open the eggs, scooped the pumpkin out of the can, and sometimes argued over not getting a full turn at stirring.

When all the pies from a class were ready, parents placed them on cookie sheets, gathered up all the dirty mixing bowls and measuring items, put everything on a wheeled cart, and headed for Marilyn and the cafeteria. The walkways were bumpy and sometimes the soupier filling would slosh out. With 20 students per class, each class always had at least five pies.

Parents used the cafeteria dishwasher and tried to stay out of the way while Marilyn supervised the baking of the pies, even as kids stood in line for snacks at recess and meals for lunch. It was a lot of work to make sure the pies were done just right and there was also oven and counter clean-up. Then Marilyn saw that our pies were cooled and stored appropriately.

Thanksgiving Feast

The cafeteria coolers were bursting with our food the night before our Thanksgiving feast. More food was sometimes brought in the next morning, and our students made their own butter from cream. My class cooked sweet potatoes on the hot plate that morning and seasoned them with our butter and salt and pepper. We sent plates of food to the principal and office staff and aides.

For me, this yearly event was awe-inspiring because it had such a powerful effect on the students. It came about only through the cooperation of so many adults – and none of it would have happened without Marilyn.

Baking Bread

At another time of the year Marilyn also helped our students bake small, individual loaves of bread – again made from scratch. An agricultural organization provided the supplies. This time each student kneaded his/her own dough, let it rise during recess, and kneaded it again before we sent the 20 loaves to the cafeteria.

These classroom activities may seem trivial and non-academic to some, but learning how food is prepared is a profound experience for many children in today’s world. My generation learned to do many of these things at home, and we brought this knowledge with us to class. We started our studies from a different place. This is not always possible for today’s working parents.

Our cooperative school activities also promoted class bonding. Some students came from troubled families and occasionally we even had children who were homeless. Preparing food in a cooperative setting contributed to an atmosphere of peace and camaraderie.

These moments in school were a needed gift for some children, and they were made possible by Marilyn’s generous spirit. I treasure these inspiring memories, and I know many parent volunteers feel the same.

Friends and neighbors at Marilyn’s memorial service shared anecdotes with a similar theme – Marilyn made a difference in the world. She paid it forward in the ways she knew how. It was my good fortune to have known her.

School board considers shutting campus

►Facing declining enrollment, Downey Unified faces the possibility of closing Carpenter Elementary.

Another option is to transition the campus into a dual immersion school.

By Alex Dominguez
Staff Writer

DOWNEY – As it faces declining enrollment, Downey Unified School District has begun discussing significant changes to Carpenter Elementary School in an attempt to avoid a school closure.

At October’s State of the Schools address, Superintendent John Garcia noted that schools region and state-wide are all facing enrollment shifts as families continue to have less children and move farther inland.

Discussions on how to combat declining enrollment in Downey have been taking place since the summer, with the district even upping marketing efforts to draw new students to the district.

Specifically, Carpenter Elementary School currently has the lowest enrollment numbers in the District with a little over 400 students.

According to DUSD Public Relations Coordinator Ashley Greaney, the District is trying to avoid having to close down a school but admitted there are “lots of things on the table.”

She says that the District has been talking to staff since the beginning of the year, and wants to talk to the community and get feedback before moving forward on any position.

Greaney did, however, confirm that one potential option was to transition Carpenter to a dual immersion / international baccalaureate school.

Should that change take place, it would start with the T-K and Kindergarten classes next year and grow with those students. Those currently enrolled would finish their normal curriculum.

Curriculum would then be 90 percent Spanish and 10 percent English, said Greaney. While some training would need to take place for teachers and staff, Greaney explained that most teachers already possess Bilingual, Cross-cultural, Language and Academic Development (BCLAD) credentials.

Carpenter Elementary currently schools only 4th and 5th grades and is fed into by Alameda, Imperial, and Ward Elementary Schools, which teach up to grade three.

Greaney added that discussions at Alameda, Imperial and Ward would take place later this week.

Details about a possible closure gained exposure Monday after a post on the community-run “Positively Downey” Facebook page.

The post, made by Downey resident and group member Kathleen Gargas, said,

“School board meeting is tomorrow night. Parents did you know that they’re closing Sussman Middle School??”

In a later comment, Gargas said that she first heard of the possible closing from a school employee.

Gargas, a retired Special Education assistant who still occasionally substitutes, declined to be interviewed.

Greaney said that the District hopes to come to an answer by January.

Cal High boys water polo team wins first-ever CIF championship

WHITTIER – The California High School boys’ water polo team celebrated its first CIF-Southern Section Division 5 title, edging out Brentwood High 10-9 at the William Woollett Aquatics Center in Irvine in November, capping a successful year in which the team compiled a 28-6 record.

The Cal Condors were led by senior utility player Jesus Padilla, who scored seven goals during the Nov. 10 match, including the eventual game-winner with 1:29 remaining in the fourth period, and senior goalkeeper Adan De La Loza, who recorded seven saves. For his superior effort, Padilla was named the San Gabriel Valley Tribune Boy Athlete of the Week on Nov. 12.

The CIF title is the first for Cal High in any sport since 2000, and only the fourth title in the school’s 65-year history. Cal High advanced to the CIF SoCal Division 3 Boys’ Water Polo Championships, held Nov. 16-17, where the team captured second place.

“I could not be prouder of our student-athletes and Coach David Brown and his staff, who have worked tremendously hard to build a championship-winning program,” Cal High Principal Bill Schloss said. “Winning the title has really brought the campus together. Condor spirit is sky high.”

Cal High’s title run caps a remarkable month of November for Whittier Union athletics, with many student-athletes distinguishing themselves with personal bests and triumphs.

Whittier Union cross country teams made strong showings at the CIF-SS Championships, held Nov. 17 in Riverside.

Cal High, led by senior Angel Salinas and junior Ethan Ruiz, finished in seventh place in Division I, qualifying for the CIF State Championships. La Serna High, led by junior Gerald Baltzer and senior Marco Perez, finished in eighth place, narrowly missing the cut. Whittier High, led by senior Josiah Mrla, finished in 16th place in Division 3. Pioneer High – 605 League champions – finished in 11th place in Division 4 while junior Nathaniel Estrada qualified as an individual runner for the state meet.

“These young men worked their hearts out and I am truly proud

Cal High’s boys water polo team won the CIF Division 5 title, capping a historic 2018 season.

It was the team’s first-ever CIF championship and the school’s first CIF title since 2000.

of their accomplishments and dedication to Pioneer. They make our campus proud,” Pioneer High Principal Lilia Bozigian said.

Student-athletes have shined across other fall sports, as well.

La Serna High School senior Briana Chacon added to her lengthy list of accolades when she tied for fourth place in the CIF State Girls Golf Championships, held Nov. 14 in Riverside. Chacon, who was named Whittier Daily News Golfer of the Year as a sophomore, will continue her golfing career at the University of Oregon.

“I am so proud of the dedication and efforts of our Lancers, who are demonstrating their success in and out of the classroom,” La Serna High Principal Ann Fitzgerald said. “As a District, we believe that athletics and other extra-curricular activities play an important role in developing scholars into lifelong learners, and we are supportive of all students who participate.”

Cerritos approves plans for Tous Les Jours bakery

CERRITOS – The City Council recently approved a proposal to build a one-story commercial building at the vacant parcel at 13359 South Street.

The property owner, Beachcom, LLC, has requested construction of a single-tenant structure that upon completion will be leased to CJ Foodville, which will operate the bakery Tous Les Jours. The French-Asian bakery will serve a selection of baked goods and beverages made with quality ingredients from South Korea.

CJ Foodville has locations internationally and throughout the United States, including California. The company intends to make the Cerritos location its first corporately operated “flagship” bakery restaurant.

The 3,297-square-foot building will feature Craftsman-style designs, including decorative wood bracket elements, elongated storefront windows, metal awnings, stone-covered columns and stacked stone and “wood look” plank stone veneers. The building will be painted crystal white with brown/green accents.

Landscaping will include California native plants. The property will offer 33 parking stalls.

In lieu of the Cerritos Art in Public Places artwork requirement, Beachcom has opted to pay the fee (totaling one percent of the valuation of the project) toward the Art in Public Places trust fund.

Construction is expected to commence in January and be completed by May.

Norwalk-La Mirada school district wins third straight Golden Bell Award

NORWALK – The Norwalk-La Mirada Unified School District announced Monday that it has won a prestigious 2017 Golden Bell Award for the Norwalk Education Alliance, a career and college readiness initiative to enhance local economic development.

Conceived in 2015, the Alliance is a multi-agency effort to provide a formal and sustained joint commitment to guide residents of all ages into greater futures via higher education, career technical training and entrepreneurship.

The Alliance’s various accomplishments, through resources provided by NLMUSD, have included creating a list of “soft skill” standards for young jobseekers, conducting mock job interviews for hundreds of high schoolers and holding a career expo for area residents.

“It’s a great honor for our district to earn this Golden Bell Award,” said NLMUSD Board of Education President Sean M. Reagan. “As a partnership, the Norwalk Education Alliance has done wonderful work on behalf of education and the community.”

In addition to NLMUSD and the City of Norwalk, the Alliance partners are the Norwalk Chamber of Commerce, Cerritos College, Little Lake City School District, Santa Fe High School, Southeast Los Angeles County Workforce Investment Board and the Long Beach Small Business Development Center.

Golden Bell Awards are sponsored by the California School Boards Association to promote excellence in public education and school board governance by recognizing outstanding programs and governance practices of school boards in school districts.

Awards are given out for a variety of categories. The rigorous judging process includes site validation visits. The NLMUSD, along with all other Golden Bell winners, will be formally recognized by the CSBA at an evening ceremony Nov. 30 in San Diego.

The NLMUSD entry for the Alliance was submitted in the program category of Community Schools Through Partnerships and Collaboration. “We care very much about the academic and economic success of our community and our Alliance is proof of that,” said district Superintendent Dr. Hasmik Danielian. “It has been a great group effort and we are happy to share this award with all of our partners.”

Joanne Jung, director of NLMUSD’s College and Career Pathways program, believes that educating and preparing the next generation’s workforce should always be a shared responsibility.

“It has been an amazing experience working with our partners,” she said about the Alliance. “Together, our civic leaders, local businesses, surrounding school systems and community organizations, are all contributing to a better future.”

Norwalk-La Mirada Unified staff and board members celebrate after earning their third consecutive Golden Bell Award.

Students give the gift of music at choral festival

WHITTIER – Whittier Union students rang in the holidays, singing traditional songs and holiday favorites during the annual Choral Festival on Dec. 5 at the Whittier College Memorial Chapel.

Choirs from California, Whittier, La Serna and Santa Fe high schools each performed short programs for family, friends and peers while receiving critiques from Azusa Pacific University assistant professor and conductor of the Chamber Singers Michelle Jensen, who joined the students after their performances to share her thoughts.

“What I am looking for is passion and a commitment to excellence,” Jensen said. “My passion is promoting choir art into the next generation, and my hope is that it continues to flourish in the future. It’s more than becoming a great singer; it’s also about being a great audience member. What a beautiful life we live when we can spend the day exploring and listening to music.”

Jensen counseled the singers on technique, posture, hand movements and how to make written music come alive when performing. Jensen won over the students with her prescient, but light-hearted comments, receiving laughs and applause.

“Do you want to feel comfortable or sound amazing?” Jensen asked the students.

Whittier High School Choir Director Jesse Meza likes the idea of having his students evaluated in a formal session.

La Serna High School Chamber Choir Director David Carter conducts his students during Whittier Union’s annual Choral Festival on Dec. 5 at Whittier College Memorial Chapel. Choirs from La Serna, California, Whittier and Santa Fe high schools sang traditional songs and holiday favorites in front of family and friends.

“Having an adjudicator work with the choir lets the students know what they need to work on and helps us look toward the spring season,” Meza said. “The students don’t get nervous. They approach this like they do any other performance.”

The Choir Festival is a chance for the school choirs to get to know each other and share tips and recommendations.

“We are truly a family – the choir program is a positive place where no one judges you,” Santa Fe High senior Darlene Lupian said. “Our choir director, Mr. Kwon, does more than teach music. He teaches us to read and how to express ourselves. He gives us a voice and helps make the music our own.”

Rios has been a member of the chamber choir for four years. Rios, who practices every day and is a cantor for his church, credits chamber choir for helping him better engage with his classmates.

“I enjoy when we get to the end of the songs so that I can hear the others sing,” Rios said. “Being in chamber choir has also helped me develop my leadership skills and I have since joined ASB.”

For Cal High parent Sophia Alvarado, singing in the choir is a family tradition. Her daughter, Cal High junior Ariana Alvarado, is in her second year of chamber choir, following in the footsteps of her cousins, all of whom have been tutored by Cal High Chamber Choir Director Dan Hawkins.

“I love to see all the children singing,” Sophia Alvarado said. “It brings joy to my heart to see them pursue what they love.”

Each of the District’s comprehensive high schools offer beginning, intermediate and advanced choral and instrumental music programs and theater arts courses. The choral ensembles have performed in local, regional and national competitions in famous locations such as Carnegie Hall and the Walt Disney Concert Hall.

“I look forward to the choral festival every year. It is wonderful to watch our talented students come together and give the gift of music and fellowship,” Superintendent Martin Plourde said. “Thank you to our dedicated and hard-working choir directors, their distinguished accompanists and our adjudicator, Michelle Jensen, whose professionalism and wit delighted us all.”

Bands wanted for networking event

NORWALK – Norwalk’s Recreation and Park Services Department is looking for bands to participate in Concert Share, a public event planned for Jan. 30.

Concert Share is an event where agencies and bands will have the opportunity to network during a vendor fair.

The event will take place at the Norwalk Arts & Sports Complex from 7:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Registration is required and accepted on a first-come, first-served basis, either in person, by mail or via email.

Fee is $125 per band and includes one 6-ft. table with electricity. Space is limited to the first 100 bands.

“Show your talents and be hired by cities to perform at events throughout the year,” city officials said.
