Cerritos College votes to support Prop 16

NORWALK - The Cerritos College Board of Trustees last week passed resolutions to support Undocumented Student Week of Action and Proposition

Both resolutions "advance the district's continued efforts to support student equity, inclusion, and diversity on campus," a college representative said.

statewide efforts to participate in Norwalk residents of its intent Undocumented Student Action Week beginning October 19-23, 2020. The Board resolution recognizes the week of action as a way to provide support services and resources to the campus' undocumented/AB 540 students, including legal assistance, ally training, and more. View the event calendar for more information.

The Board passed a resolution to support Proposition 16 as it appears on the November 2020 ballot. The ballot measure would repeal elements of Proposition 209, which was established in 1996 as an anti-affirmative action law. Proposition 16 proposes to restore local control to California's colleges and public entities. The new law would allow characteristics such as race, ethnicity, and gender to be considered in local decision making like staff and faculty "Proposition 16 is a step in the right direction toward civil rights and equity. As a college, we will continue our advocacy efforts to end systemic racism and discrimination," College Board of Trustees. "We by FY2022-2023. LA County considering Motel 6 for Project Homekey time in six months the State of California and Los Angeles County have targeted the City of Norwalk with its "emergency powers" in an attempt to respond to the challenges created by the COVID-19 virus.

In April, Los Angeles County Superior Court Judge Samantha Jessner issued a temporary restraining order against the City of Norwalk ruling that "the interests of the county in implementing a state order under Project Roomkey to safely house the homeless during the pandemic outweighed any harm the city could suffer." the Department Recently, Cerritos College will join of State Hospitals informed to renovate and possibly house COVID-19 negative patients at the California Youth Authority (CYA) facility. Now the county has informed city officials of its intent to purchase the local Motel 6 as part of Project Homekey, a state program providing interim and permanent housing and support services to persons experiencing homelessness who are impacted by COVID-19.

> "Unfortunately, the City of Norwalk has no legal recourse in this matter," stated Mayor Jennifer Perez. "During these unprecedented times, the state has exercised its 'emergency powers' and has essentially disenfranchised a community that wants input on important decisions affecting the city."

In a letter from LA County Chief Executive Office dated Sept. 1, the county outlined that 'Project Homekey sites receiving funds from the Coronavirus Relief Fund are exempt from local permitting requirements." Plans by the county are to use the facility and its 56 rooms as an interim shelter within fund impacts that the acquisition said 90-days of purchase, and then and utilization of this property Marisa Perez, president, Cerritos convert to permanent housing for use as interim and permanent

City officials have clearly indicated that the city of Norwalk is a willing participant in doing its fair share in its fight against homelessness. However, the added strain on city services placed on the city by the state and county, along with failure to allow input by the city and residents cannot continue to go unaddressed.

Efforts to bring this matter to the attention of the county were made in a letter to the County of Los Angeles, dated Sept. 23. Therein, Mayor Perez outlined the "significant negative general property tax annually." City officials would like the county to reconsider the purchase given the added financial strain on city revenue and the violation of the city's adopted General Plan Use designation and zoning

Although expressing frustration due to lack of input on these matters, city officials have indicated they embrace Governor Newsom's desire to collaborate with local governments during this pandemic when he stated, "localism is determinative." The city is seeking results and hopes the state will work directly with the city as Newsom himself recently said, the "State of California has a responsibility to support cities and counties" in its fight against homelessness.

the use and Target Population for occupancy tax and $15,500 in has been credited with the sudden decrease of homeless residents in the city. In 2017, the city counted 317 homeless individuals on the streets of Norwalk as part of the Los Angeles County Homeless Service Authority official count. Since then, that number has decreased, reaching a low of 168 at the beginning of this year.

> "The city has proven it knows how to deal with its homelessness problem. We just want the state and county to provide us directly with the tools necessary to continue the fight," added Perez.

> The City of Norwalk expects further dialogue with county officials in hopes of working together to ensure that the state and county address their concerns.

legislation signed by Newsom

NORWALK Governor Newsom recently signed legislation authored by Senator Bob Archuleta (D-Pico Rivera) regarding veterans, the environment and public safety.

Archuleta represents Norwalk in the California State

Senate Bill 480, the prohibiting law enforcement from authorizing agencies their employees from wearing uniforms that are camouflage or substantially similar to those of the United States Armed Forces. "Our police are not a military force," said Senator Archuleta. "And it should not be made deliberately difficult for a member of the public to distinguish between the two.

Senate Bill 480 is one of the first legislative efforts in the nation to address the confusion between members of the armed forces and law enforcement. The bill protects service members, enforcement officers, and civilians by ensuring that there are clear identifying features on police uniforms that distinguishes them from the military and prohibits the use of camouflage unless it is being worn by tactical teams, such as SWAT and Special Operations.

"The main objective of military camouflage is to deceive the enemy as to the presence, position, and intentions of military formations. But, police officers protect and serve their communities. Deceiving the public should never be the purpose of law enforcement officers performing their duties in America," said Senator

Since the introduction of this bill, similar legislation has been proposed on the federal level as the nation works to rebuild the relationship between law enforcement and the public.

Senate Bill 588 creates guidelines state department's awarding contracts to a prime contractor that pairs with subcontractors Business Enterprise (DVBE). This legislation gives state departments the tools necessary to hold prime contractors accountable.

"Disabled Veteran business owners will now be able to conduct business on a level playing field," Sen. Archuleta no such thing as 'clean' diesel," Sen. Archuleta said. "Today, we have 100 percent zero-emission alternatives like hydrogen fuel cell vehicles that can replace heavy diesel polluters like trucks and buses immediately, and we should be investing in those technologies whenever we can."

Senate Bill 905 adds to the existing privacy protections of citizens and undocumented immigrants alike within the state while still ensuring the vulnerable individuals.

While the law allows organizations to request all of an applicant's records of convictions through the Disabled Veteran from the California Department of Justice if the applicant would have supervisory or disciplinary power over a minor or another in their care, these requests can be exploited to divulge the location of undocumented individuals responsibility and the authority that are applying to volunteer in to address the welfare of all their communities.

Community hospitals remain a vital part of the healthcare safety net during COVID-19

By Dr. Carlos Gonzalez

The COVID-19 pandemic has offered a stark reminder of the vital role that small, community safety net hospitals - like the ones where I practice - play in our overall healthcare system.

The frontline physicians, nurses and other staff at Los Angeles and Norwalk Community Hospitals - as well as at our sister facility, Southern California Hospital at Hollywood - have done a remarkable job treating residents of our local communities during the unprecedented pandemic. To date, the three hospitals have cared for a total of 730 COVID-19 patients, the vast majority of whom have recovered and been able to return to their loved ones.

Community hospitals like ours rarely make the news, but they fill a critical need. Safety net hospitals, by definition, provide healthcare for vulnerable individuals regardless of their insurance status or ability to pay. As a result, they typically serve a higher number of uninsured or underinsured patients, including people covered by Medi-Cal, which often pays a much lower rate of reimbursement than other health insurance plans. They also tend to care for a higher proportion of patients in low-income, minority communities whose healthcare needs have historically been underserved. Thanks to our parent company, Prospect Medical, which acquired, preserved and invested in our hospitals when so many other local hospitals have closed, we remain their safety net when they need quality care close to home.

That is our mission – and it's a mission that means a great deal to me, personally.

Like many of my colleagues at Los Angeles Community Hospital, I became a physician because I wanted to make a real difference in people's lives, in the belief that everyone in the communities we serve deserves quality, compassionate care.

My parents were migrant farm workers from Mexico. For the first years of my life, we moved up and down the length of California, following the crops as they came to harvest. We eventually settled in Los Angeles, where I went to junior high and high school. I attended medical school in Mexico before completing my medical degree and specialist training in the US.

Today, I'm a board-certified nephrologist, a physician who specializes in treating people with diseases or conditions that affect the kidneys. This includes caring for a wide variety of ailments such as hypertension and kidney stones, as well as treating people with acute renal failure who need dialysis and patients who have undergone kidney transplants.

The No. 1 cause of renal failure is diabetes, a disease that disproportionately impacts the Latino population. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), adults of Hispanic origin have almost double the incidence of diabetes compared to non-Hispanic whites. In my practice, I have treated multiple generations of Hispanic families – grandparents, parents and their children – for complications arising from diabetes and renal disease.

One of the most important purposes of a safety net hospital is that it enables people to get quality care – especially routine preventive care such as screenings and tests – right there in their own neighborhood. Having ready access to care can be a matter of life or death for residents of low-income communities, who may not have the financial means or the ability to travel beyond their neighborhood for care. In Los Angeles, as we all know, having to drive even five miles extra in traffic to get somewhere can take forever.

Unfortunately, the COVID-19 pandemic has only added to that anxiety. We have seen an increased number of hospitalized COVID-19 patients requiring dialysis as a result of acute kidney injury related to the coronavirus. And we are also seeing more patients with renal disease delaying their care out of fear of contracting COVID-19 either at the hospital or at a doctor's office.

I want community residents to know that our commitment to them has not changed because of COVID-19. Our message to our community has not changed, either: Please do not neglect or delay

No matter who wins, there is no exit from this rollercoaster anytime soon

By Salena Zito

CRANBERRY TOWNSHIP, Pennsylvania — He has no idea which candidate he's going to vote for next month.

The 36-year-old registered Republican and conservative found President Donald Trump's comportment so distasteful in 2016 that he voted for Hillary Clinton. Since then, he found himself reluctantly liking Trump's accomplishments and started leaning toward voting for Trump in 2020. But he puts the brakes on supporting Trump every time the president says something he thinks is outrageous.

I just want this chaos to end," he says in frustration. "That is what I am going to vote for: no chaos."

This suburban voter, like many others who might decide this election, now leans more toward Joe Biden. He is not alone.

Many voters going into this election next month believe if Biden wins the presidency, the constant disruption, chaos and social unrest will recede because Trump will no longer be president. Some of them are actually hinging their vote on that. Those exasperated voters and every reporter who spins that reasoning are as wrong about that as they were in their belief that the 2016 election was all about Trump. It never was.

Trump was never the cause of the conservative populist coalition watch them coach Little League. that put him in office. He was the result of it. After decades of voters' dissatisfaction with both political parties, institutions, government and culture, they voted for themselves and their communities over both parties' establishments. It wasn't about voting for Trump.

A lot of very smart people keep missing that critical nuance.

If Trump's opponents, or those who cover him, were to spend any time listening to voters and not making fun of them, categorizing them as a cult, racists, stupid or whatever word of the day, they would understand that.

I don't mean parachuting in for a day at a diner and calling that community's streets to see how government has either failed them lessons like The 1619 Project as part of the curriculum. or passed their community by. It wouldn't hurt to stay in town for a couple of days, attend church with people, go to work with them or Look someone in the eyes while standing on the very ground they walk on, not from the bubble of your life experiences, and you might experience a little empathy.

As for Biden, despite his wistful assertion that he is going to bring this country together, anyone with a smidgen of understanding of the Democratic Party knows he will be hard-pressed to bring his own party together, let alone an entire country.

The hard and very vocal left will demand climate change legislation, defunding or deep restructuring of our nation's police forces, free college tuition, a $15 minimum wage, "Medicare for understanding of a community but walking in their shoes and their All" and a restructuring of our education system to include radical

> The left will take its demands to social media, the streets and Washington until they get what they want. That is not a threat; that is just a reality. Biden is not the far left's candidate, but he is the means to an end of Trump. Once elected, there is a valid expectation of a far-left reward for voting for Biden.

> The moderate Democrats, independents and suburban Republicans who may put Biden into office won't willingly go along with sweeping government changes to satisfy activists, or with higher taxes needed to support those changes. They won't take to the streets, but they will silently move away from the coalition in which they had decided to dip their toe. The result will be an instantaneous shift back toward Republican candidates for the 2022 midterm elections, and the continuation of the wildly swinging wave elections we've been experiencing since 2006.

In short, there is no exit from the roller coaster anytime soon.

We keep sending Washington a message with our votes every two years, and Washington keeps misreading the results. Journalism has contributed to this; a government that operates out of a bubble has contributed to this; Hollywood and our national sports leagues have contributed to this; and our national institutions have contributed to this.

Our institutions' lack of both racial and cultural diversity in the boardrooms are root causes. More people who come from a state school or community college; who sit in a pew every Sunday or attend a mosque or synagogue; who own a gun or grew up in the projects need to be involved in the decision-making processes of places that have an effect on our lives.

Instead, they are mostly filled with the best of the best Ivv League graduates who never had those experiences — or, if they did, forgot their significance along the way.

People feel left out. People feel as though all of these entities are picking winners and losers. Our elections reflect that chaos, and as a result, people feel whiplash.

Biden's team has tried to portray him as the salve that will heal our country. The hard truth is no matter who wins, no matter who takes the oath of office on Inauguration Day, our country will still be on a bender.

President Trump's courage

Dear Editor:

I am pleased to report that President Trump has been nominated for the Nobel prize in medicine and physics.

Citing President Trump's efforts to try untested drugs on himself to cure Covid-19 sickness, he demonstrated against all challenges from the supposed experts that Dextamethasome is a cure for Jorge Montero Covid-19 that no one except the President saw coming. His courage in testing this medicine on himself and the positive results are more than sufficient and necessary reasons to qualify him for this award.

Similarly, his courage in denying the effects of climate change where again he battled the so called scientific experts, plus his promulgation of the flat earth theory, are contributions to physics much greater than Einstein's theory of relativity.

We should all take pride in President Trump's accomplishments in medicine and physics. The world is better because of what President Trump has done and that has finally been recognized.

We bought a home sight unseen

By Chris Stout-Hazard

"No. Absolutely not. Stop looking at those. Put your laptop away right now.'

This is how I talk to my husband, and I'm not proud of that. But having lived in three different houses during just six years of marriage, I was nervous to find him browsing real estate listings last summer. Can you blame me?

Our moves haven't been around the block, either. From the booming (and baking) city of Austin, TX, to the bucolic and rural village of Sharon Springs, NY, to the New York City metro, we'd lugged our possessions across 2,000 miles of highways.

Our houses had been equally disparate in style: an eco-friendly house in Austin, a 160-year-old Italianate Victorian in upstate New York, and a glass box on a mountain in New Jersey with a view of the Empire State Building.

Now it was time to move again. While we'd enjoyed our adventures, our growing business and desire to be close to family pointed us in another direction: Nebraska. We got our New Jersey house prepared for sale, expecting it to spend a little time on the market. Instead, it sold within 24 hours. Oops.

printed neighborhood maps and highlighted nearby restaurants and parks for our dog. We enlisted the help of my parents and hired a family friend as our real estate agent, sending them to tour houses on our behalf. Dad measured rooms while Mom toured the neighborhood. Any bit of information they could gather Here are a few tips for lowering was invaluable.

I finally walked through the house the day before closing. Roger was in New Jersey finishing packing, and I had driven out in advance. In person, I could see where our homework prepared me and what remained a surprise.

The view out the windows, the way light played through the hallways, the "aroma" of a longclogged garbage disposal — some things simply weren't captured by the photos we'd seen. The living room was smaller. The dining room was square rather than rectangular. The smelly, grimy kitchen, which had been "sometime next spring" renovation project, immediately got bumped up to the top of the centennial anniversary of the ratification and adoption of the 19th Amendment and the ongoing work toward achieving equity, Los Angeles County is using the arts to celebrate: its Department of Arts and Culture has collaborated with the Women and Girls Initiative to commission six artists to create commemorative artworks, which reflect a diversity of women and perspectives and highlight themes such as empowerment, civic engagement, resiliency, and the right to vote.

LA County Library has made three of the artworks into special edition library cards, which are now available.

are available starting this week of this historic anniversary, currently offering Sidewalk Service, during business hours, while supplies last. The cards function like a traditional library card, with the same benefits. Existing library cards may be exchanged for these designs, free of charge. To apply for a new library card or replace a current library card, customers should call their nearest Sidewalk Service library, and will need to wear a mask when picking up the

The Los Angeles County Department of Arts and Culture has also made available new digital downloads of posters of all six artworks, for those who wish to print and post in their home, office, school, or business. These posters are in addition to downloadable social media graphics, which can be shared digitally in advance of the November 3 election, and beyond, to inspire and encourage others to exercise their right to

"These remarkable artworks illustrate the breadth of the movement for women's suffrage and our persistence as we continue the fight for full equality 100 years after the ratification of the 19th Amendment," said Los Angeles County Supervisor Sheila Kuehl. "Every time someone uses one of these library cards, it will remind them that our struggle has a long history, and it continues still."

"I commend these six artists for their beautiful tribute to the decades of protest and struggle that brought about freedoms many of us enjoy today," said Los Angeles County Supervisor Hilda L. Solis. "These artworks also serve as a reminder that much still needs to be done to achieve full equality for women and transgender people of color. As we celebrate these artworks, let us reflect on how far we have come and recognize how far we must go. Today, and every day, we must fight for equal rights,

Getting Ready for 2021 Medicare Open Enrollment

By Rick Beavin

Medicare annual and Prescription Drug Plan open enrollment period is traditionally a time for educational events, classes and one on one meetings, but this year due to the COVID-19 pandemic, there are some new and different ways to learn about Medicare. October 15 to December 7 is the time when millions of people eligible for Medicare can access the latest information about available health plans for 2021. 6.4 million people are enrolled in Medicare including more an estimated cost for each plan than 2.9 million with Medicare based on an average member.

sales agents. At the same time, it's important to safely access Medicare information online while protecting your personal information and avoiding fake offers and other scams.

Here are some tips for how to prepare for the Medicare fall open enrollment period:

1. Use an online tool

Go to the Medicare Plan In California alone, more than Finder on Medicare.gov to compare plans, benefits and

> On Medicare.gov, you can also learn about and enroll in Medicare Advantage plans, sometimes called Part C or MA Plans, and you can also visit an insurance company's website to learn more about what they offer. Insurance companies that offer Medicare Advantage plans can provide you with detailed information about their plans and services, plus prescription pricing information and other benefits. You can also check to see if your primary care physician or other providers are in-network with the Medicare Advantage plan.

Many insurance companies are offering online workshops to review 2021 Medicare Advantage plan options. Also, check to see if you can set up a virtual one-onone meeting with an insurance company sales agent - meaning, by phone or video chat. Before you attend a virtual event or meeting, find out in advance how to log on to the meeting to avoid technical issues. It's a good idea to also prepare a list of questions so that you can ensure you get the information you need. Does the plan include vision, hearing and dental coverage? Will telehealth services be covered? Is transportation to your medical appointments included?

3. Protect yourself against Medicare scams

The federal Medicare agency has warned that scammers may try to use the pandemic to steal Medicare beneficiaries' doctor, pharmacist, hospital, health insurer or other trusted health care provider. Do not click links in text messages and emails about COVID-19 from unknown sources, and hang up on unsolicited phone calls offering COVID-19 tests or supplies.

If you are not comfortable accessing plan information online, Medicare.gov has an option for setting up a phone call

Santa Monica woman admits price gouging in sale of N95 masks

LOS ANGELES - A Santa equipment. Monica day spa owner was charged today in federal court with accumulating N95 respirators in anticipation of the COVID-19 pandemic and then price gouging by selling the scarce masks at vastly inflated prices - sometimes nearly 1,100 percent over list price.

Niki Schwarz, 55, of Santa Monica, the owner of Tikkun Holistic Spa, was named in a criminal information charging her with one count of hoarding and price gouging. In a plea agreement also filed today, Schwarz agreed to plead guilty to the misdemeanor offense.

In the plea agreement, Schwarz admitted that in February she began accumulating N95 respirators in anticipation of a shortage that would be caused by a global pandemic resulting Medicare numbers, banking from the spread of the novel information or other personal coronavirus. > In March, the United States government designated N95 respirators as "scarce materials" under the Defense Production Act summons directing her to make of 1950 due to the overwhelming need of health care providers dealing with COVID-19 patients use personal protective

Schwarz admitted that she obtained the N95 respirators for the purpose of reselling them at above-market rates, and that she sold the masks for up to $15

Schwarz "accumulated and resold the masks at prices in excess of the prevailing market prices willfully, that is, with knowledge that masks had been designated as scarce materials and with knowledge that accumulation of the designated materials to resell in excess of prevailing market prices was unlawful," according to the plea agreement.

On March 1, an associate informed Schwarz that the associate was going to stop selling N95 masks because she believed it was crime - and that price gouging could result in one year in prison – but Schwarz continued to sell the masks at inflated prices.

The hoarding and price gouging offense that Schwarz admits in the plea agreement carries a statutory maximum sentence of one year in federal prison.

Schwarz will receive a an initial appearance in United States District Court, likely in early November.
