This housing requirement is part of every city's General Plan, which serves as the "blueprint" for how the city will grow and develop.

There are seven elements included in the General Plan, which are the following: land use, transportation, conservation, noise, open space, safety, and housing.

Cal High senior awarded $40,000 scholarship

■ Bryant Mendez was one of just 40 students nationwide to receive the College Board Opportunity Scholarship.

WHITTIER - California High School senior Bryant Mendez Melchor is one step closer to fulfilling his dream of attending an elite university after receiving a $40,000 College Board Opportunity Scholarship, awarded to just 25 students from across the country.

Mendez, a high-achieving scholar with a 4.55 GPA, will attend Stanford University and major in computer science. As a firstgeneration American, Mendez's determination to succeed is inspired by his family and a deep compassion for helping others.

"I feel gratified to receive this scholarship," Mendez said. "I have seen the sacrifices my parents have made, allowing me to pursue like my parents did for my family." my education and inspiring me to channel their work ethic to help others. It shows that their hard work has paid off."

Mendez is deeply invested in narrowing the digital divide. He feels that underrepresented communities are not receiving equitable access to technology and wants to use his computer science skills to connect people of color with the resources necessary to build successful lives.

This passion was fueled when Mendez attended Carnegie Mellon University's exclusive Summer Academy for Math and Science in the summer of 2019. Researching the field of computer science, Mendez found that technology companies funnel most of their resources to Western nations and invest very few dollars into developing countries.

"I like programming and computer science, but I realized that there is more that I can do," Mendez said. "Big Tech needs to do a better job of getting into remote areas with few technological resources, learn the culture and provide more equity in tech. The digital divide has motivated me to work towards a more level playing field for underrepresented people."

Mendez's commitment to his studies intensified after his father, who works as a landscaper, became ill in 2019. Working as his father's personal assistant, Mendez observed that in the highincome areas where his father's clients lived, people of color were mainly employed in low-paying service positions. This knowledge motivated Mendez to pursue a higher level of education.

"Working with my father brought us together in many ways," Mendez said. "We are taking similar paths. When he was 18, he immigrated to America to better provide for his family. Now I will travel a long distance to continue my education. I would like to have a family someday as well, and I want to provide for them just

One of Mendez's favorite memories of attending Cal High came as a freshman. When meeting his Spanish teacher, Mendez realized that they came from similar backgrounds, as first-generation Americans from low-income households. The inclusiveness Mendez sees in Cal High staff has been a strong motivator for academic success.

Mendez is a member of Cal High's Top 25, was named a Leadership Enterprise for a Diverse America (LEDA) Scholar in 2020 and was also recognized as a QuestBridge College Prep Scholar.

He has missed the camaraderie of his classmates during distance learning. Although initially worried that school closures would disrupt the college application process, Mendez was accepted to numerous universities, including UC Berkeley, USC, Columbia, and

Biden restored decency in our government

By Mona Charen

Among right-wingers, there has been some delight about polls showing that Joe Biden's popularity at the 100-day mark is the lowest of any president since World War II. Oh, if you exclude Donald Trump. Undaunted by this detail, they note with satisfaction that Biden's approval rating, according to multiple polls, is somewhere between 52 and 57%. At this point in his presidency, Trump's approval was 40%.

Americans were far less partisan in the era of Eisenhower, Reagan, Bush and even Clinton than they are now. Large numbers of Democrats were willing to give high marks to Eisenhower when the economy was thriving, or to George H.W. Bush when we had just won a quick war, and a not insignificant number of Republicans approved of Clinton when we enjoyed balanced budgets and booming markets. But in recent years, negative partisanship has curdled our perceptions. One symptom of negative partisanship is the sharp decline in ticket-splitting. As the Cook Political Report's Amy Walter noted:

"After the 1992 election, for example, there were 103 split-ticket House seats; 53 that voted for George HW Bush and a Democratic member of Congress, and 50 that voted for Bill Clinton and a Republican member of the House ... Post-2020, there are only 17, or just four percent of the in presidential approval ratings went through the roof. Some 80% of Republicans expressed approval for Bush, but only 10% of Democrats agreed, and it was the reverse for Barack Obama.

The same pattern has been apparent in the past year. A Washington Post poll found that 49% of Democrats say the economy is doing well now versus only 18% who said that before the election. Among Republicans, 35% give the economy high marks today compared with 69% in September of 2020. Partisanship similarly colors peoples' perceptions of health care, race relations and other issues.

So, in this environment, Biden's approval ratings are quite an accomplishment. That 33% of Republicans give him high marks for this handling of the coronavirus is a testament to something — maybe reality n sometimes penetrate our epistemic bubbles?

Biden ran on unifying and healing the country. His inaugural address hit all the right notes, and his low-key handling of the office has served to relieve the national migraine that the Trump years caused.

Biden is clearly gambling that putting vaccines in people's arms and deposits in their checking accounts will be enough to transcend whatever kulturkampf the Fox News ecosystem is currently spinning up. And that

On the other hand, since he ran to be a national healer, there are some pitfalls he might want to avoid. Several observers I spoke to cited Biden's race rhetoric, for example, as unhelpful. David French, a conservative who wishes Biden well, recalled that verbal excess on this subject has been a weakness for Biden. In 2012, he told an African American audience that Republicans wanted to "put y'all back in chains." His recent comment on Georgia's election law as "worse than Jim Crow" was ridiculous (though the Georgia law was passed for bad faith reasons and did impose some new burdens while lightening others).

Biden is passionate about racial justice and has included a racial Starting with the presidency of George W. Bush, the partisan divide element in many of his proposals, including clean energy, infrastructure, agriculture and small business loans. His heart is in the right place, but is it politically savvy?

> David Frum, citing a newly published study by Micah English and Joshua Kalla, agrees that toning down the racial appeals is advisable. English and Kalla tested whether pitching reforms as attempts to atone for past discrimination were effective or ineffective, compared with classbased or neutral appeals. Their results showed that couching reforms in the language of racial justice did nothing to increase support for the proposals even among Blacks and Democrats, but did provoke a backlash among Republicans. A class frame, by contrast, increased the likelihood that white voters would see the policy as "benefiting people like me." A class appeal was also linked with more respondents of all subgroups saying the policy was "fair."

There is no denying that racial discrimination has stained American history, but that doesn't mean that explicitly racial appeals are good politics. It wouldn't cost Biden anything to signal openness to Republican ideas. He could incorporate some of Sen. Tim Scott's police reform ideas for example. That might defuse some Republican resentment. (And even if it doesn't pacify Republicans, it's the right thing to do.)

Ben Wittes also stressed to me that the Biden administration should be meeting "on a weekly basis" with Republicans "if only for show." Biden met with a group of Republican senators to discuss the COVID-19 relief bill but has essentially disregarded Republican counteroffers. Negative partisanship may be at a boil, and yet 60% of Americans told The Washington Post that the president ought to be willing to make "major changes" to his proposals to gain Republican support, versus only 30% who thought he should try to push through his legislation as is.

Biden inherited a country on the verge of a nervous breakdown. Whatever criticisms one can lodge about this or that, he deserves our lasting gratitude for restoring decency, normal order and sanity to the business of governing. Whether it will be enough to reverse the slide into chaos remains uncertain, but defusing our deep mutual loathing, to the degree he can, should be a high priority.

The dangers of Biden's spending binge

By Steve Chapman

In his 1996 State of the Union address, President Bill Clinton said: "We know big government does not have all the answers. We know there's not a program for every problem." In short, "The era of big government is

A generation later, President Joe Biden says, in effect, "I've got $6 trillion that say otherwise." That's the combined cost of his COVID-19 relief program, his infrastructure plan and his American Families Plan. This gargantuan sum would come on top of the nearly $4 trillion authorized in 2020 to deal with the pandemic and its economic fallout. Biden is proposing a vast expansion of government programs that would weigh heavily on our economic future.

Most of the spending last year was an appropriate response to a massive emergency. With the life and health of millions of people in jeopardy, and much of the economy gasping for air, our elected leaders had little choice but to put the nation on the equivalent of a wartime footing. It was no time for governmental austerity, which would have been heartless and self-defeating.

The outlays were far bigger than needed, as documented by Larry Summers, who was director of the National Economic Council under President Barack Obama. But it was prudent to err on the side of doing too much in response to the biggest economic crisis since the Great Depression. The profligate approach worked, in that millions of people were spared severe hardship and the economy contracted less than it

In previous decades, such a frenzied spending binge might have infrastructure investment is always in order. generated widespread anxiety, prompting a return to a semblance of budgetary discipline. That was the reaction to Obama's far smaller 2009

But this time, the effect has been to pulverize any sense of limits. If we can spend $4 trillion in an emergency, why not $6 trillion when the emergency has subsided? Amounts that would have choked an elephant two years ago now go down easy.

This insouciance is partly the fault of Republicans, whose 2017 tax "reform" exposed their disdain for fiscal responsibility. It's hard to make a case against trillions in new spending when you've gleefully shoveled out $1.9 trillion in tax cuts. Nor did Trump curb outlays, which were substantially higher under him than they had been under Obama. Trillion-dollar deficits, once unthinkable, became the norm.

The pandemic spurred a new receptiveness to federal initiatives by aggravating problems that had long festered. Among them: lack of access to health insurance, the disproportionate burden of child care on women, the vulnerability of many people to poverty and more. It raised fundamental questions about the role of government that had long been

Some of the reconsideration is entirely justified. So are some of the remedies — particularly, extending federal child tax credits to poor parents who were previously denied a benefit available to higher earners. The expansion of the Affordable Care Act offers a way to broaden health care access without succumbing to a single-payer system. Some

What Biden's plan lacks is any recognition that some tasks deserve priority over others. They are all urgent in his mind. He's taking his cue from Oscar Wilde, who wrote, "Nothing succeeds like excess." His tax plans are supposed to pay for this new spending, but does anyone believe Democrats would downsize their ambitions if revenue projections fall

They are likely to. A report by the Penn Wharton Budget Model found that increasing the tax rate on capital gains to 39.6% from the current 20% would reduce revenue. Over the first decade, Biden's infrastructure package would cost $600 billion more than it would bring in. In the current atmosphere, however, these projections will not dampen the enthusiasm for spending.

Piling up more federal debt may do little harm in the short run, but over time, it's bound to divert funds that would have gone to private investment, to the detriment of the economy. When interest rates rise, the cost of financing that debt — already \$37 $\acute{8}$ billion a year— will soar.

The budgetary binge may also lift inflation to levels that Americans have not seen since the 1980s, if not higher. On this front, Larry Summers warns, "We're taking substantial risks."

Right now, Biden and congressional Democrats have the giddy feeling that there are no limits to what the federal government can do or afford. But limits have a way of reminding us that they exist.

U.S. Navy in the 21st Century

By Austin Bay

In April, the U.S. Navy's Pacific Fleet ran a much-anticipated Fleet battle problem. Arguably, its dull official name, Unmanned Integrated Battle Problem 21, was a touch misleading.

Navy Fleet battle problems have a remarkable history for testing technology, training sailors, developing organizations and informing long-term decisions that have greatly benefited the United States. I'm referring to the 1920s and 1930s battle problems, which always had a trans-oceanic campaign against Japan as their strategic backdrop.

Prescient? Yes. And the battle problems were rigorous in execution and detailed in evaluation.

2021's fleet problem, under wartime-like operational conditions, tested gee-whiz military and communications technology, specifically unmanned warships and unmanned aircraft, some remotely controlled, some autonomously or semi-autonomously controlled. Autonomoustype systems can be classified as robots. They have a degree of "artificial intelligence" to guide the system's ability to maneuver, communicate

Armed robot war machines could and should sound threatening, but as a topic, they are not dull. They are sci-fact, not sci-fi, in the U.S. and in China. Russia has robotic war machines.

As for claiming the name's slightly misleading, I'm nitpicking the unmanned moniker to make a point: The exercise integrated the unmanned gee-whiz with definitely manned warships, manned aircraft, manned land systems and human beings at communications consoles attempting to monitor and coordinate the complex test.

War is a human endeavor, even when robots and AI are involved, and war is the realm of the unexpected. The unexpected requires human

The battle problem ran from April 19 to April 26, a short time span, but I'm guessing the Pentagon will be crunching the data gleaned for Dear Editor: many months, perhaps a couple of years.

Understand I don't mean just digital data and gee-whiz techno videos with missiles blasting target ships. Sailor, aircrew, cyber warrior and other human observer and non-robot participant feedback is critical if the goal of this fleet battle problem is what it should be: creating and deploying the war-winning military capabilities and forces America needs and American taxpayers deserve.

During the exercise, an SM-6 missile fired by the USS John Finn destroyer struck a simulated enemy warship at long range. An MQ-9 Sea Guardian "unmanned aerial vehicle" provided accurate, real-time targeting data that all but insured the bull's-eye.

Great video — but what if the MQ-9 and the destroyer and the missile had faced high-intensity cyber- and electronic interference, of the caliber many analysts think China is capable of generating?

That question relates to this question: Will the 21st-century Navy be as rigorous in evaluating Unmanned Integrated Battle Problem 21 as it was evaluating battle problems in the 1930s? Dr. Albert A. Nofi's book "To Train the Fleet for War" provides an in-depth look at how the Navy conducted its fleet battle problems during another era of enormous technological change, the one between World War I and World War II. In those exercises, the Navy examined planning; battle tactics; air operations (carrier and shore); submarine and antisub ops; communications; cryptology (offensive and defensive, a kind of cyber equivalent); and perhaps the biggest of all, sustainment of a fleet operating at long distances from major naval bases.

In an email, Nofi told me the pre-World War II fleet problems' main purpose "was to practice how to make war at the drop of a hat,' as one admiral put it." In retrospect, input by informed observers was vital. Nofi recommended the Navy "find reporters who are reliable enough to keep their mouths shut if they encounter anything classified, but who know enough about the naval service to report on the problems.'

That sounds like great advice.

I read with interest Alex Dominguez' article, "City could speed up road repairs." (Downey Patriot, 4/22/21). If you would be interested in writing a follow-up article, the following may be of interest.

I was born in Downey in 1958, so I recall when Downey streets were still adequately paved, but it has not been the case for some time. Already back when Downey Ford was still in business, I joked that the reason the city held off on repaving Lakewood Boulevard was to help the Ford dealer sell more off-road vehicles.

I now live near Doty Middle School, and the section of Clancey Avenue near me has been a sore point in the neighborhood for some time. Last year I investigated what could be done about the situation. I spoke with someone at the city engineering department, who referred me to maintenance on Bellflower Blvd., who in turn referred me back to engineering. Finally I got hold of Desi Gutierrez, the Principal Civil Engineer in the Department of Public Works. Mr. Gutierrez was very generous with his time in explaining the situation. Here are some things that I remember from our conversation:

The city hires a company to do a survey of the roads every year, and gives them a rating from 0 to 100. This helps Mr. Gutierrez determine what kind of repairs are necessary. A road with a rating of 50 might need a fresh coat of asphalt, while a road with a rating of 30 might need repaving.

The same company does an estimate of what it would cost to upgrade all of the city's roads to a "passing" grade of 70. The estimate they gave was $10 million a year—for ten years. Given that Measure S was originally billed as a public safety bill, to improve police and fire protection but also roads, I asked Mr. Gutierrez how much the city budgeted. Since I, for one, voted for the bill solely because of the need for street repair, I felt misled.

So if Councilmember Mario Trujillo was truly disturbed by the grading of the city's streets, he either lives in a rare area of Downey, or he hasn't been paying attention. When Clancey was finally repaved early this year, it was the first time it had been in the over 25 years that I have lived in the area. Before that, it was just patches on patches, a familiar condition to Downey residents.

Every time I read in the Patriot about councilmembers boasting about how well Measure S monies were spent, I see red. The police bought a military type vehicle that they "hope that they never need." The library got an expensive makeover but hasn't been open for over a year, and despite having a voicemail message that they will return your call as soon as possible, I haven't had a callback yet, and it's been months. Meanwhile, Downey's streets continue to deteriorate. I was in Morocco a couple of years ago, and they have better pavement

I understand why the city has not prioritized street repair: it is unglamorous, and it lends itself to neither a ribbon-cutting ceremony nor an opportunity to install a plaque with the names of the city councilmembers who advocated for it. Nevertheless, in talking with Downey residents, I have been struck with how many agree that the condition of the streets is the number one problem in the city.

In fact Downey's reputation for poor streets extends far beyond its borders. I have a friend who lives in Lancaster, and when I first mentioned that I lived in Downey, he responded, "I HATE Downey!' When I asked why, he responded that the poor streets, coupled with the lack of parking and traffic enforcement, have led to Downey having some of the worst traffic in Southern California. As a result, when he goes to Orange County, he makes sure that he drives around Downey.

Notice of Availability of the Final Environmental Impact Report (EIR)/ Environmental Assessment (EA) and Finding of No Significant Impact (FONSI) for the I-105 ExpressLanes Project

Why this notice?

This is to inform you that the California Department of Transportation (Caltrans), in cooperation with the Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (Metro), has completed the Final EIR/EA for the Interstate 105 (I-105) ExpressLanes Project in Los Angeles County. The Final EIR/EA identifies Alternative 3 as the Preferred Alternative. Alternative 3 would convert the existing High Occupancy Vehicle lane, from I-405 to Studebaker Road, to two (2) ExpressLanes in each direction by utilizing non-standard lane and shoulder widths, as well as widening. The two ExpressLanes, 11 feet wide each, would be separated from the general-purpose lanes by a 2-foot buffer. The general-purpose lanes would be 11 feet wide for the two (2) inside lanes, and 12 feet wide for the outside lane, except at some segments west and east of the I-105/I-110 Interchange where three (3) standard 12-foot general-purpose lanes are feasible. This alternative would also include a new overhead tolling system and signage, dynamic pricing on the ExpressLanes, and other improvements to the Corridor including soundwalls and auxiliary lanes. The Preferred Alternative would require acquisition of additional right-of-way.

You are also advised that a FONSI under the National Environmental policy Act (NEPA) has been made for this project by Caltrans as assigned by the Federal Highway Administration pursuant to 23 USC 327. A Notice of Determination (NOD) will soon be filed with the State Clearinghouse pursuant to the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA).

What is available?

A copy of the Final EIR/EA with FONSI, which includes responses to comments from agencies, organizations, and individuals on the Draft EIR/EA, can be viewed at metro.net/105expresslanes. Hard copies of the document will be available upon request.

For additional information, contact Dawn Kukla, Environmental Office Chief at (213) 269-1113, via 105ExpressLanes@metro.net or call the project telephone number at (213) 922-6565.

Thank you for your interest in this important transportation project!

CITY OF NORWALK NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING REPORT PREPARED IN CONNECTION WITH THE LEVY OF THE ANNUAL SEWER SERVICE CHARGES FOR FISCAL YEAR 2021/22

Date: Tuesday, May 18, 2021 Time: 6:00 p.m. or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard
Place: Via Videoconference, Norwalk
City Hall, 12700 Norwalk Boulevard,

Norwalk, CA 90650

Project Description: The City Council will conduct a public hearing regarding the report prepared in connection with the levy of the annual sewer service charges. The City of Norwalk annually levies sewer service charges pursuant to Chapter 13.14 of the Norwalk Municipal Code. The City collects the sewer service charges on the tax roll in the same manner, by the same persons, and at the same time as, together with and not separately from, the general taxes of the City. The sewer service charges are levied to pay for the operation and maintenance of the City's sewer system, including capital replacement costs.

The City Council has caused a written report The City Council has caused a written report to be prepared and filed in the office of the City Clerk regarding the City's sewer service charges for Fiscal Year 2021/22. The report contains a description of each parcel of real property regulating sewer services furnished property receiving sewer services furnished

At the public hearing, the City Council will hear and consider all objections or protests to the report. If protests are filed and not withdrawn by the owners of a majority of the properties subject to the sewer service charges, the City Council still may order the charges to be collected, but the charges shall not be collected on the tax roll for Fiscal Year 2021/22. In such case, the City Council will consider the adoption of a resolution at a subsequent City Council meeting providing for an alternative method of collection.

Reverse Mortgages: Your Questions Answered

A Home Equity Conversion Mortgage (HECM), the most common type of reverse mortgage, is a special type of home loan only for homeowners who are 62 and older.

A reverse mortgage loan, like a traditional mortgage, allows homeowners to borrow money using their home as security for the loan. Also like a traditional mortgage, when you take out a reverse mortgage loan, the title to your home remains in your name. However, unlike a traditional mortgage, with a reverse mortgage loan, borrowers don't make monthly mortgage payments. The loan is repaid when the borrower no longer lives in the home. Interest and fees are added to the loan balance each month and the balance grows. With a reverse mortgage loan, homeowners are required to pay property taxes and homeowners insurance, use the property as their principal residence, and keep their house in good condition.

With a reverse mortgage loan, the amount the homeowner owes to the lender goes up-not down-over time. This is because interest and fees are added to the loan balance each month. As your loan balance increases, your home equity decreases.

A reverse mortgage loan is not free money. It is a loan where borrowed money + interest + fees each month = rising loan balance. The homeowners or their heirs will eventually have to pay back the loan, usually by selling the

Watch out for scams related to reverse mortgages

Contractor scams

Beware of contractors who approach you about getting a reverse mortgage loan to pay for repairs to your homes. It may be a scam. Don't let yourself be pressured into getting a reverse mortgage loan.

Scams targeting veterans

The Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) does not offer any reverse mortgage loans. Some mortgage ads falsely promise veterans special deals, imply VA approval, or offer a "nopayment" reverse mortgage loan to attract older Americans desperate to stay in their homes.

You have a three-day right to cancel a reverse mortgage

With most reverse mortgages, you have three business days after the loan closing to cancel the deal for any reason, without penalty. This is known as your right of "rescission."

To cancel, you must notify the lender in writing. Send your letter by certified mail, and ask for a return receipt so that you have documentation of when you sent and when the lender received your cancellation notice. Keep copies of any communications between you and your lender.

After you cancel, the lender has 20 days to return any money you've paid for the financing of the reverse mortgage loan.

If you believe there is a reason to cancel the loan after the threeday period, seek legal help to see if you have the right to cancel.

Note: This information only applies to Home Equity Conversion Mortgages (HECMs), which are the most common type of reverse mortgage loans.

You may have other options

Before taking out a reverse mortgage loan you may want to look at all of your borrowing and housing options such as:

If you take out a reverse mortgage loan when you are too young, you may run out of money when you're older and more likely to have less income and higher health care bills.

Other home equity options

A home equity loan or a home equity line of credit might be a cheaper way to borrow cash against your equity. However, these loans carry their own risks and usually have monthly payments. Qualifying for these loans also depends on your income and credit.

Refinancing

By refinancing your current mortgage with a new traditional mortgage, you may be able to lower your monthly mortgage payments. Pay attention to the length of time you'll have to repay your new mortgage as it can affect your retirement plan. For example, taking on a new 30-year mortgage when you are nearing retirement can become a hardship later. Consider choosing a shorter-term mortgage, such as a 10 or 15 year loan.

Downsizing Consider selling your home. Moving to a more affordable home may be your best option to reduce your overall expenses. Lowering your expenses

There are state and local programs that may provide assistance with utilities and fuel payments as well as home repairs. Many localities also have programs to help with property taxes: check with your county or town tax office. Information about these and other benefit programs is available through the Administration for Community

Can anyone take out a reverse mortgage loan?

No. Home Equity Conversion Mortgages (HECMs), the most common type of reverse mortgage loan, are a special type of home loan only for homeowners who are 62 and older.

Aside from age, there are a few other requirements for taking out a reverse mortgage, including:

Your home must be your principal residence, meaning it must be where you spend the majority of the year

You must either own your home outright or have a low mortgage balance. Owning your home outright means you do not have a mortgage on it anymore. If you have a mortgage balance, you must be able to pay it off when you close on the reverse mortgage. You can use your own funds or money from the reverse mortgage to pay off your existing mortgage balance

You may not be delinquent on any federal debt, such as federal income taxes or federal student loans. You may, however, use funds from the reverse mortgage to pay off this debt

You must agree to set aside a portion of the reverse mortgage funds at your loan closing or have enough of your own money to pay ongoing property charges, including taxes and insurance, as well as maintenance and repair

Your home has to be in good shape. If your house does not meet the required property standards, the lender will tell you what repairs need to be made before you can get a reverse mortgage loan

You must receive counseling from a HUD-approved reverse mortgage counseling agency to discuss your eligibility, the financial implications of the loan, and other alternatives

Ray Reyes

Ray Reyes, former member of Menudo

Ray Reyes, a former member of boy band Menudo, has died. He

His brother, Raül Reyes, confirmed the news on Facebook on Friday. Raül did not give a cause of death.

"It is with great pain in my soul that I confirm the death of my beloved brother, Ray Reyes," Raül wrote in Spanish, sharing a gallery of photos.

"I beg you all for space as we navigate this situation and ask that you please pray for our family, especially my mother who is very delicate. I also ask that you never forget his legacy. Now more than ever, we need to be united. Never stop expressing your love and affection for your fellow human beings."

Ray Reyes was raised in Puerto Rico. He joined Menudo in 1983 and stayed with the group through the height of its success. The band is widely considered one of the biggest Latin boy bands in history.

His first album with the boy band was A Todo Rock, on which he sang lead vocals for three songs: "Si Tu No Estas," "Chicle De Amor," and "Zumbador." Though his first stint with Menudo only lasted two years, it coincided with those of Ricky Martin and Draco Rosa Reyes would end up reuniting with the band several times after he departed, including in 1998 for the group's 15th anniversary.

Patrick O'Connell, created the HIV/AIDS ribbon

Patrick O'Connell, the founding director of Visual AIDS, where he developed programs for HIV/AIDS awareness including the red ribbon, died March 23 of AIDS-related causes at the age of 67.

O'Connell was a member of New York City's gay community in the 1980s, when AIDS was ravaging that community but was rarely talked about elsewhere. The government was largely silent as the then-misunderstood disease killed many.

O'Connell co-founded Visual AIDS with a goal of creating awareness campaigns to encourage people to discuss AIDS and understand its impact. As one of the campaigns, he spearheaded the Ribbon Project, organizing "ribbon bees" where participants folded red ribbons into the now-common loop shape.

Wanting to make a big impact with the Ribbon Project, O'Connell lobbied their Broadway connections to wear the ribbons on the 1991 Tony Awards broadcast. It was a success, and the ribbons were worn by Broadway celebrities that night and soon began spreading around the country.

The red AIDS awareness ribbons were the first of the awareness ribbons that now come in all the colors of the rainbow to represent different diseases and conditions.

O'Connell and Visual AIDS created other awareness campaigns as well. In Day Without Art, museums remove or shroud their artworks and replace them with information about HIV and safer sex. And their Night Without Light saw the New York City skyline go dark for 15 minutes on World AIDS Day as a statement on the disease's impact.

"People want to say something, not necessarily with anger and confrontation all the time," O'Connell told the New York Times in 2002. "This allows them. And even if it is only an easy first step, that's great with me. It won't be their last."

Bobby Unser, three-time Indy 500 winner

Bobby Unser, a racecar driver who was one of only 10 drivers to win the Indianapolis 500 three times, died May 2 of natural causes at the age of 87.

Unser was a member of the Unser family of racing drivers, who have a record nine Indy 500 wins between them. He began racing as a young man alongside his brothers, Al (who won the Indy 500 four times), Jerry, and Louis Unser. His son Robby and nephews Al Jr. and Johnny Unser are racing drivers as well.

Unser's winning career began at the Pike's Peak Hill Climb, a challenging race that he won his second time out, in 1956. He would go on to win another 12 times at Pike's Peak, as well as setting many course records.

Unser first raced in the Indianapolis 500 in 1963, though an early crash kept him from glory. He would first win the Indy 500 in 1967, when he became the first driver to exceed 170 miles per hour there.

Unser won Indy again in 1975 and 1981, making him one of only two drivers to win the famed race in three different decades. His 1981 win was a controversial one in which he was stripped of his title after review of a caution; he contested the result and later got his win back. The incident led Unser to retire from racing.

After his retirement, Unser became a commentator for Indy car races, working for ESPN as well as NBC and ABC. He also provided commentary for a number of NASCAR races. He is a member of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Hall of Fame, International Motorsports Hall of Fame, and Motorsports Hall of Fame of America.

"I look back at my career and go Wow," Unser said in 2010. "I had a lot of bad years, a lot of lean years climbing that long ladder but once I got into it, somehow the good Lord found good race cars."

Johnny Crawford, actor and original Mouseketeer

Johnny Crawford, an actor best known for his role as young Mark McCain on "The Rifleman, died April 29 at the age of 75.

Crawford got his start in Hollywood as one of the original Mouseketeers on "The Mickey Mouse Club" for its first season in 1955, when he was just nine years old. After that season, producers cut the number of Mouseketeers in half, and Crawford didn't return.

He landed a starring role on "The Rifleman" in 1958, playing the son of title character Lucas McCain. Crawford was nominated for an Emmy Award for his performance when he was 13.

While he starred on "The Rifleman," Crawford also began a musical career, recording pop hits including "Cindy's Birthday" and "Rumors." He went on to make appearances on TV shows including "The Donna Reed Show," "Mister Ed," and "The Big Valley," as well as in the movies "Indian Paint" and "The Naked Ape."

He was a U.S. Army veteran during the 1960s. Later in life, Crawford was the bandleader of the Johnny Crawford Orchestra.

"I went on the audition and I did a tapdance routine with my brother, and we also did a fencing routine," Crawford said of his Mickey Mouse Club audition.
"Then they asked if we had anything else we could do. My grandmother told me to tell them that I imitated '50s singer Johnny Ray. I stepped forward and did my imitation of him singing 'Cry' and that was what got me into the Mouseketeers."

Olympia Dukakis, actress who starred in 'Mooonstruck'

Olympia Dukakis, an actress who was known for her role as Cher's mother in "Moonstruck," died May 1 at her home in Manhattan at the age of 89.

Dukakis won an Oscar and a Golden Globe for her performance in "Moonstruck" (1987), her first major film role. But she was already an established stage actress when she played Rose Castorini.

Dukakis won an Obie Award in 1963 for "Man Equals Man" and co-founded the Whole Theater Company in 1973. She went on to memorable roles in movies including "Steel Magnolias" (1989), "Look Who's Talking" (1989) and its sequels, and "Mr. Holland's Opus" (1995).

On TV, she played Dolly Sinatra, Frank Sinatra's mother, in the 1992 miniseries "Sinatra." Dukakis was also a star of the four "Tales of the City" miniseries, playing Anna Madrigal and earning an Emmy nomination for 1998's "More Tales of the City."

She was the cousin of former Massachusetts governor and presidential nominee Michael Dukakis.

"Growing up I was always feeling like an outsider, being Greek in communities that were not very ethnic," she said in 2007. "I felt like an outsider in the Greek community, too, because women were expected to behave and socialize in a certain way, and I didn't. Also being an actor I felt like an outsider, because not many Greek American women were actors then. But once you realize that you are an outsider, there can be a freedom in that. You can find your own way."

Billie Hayes, played villian on children's show

Billie Hayes, an actress best known for playing Witchiepoo, the villain of the cult classic children's show "H.R. Pufnstuf," died April 29 at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center in Los Angeles of natural causes at the age of 96.

Hayes' Witchiepoo became one of the most beloved villains of children's TV as she rode her Vroom Broom around Living Island and tried to steal Freddy the Flute. She played Witchiepoo again in the movie "Pufnstuf."

Before her role on 1969's "H.R. Pufnstuf," Hayes had a successful Broadway career, including playing Mammy Yokum in the musical "Lil Abner." She reprised the role for the 1959 movie adaptation and 1971 TV special.

Hayes also did voice work for animated movies and TV shows including "The Black Cauldron," "Rugrats," "The New Scooby-Doo Mysteries," and "The Powerpuff Girls."

"Oh, I love that fan mail,"
Hayes said in 1969. "I'm the Ann Landers of the witch world — I am. The kids write me and I don't know why they pick the witch to write to unless they figure, you know, 'Either she's so dumb she'll give ya a funny answer,' or 'She's so smart I'll get out of trouble,' right?... What a feeling of power."

At Rio Hondo, speech and debate students enjoy transfer success

Río Hondo College second-year student John Connell participates in the IPDA National Championship, held virtually from April 9 to 11. The Forensics Speech and Debate program has a transfer rate of more than 90%, with students moving on to universities such as UC Berkeley and USC.

Río Hondo College Forensics Speech and Debate team Vice President Ashley Sanchez prepares for a debate during the IPDA National Championship, held virtually on April 9-11. Sanchez, who plans to transfer to a four-year university, credits the Forensics program for having her work evaluated by university coaches and recruiters.

WHITTIER – Río Hondo College's Forensics Speech and Debate team provides students with a pathway to four-year universities through rigorous instruction, competition experience, networking, and world-class instructors, which include Río Hondo College alumni.

With a transfer rate of more than 90%, the Forensics program has seen members move on to universities such as UC Berkeley, UCLA, USC, and Concordia. Forensics Coordinator Grant Tovmasian feels the opportunities for students to meet their higher education goals has never been better.

"I am very impressed with the learning that is taking place," Tovmasian said. "Forensics gives our first-generation students the tools to speak for themselves and build their futures. They receive economic benefits in the form of scholarship opportunities. The critical thinking component in debate teaches our students to listen, understand and respect, and be respected by their peers."

One of the advantages of Río Hondo College's Forensics team is its readiness to compete at the local, state, and national levels. A full schedule of tournaments, including more than a dozen during the 2020–21 school year, help students to hone their skills against top competitors and have their work evaluated by university coaches and recruiters.

Ashley Sanchez said the program is also a perfect way to network with representatives from four-year universities. At a recent competition, Sanchez met a debate coach from UC San Diego and hopes to transfer to the school to study communications.

"Río Hondo College's Forensics Speech and Debate program is amazing," Sanchez said. "I have learned so much about researching and presenting my arguments. It has made me a better and more confident student."

Río Hondo College Speech Professor Patricia Hughes began coaching the debate team when she was still a Río Hondo College student, continuing with the program as she completed her master's degree at Cal State Fullerton. Hughes' experience and knowledge of the Río Hondo College system provides a bridge to her students that is invaluable in their training.

"At Río Hondo College we stress individuality and welcome all students who have a desire to grow and learn, no matter what their experience is," Hughes said. "As a Río Hondo College alumna, I can relate to our students and that helps me foster their growth."

For Hughes, the three main components of debate are training, listening and confidence. A student must know how to structure an argument, they must listen to their opponent to identify weaknesses and focus on key points, and they must present their argument with complete self-assurance.

"Río Hondo College's Forensics Speech and Debate program provides our students with opportunities to enrich the quality of their lives and become leaders in their communities," Superintendent/President Teresa Dreyfuss said. "This innovative program benefits those who are looking towards careers in public speaking and advocacy, as well as those who want to challenge themselves and expand their academic capabilities."

Planning board to handle appeals

NORWALK – Norwalk's Planning Commission will now also serve as its Housing and Building Local Appeals Board as well, handling appeals of orders, decisions, and determinations made relative to housing and building construction matters.

Previously, the city employed a contracted single-hearing officer to hear and decide appeals of orders, decisions, and determinations made relative to housing and building construction matters, including appeals related to code enforcement and the issuance of administrative citations.

The council's recent decision fills a California Housing Code requirement while effectively making the Planning Commission a "onestop shop" for land use appeals, rather than appointing a new body that may meet infrequently.

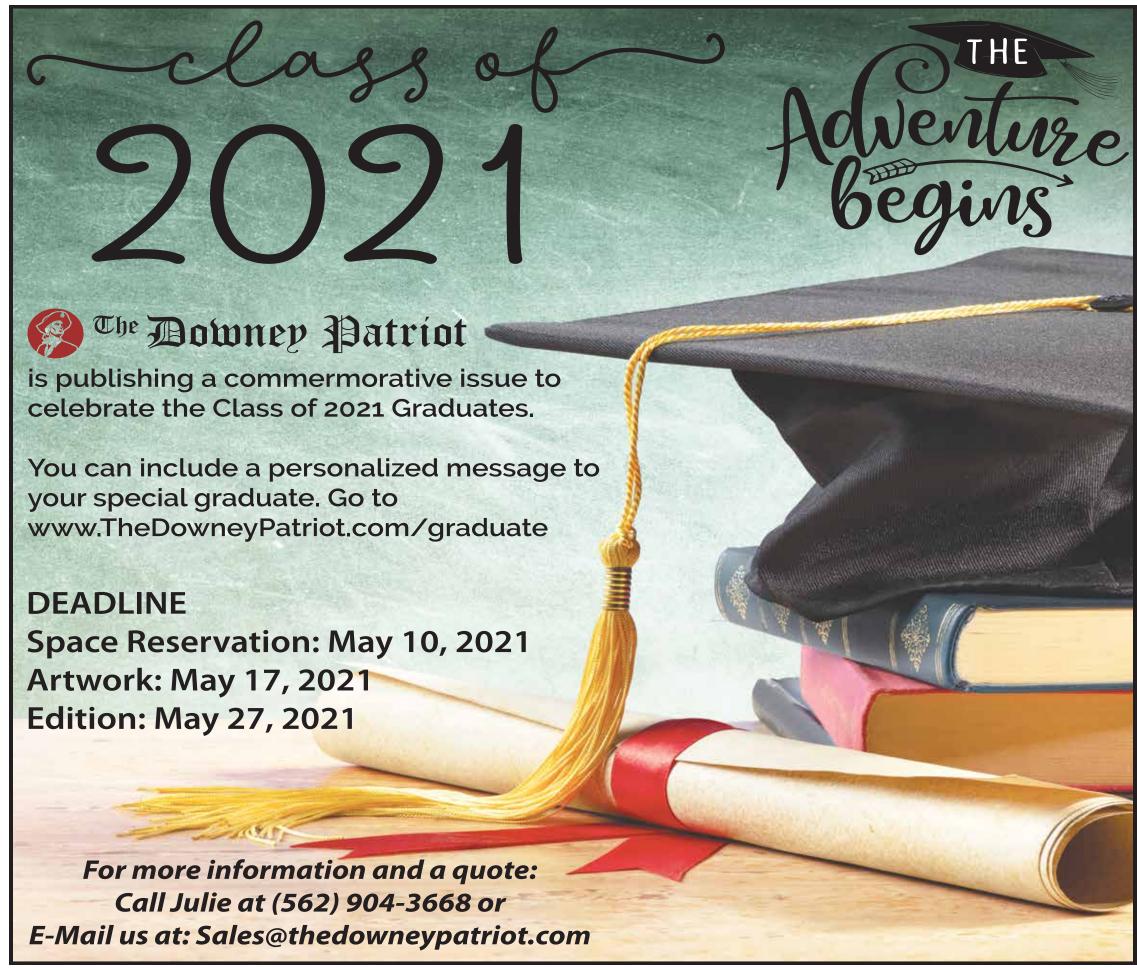

According to city staff, the types of appeal hearings handled by a housing and building local appeals board happen infrequently, having only had four in the last three years.

The City Council approved the decision unanimously.

Bellflower outscored Lancers to end the half, but Williams put an exclamation point on the first half with a long threepointer in the last few seconds.

Oronoz added to Mead's observations of the studentathletes at the school.

"One of our staples is not to stray from adversity," he said. "It's been three years on the road without a home game. I respect the kids that have stuck around. "Thank you to both John Glenn and Norwalk for helping us with gym time," she said. "This year has been extremely tough with the change in the CIF schedule and the fact that basketball, boys volleyball and wrestling are happening simultaneously.
