Norwalk condemns Gascón in vote

 Norwalk joins 19 other cities in declaring no confidence in the L.A. County District Attorney.

NORWALK Norwalk has become the latest city to adopt a resolution declaring no confidence in Los Angeles County District Attorney George Gascón.

Gascón has vowed to put an end to the death penalty in LA County, trying juveniles as adults and eliminate all special allegations, enhancement which would make about 20,000 inmates eligible for resentencing consideration.

In its vote June 22, Norwalk joined 16 other cities that have issued votes of "no confidence" in Gascón, who was elected last November after defeating incumbent DA Jackie Lacey.

"Effective policing necessary in order to is maintain the rule of law in the community," the city of Norwalk said in a statement. "Effective prosecution is necessary in order to ensure that law enforcement actions are necessary and appropriate, while also providing accountability for victims as well as serving as a deterrent for future criminal activity."

Efforts are underway to recall Gascón. Recall supporters have accused Gascón, who ran on a vow to shake up the nation's prosecutor's office, largest for prioritizing criminals over victims since he took office in December.

 Voters will select two school board members next week, and both students and parents say change is necessary.

NORWALK – Norwalk-La Mirada Unified School District parents and students gathered at a meet-and-greet for school board candidate Dr. Robert Cancio on July 5 to discuss what changes they expect from the new school board after the election.

The school board election is on July 20, and five candidates are running for the two seats available. Each candidate available. has promised to make big improvements in the district, but students discussed what improvements they would like to see from the school board.

• The rise in annual inflation is the highest since 2008, resulting in higher prices on everything from cars to groceries.

Prices across the nation are increasing at their fastest pace since 2008, and it's unclear when they'll level off.

Labor The Department reported Tuesday that annual inflation was 5.4 percent from June 2020 to June 2021, the steepest increase since the yearlong period ending August 2008, the middle of the Great Recession.

"There's just this big log jam as the world is reopening and producing, pipelines and supply lines can't catch up," said Lynn Reaser, chief economist at Point Loma Nazarene University.

Used car prices made up for most of the gain, but so did everyday purchases:

Gas prices are up 45 percent in the last year, apparel is up 4.9 percent, food at restaurants is up 4.2 percent, and electricity is up 3.8 percent.

Typically, the Federal Reserve wants to see 2 percent inflation.

The Biden Administration expects inflation to level off as the reopening continues, but it's unclear how long that will take. Reaser said if nothing changes in the next 5 to 6 months, concerns could grow - potentially meaning an increase to interest rates.

"The economic benefits of immigration reform are significant and well-established. Immigrants boost the nation's capacity for innovation, entrepreneurship, and technological change, create about one-fourth of new businesses, and represent about one-fifth of the total labor force,' the Congress members wrote.

"Unfortunately, our immigration laws have not been updated in more than 30 years. This has kept families apart for decades, limited our ability to attract and retain top talent, and forced millions to live their lives in a perpetual state of uncertainty... Updating our immigration system and creating an earned path to citizenship is essential to speeding our recovery from the COVID-19 pandemic and ensuring a prosperous economic future for America."

The U.S. Citizenship Act would provide millions of undocumented immigrants with a pathway to citizenship, including Dreamers, Temporary Protective Status (TPS) and Deferred Enforced Departure (DED) recipients; and prioritize family reunification and keeping families together.

The bill would also equip the country "to responsibly and effectively manage the border with smart and effective investments, address root causes of migration that force people to leave Central America, and restore the United States' commitment to human rights.'

L.A. County reconsiders ban on commercial cannabis

■ County leaders appear likely to reverse its ban on commercial marijuana.

LOS ANGELES - The Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors voted this week to support a proposal by Los Angeles County Supervisor Janice Hahn to reconsider the current ban on commercial cannabis production and distribution in unincorporated areas of Los Angeles County.

"It has been three long years since we decided to keep the cannabis ban in place in the unincorporated area and a lot has changed," said Hahn, who authored the motion Tuesday.

"We've seen how legalization has played out in cities in our own county and we have seen states across the country move in the direction of legalizing, taxing, and regulating cannabis. It may be time for us to join them."

Shortly after the passage of Proposition 64, the "Adult Use of Marijuana Act," the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors enacted a ban on the commercial production and distribution of cannabis in unincorporated areas of the county.

The ban was intended to be the temporary until the county could develop and establish proper regulations.

The Board established the Office of Cannabis Management which convened a Working Group on Cannabis Regulation to develop recommendations for the board to consider.

After conducting community outreach and eight public convenings, the Working Group presented a report to the Board of Supervisors with 64 recommendations.

However, in June 2018, the Board of Supervisors chose to accept the report but not take any action to remove the cannabis ban.

At the time, Hahn said the intention was not to rush the issue and felt there were too many unanswered questions and uncertainties

In the three years since then, Management much has changed and evolved in the area of cannabis legalization, county officials said. Multiple additional states have legalized recreational cannabis and the county's two largest cities, Los Angeles and Long Beach, are now allowing commercial cannabis.

Help is on the way with the expanded Child Tax Credit

By Rep. Lucille Roybal-Allard

Thankfully, since President Joe Biden was sworn into office in January, more than three million jobs have been created and unemployment claims have been drastically reduced. With over 150 million Americans now fully vaccinated against COVID-19, and more than 330 million shots administered nationwide, we are beginning to return to our life as we knew it. And I'm thrilled to report even more help is here as we continue to Build Back Better for the American people.

Thanks to the passage of President Biden's American Rescue Plan, which I proudly voted to support, as of July 15 and through the remainder of 2021, nearly all hardworking families with children will have begun to receive monthly Child Tax Credit payments of up to $250 per month per child ages 6-17 and up to $300 per month for every young child under 6 years old.

In our 40th Congressional District, that means 55,400 households will receive an average benefit of $3,400. This benefit will cover a stunning 96.3%, or 204,000 of our District's children, lift 26,600 children out of poverty, including 8,700 children under the age of six, and lift 9,600 children out of deep poverty.

I am proud that the basis for expanding the Child Tax Credit in the American Rescue Plan was a study by the National Academy of Science (NAS) I commissioned with my colleague Rep. Barbara Lee (CA-13) as part of our years of work to address child poverty. This study found that payments with no further action required. an expanded Child Tax Credit would be an integral solution for reducing child poverty nationwide.

The NAS study gave my colleague Rep. Rosa DeLauro's (CT-3) Child Tax Credit bill, which she has worked on for years, the credibility it needed to be included in the American Rescue Plan (ARP)

As a mother and grandmother who has met with so many parents in our district struggling to make ends meet and provide for their children, I'm elated that these historic changes in the expanded Child Tax Credit will now offer a lifeline to them and most working- and middle-class families throughout our nation.

The expanded Child Tax Credit will put badly needed dollars in the pockets of families for food, childcare, gas to get to work, and other necessities they need to ensure their children can have a healthier and brighter future.

An important fact: the Child Tax Credit is designed to be nontaxable income - so it will not impact a family's eligibility for benefits like Medicaid, SNAP/Food Stamps, TANF, and others.

Who qualifies for the credit? Nearly all families who filed tax returns Lucille Roybal-Allard is a Congresswoman representing California's District in 2019 or 2020 with one or more children ages birth to 17, or who signed up to receive a relief payment from the IRS, will automatically receive Families who were not required to file a tax return for 2020 and who qualify for the credit must go online and use the IRS Child Tax Credit Non-Filer Sign Up Tool, available at https://www.irs.gov/creditsdeductions/child-tax-credit-non-filer-sign-up-tool. If this applies to you, I encourage you to sign up today.

I'm also excited that in addition to the expanded Child Tax Credit, even more help is on the way as we continue to Build Back Better by passing President Biden's legislation to create jobs, grow our economy, and build a stronger, safer, and more prosperous America for everyone.

However, everyone must be vaccinated if our nation is to recover fully from the devastating COVID-19 pandemic, especially with the threat of the new and more dangerous Delta variant and others. If you have not already done so, I strongly encourage you to get vaccinated - not only to help prevent the spread of the deadly COVID virus and its variants, but to protect yourself, your family, and your friends.

May you and yours stay safe and healthy. Please know you can always count on me to work on your behalf in Washington, D.C.

The day Cubans lost their fear

By Javier Corrales

Cubans unexpectedly took to the streets on Sunday. Tens of thousands were chanting for freedom and food. It is hard to imagine a more succinct diagnosis of the problem with Latin America's oldest dictatorship.

For more than six decades, the Cuban regime has denied its people the basic building blocks of the human spirit and body. Of course, the U.S. embargo that's been in place nearly as long doesn't help. Government restrictions on the tiny private sector hurt Cubans even more. Businesses, including grocery stores and restaurants, are barred from taking out bank loans or engaging in trade. Food has always been rationed, and now with the pandemic, restrictions are even stricter.

While the complaints are not new, there was something new about Sunday's demonstrations: their spread.

The protests broke out en masse, spontaneously, across the country, including in rural towns.

In the past, protests were limited to small groups, mostly in the capital, Havana. Ordinary Cubans, even those who were angry, knew better than to get too close to protesters — physically or politically. Any expression of solidarity with any form of dissent is just too risky. Losing your job is common. Getting arrested is typical.

On Sunday, however, it seemed that this collective "fear of joining" vanished. Solidarity trumped Cuba's fend-for-yourself mentality.

The government responded as it has with previous protests, with a call for "battle." The president, Miguel Díaz-Canel, sent out security forces to quash the protests. He also called on Communist citizens to "defend" the revolution.

The closest thing to Sunday's protests Cuba had experienced in the recent past was the "Maleconazo" of 1994, when hundreds of Cubans gathered in Havana's famous seaside esplanade, the Malecón, to protest the economic depression known as the "special period."

The triggers behind the two protests are similar. Today, as in 1994, Cuba is suffering because of upheaval in its main financial supporter and upplier of oil — the former Soviet Union back then; Venezuela since 2016. Power failures are as common today as they were in the early 1990s. Today, as in 1994, the country has endured a five-year-long economic contraction.

In addition, a year before the Maleconazo, the Cuban state announced market-oriented reforms that were too limited, so most Cubans could not benefit from them. In early 2021, the Cuban regime introduced additional changes — and once again, they were too timid and benefited only wellconnected Cubans. By now, Cubans know these measures mean that a few privileged people will make money while the rest will get nothing.

But Sunday's protests happened in a vastly different Cuba from the Cuba of the 1990s. Cellphones and Wi-Fi are now available. Cubans were able to share in real time the demonstrations breaking out across the country

The first protest erupted in the city of San Antonio de los Baños, near Havana. Protesters posted videos on Facebook Live, including clips of how security forces were trying to quell the demonstrations. That's when protests exploded in towns and cities across the island. Ordinary Cubans, nany of whom tend to be apolitical, apparently decided to join.

The government couldn't block the videos on Facebook Live, so it blocked access to social media sites. Nonetheless, the protests continue.

Another difference is the pandemic. In Cuba, the coronavirus outbreak unmasked the decay of the public health system, with too few hospital beds and too many doctors abroad, often against their will, working for the state's medical missions. Some 26.4 percent of the population has been vaccinated

Cubans may also be feeling braver now that the much-feared Castro brothers are gone: Fidel Castro died in 2016 and his brother Raúl fully retired from leadership positions in April. Or maybe, the risks are still the same, but Cubans are feeling a bit more emboldened.

They may also be drawing inspiration from Latin America, where protests have exploded since 2019. Closer to home, the San Isidro Movement, a group of artists with a strong Afro-descendant representation, has been protesting since late last year against the state's crackdown on artistic freedoms.

That movement gave rise to a Cuban hip-hop song called "Patria y Vida," or "Homeland and Life," a play on Fidel Castro's slogan "Homeland or Death." With more than four million views on YouTube, the song has emerged as the rallying cry of the demonstrations, not just in Cuba but around Latin America and in Spain and the United States. Whether the inspiration is international or local, there is new courage and hopefulness in the air.

Is the regime in danger? Hardly. The government has perfected, and indeed exported, the art of Communist repression to great effect. It is a combination of Soviet-modeled security forces, vigilante neighborhood committees and government-sponsored thugs disguised as civilians.

Sunday's protests nonetheless may be a turning point. In the past, the regime needed only to apply repression surgically. Fear was pervasive and kept everyone at home.

But as so many Cubans chanted on Sunday, "We are no longer afraid."

It's too early to tell what happens next. More arrests and intimidation will likely follow in the coming days, and the protests' energy may dissipate.

Still, the protesters have spoken loud and clear. With more freedoms they can build a stronger nation; with more food, they can survive and lead healthier lives. "Patria y vida," that's all they want.

Yes on school choice but

Our two Americas

with parental involvement

By Larry Elder

Question my sanity, but I'm considering running in this election to recall California's Democratic Gov. Gavin Newsom. Here's a big reason why

No one doubts that bad K-12 public school teachers exist. There is a phenomenon known as the "turkey trot," in which bad teachers wind up in the worst schools.

Why? There is a connection between bad schools and lack of parental involvement. When you have strong parental involvement, parents pressure their schools to remove such teachers. Because of strong, protective teachers unions, these teachers are rarely fired, merely shuffled from school to school, until they land in one where few parents complain.

And while the vast majority of teachers do not fall into that "bad" category, look at where public school teachers send their own schoolage children. Nationwide, approximately 10% of kids attend private school. Six percent of Black kids do so. But more than 20% of public school teachers send their own kids to private schools.

A 2004 study by the Fordham Institute found that 44% of Philadelphia public school teachers send their kids to private schools. In Cincinnati and Chicago, 41% and 39% of public school teachers, respectively, put their own school-age children in private school.

In Baltimore, in 2017, there were 13 public high schools where 0% of students could do math at grade level, with another half a dozen Baltimore public high schools where only 1% could do so.

So, it is hardly a surprise that Fordham's study found 35% of Baltimore public school teachers with school-age kids placed them in private school. In San Francisco it was 34%, and New York-Northeastern New Jersey was 33%. In Los Angeles, nearly 25% of public school teachers sent their kids to private school, versus 16% of Angelenos who did so.

For this reason, school choice has never polled higher. A June 2021 RealClear Opinion Research poll found support for school choice at 74% among registered voters. This includes 83% of Republicans, 69% of independents and 70% of Democrats who strongly or somewhat support school choice. In April 2020, support for choice was 64%.

Tommy Schultz, CEO of the American Federation for Children, said: "Public support for school choice is at an all-time high. And, as the nation recovers from unprecedented, nationwide school closures, a new story is unfolding. Parents are rising up and demanding the freedom to choose the best educational environment for their children. ... Already in 2021, seventeen states have passed legislation to improve, expand, or create new school choice programs."

School choice is not a panacea, especially without strong parental involvement. Studies show that Black kids spend less time doing homework than Hispanic kids, less time on homework than white kids and much less time on homework than Asian American kids.

Economist Walter Williams told me, "If you don't have someone in your household to make sure that you do your homework and to insist that you go to bed on time, the school you attend will not make a whole lot of difference.'

When I was in elementary and middle school, several classmates were Asian American, most of Chinese or Japanese descent. They all told me the same thing. If they got a B — they rarely got a grade lower than that — their parents told them they did not work hard enough. If they got an A, their parents told them the test was too easy. Their parents did not accept the notion often heard from my Black classmates, that so-and-so is "just not good in math." The parents of my Asian American classmates believed that in academics, as athletic coaches say, "Hard work beats talent when talent doesn't work hard."

School choice benefits children of parents who preach that education and hard work are key to upward mobility. School choice will be of little benefit to the kids of parents who do not.

Please let me know your thoughts about my possible candidacy at LarryAElder@gmail.com. We've got a state to save.

Saturday night in Branson, Missouri, and Manhattan, New York, was a time of summer celebration. People were jamming in restaurants and out to hear music with few wearing masks. Both places were in a partying mood to celebrate what appeared to be the end of the COVID-19 pandemic.

But there was a big difference: The virus scourge was winding down in Manhattan but exploding in Branson, a lively center of Ozark tourism. In Manhattan, 65% of the residents are fully vaccinated. In Greene County, just north of Branson and home to the area's major medical centers, only 39% are. Branson's mayor ran against mask mandates.

Hospitals there are alarmed at the waves of COVID-19 patients, forcing them to borrow ventilators and beg respiratory therapists to come and help. Mercy Hospital reports that 95% of COVID-19 hospitalizations are people who had not gotten their shots. The highly contagious delta variant is driving the rise of cases.

We have two countries, one of spreading sickness and with a slower economic recovery, the other of communal action against a potentially deadly disease and a relatively healthy reopening. About 66% of New York state residents are fully vaccinated. Missouri's vaccination rate is under 50%. In Louisiana, it's 45%, and in Mississippi and Alabama, a pathetic notch above 40%. In contrast, 76% of Vermont adults have had their shots.

Outside the big cities, Missouri is very much Trump country. The Kaiser Family Foundation reports that only 35% of the people in counties that voted for Donald Trump are vaccinated, versus nearly 47% in counties that went for Joe Biden. (It's thus not surprising that Staten Island, the only New York City borough to vote for Trump, has some of the highest infection rates in the city.)

And the Biden county vaccination numbers would be undoubtedly higher had they not included large Black and immigrant populations that are "hesitant" (the polite term) to take the vaccine. In parts of Central Brooklyn, for example, where many Caribbean immigrants worry without scientific evidence — that the vaccine will hurt fertility, only one-third have gotten all their shots.

There is a habit among woke journalists to attribute the higher sickness rates to racism, but the reality is more complicated. In truth, rural whites in Trump Country have joined many poor people of color in fear of the vaccine or simple resistance to following informed advice.

Since it is the former president's game to bash the Biden administration's efforts to get the population immunized, the rightwingers on Fox News are talking up the virtually nonexistent dangers of the vaccines. Never mind that Donald and Melania Trump were near the front of the line for their shots way back in January. And Fox News mogul Rupert Murdoch got his the month before, even beating out Queen Elizabeth. But neither Trump nor Murdoch's Fox flunkies will go ahead and recommend vaccination. (And, by the way, no one has to get one.)

In response to the orange deity's refusal to advocate getting the shots, Trumpster Marc Thiessen suggests applying some child psychology to his followers. "If Biden wants to convince the vaccine hesitant," reads the headline on his Washington Post column, "give Trump credit for the vaccines."

Economists are now fretting that the spread of coronavirus variants in countries with low vaccination rates is threatening the global economy. "Essentially, the world is facing a two-track recovery," Kristalina Georgieva, the managing director of the International Monetary Fund, recently told the Group of 20 nations.

And face it; so is the United States. The vaccinated half is moving forward, and the unvaccinated half is falling behind. What a strange place we've become.

At Biola, women's water polo prepares for historic premiere

• The team is nearly ready for coach Sarah Orozco for a January 2022 start.

By John M. Sherrard Contributor

LA MIRADA - In the year 2022, it will be a new beginning for the Biola University women's water polo program.

First year coach Sarah Orozco, hired officially in May 2020, hit the ground running last summer and a year later the UCLA grad has 20 players set to help usher in a new era at the La Mirada campus.

Orozco, who comes to Biola after spending the 2016-2020 seasons as the assistant coach at Azusa Pacific University and won a national championship with the Bruins in 2008-09 season, is still aiming to sign three more players to the squad.

In addition to the women's team, Biola has also added a men's team, which will begin play this fall under the direction of coach Rick Nordell along with new assistant coach and Sarah Orozco's brother, Salvador Orozco

With the addition of the men's and women's teams, Biola now has 18 varsity sports. 2021 marked the transition into NCAA DII for the university, which was a three-year process.

The following are the steps the university took to transition into DII and the approval of the two new sports:

1. First step of approving the proposal of Men's and Women's Water Polo: July 2019 - the President's Cabinet at Biola University approved a proposal for the athletic department to sponsor both men and women's water polo beginning with the 2021-22 school year.

"Adding men's and women's water polo programs is a great fit for the direction of Athletics at Biola University," Senior Director of Athletics Dr. Bethany Miller said.

2. Biola hires Sarah Orozco and Rick Nordell as women's and men's water polo coaches, ectively: May 2020 Athletics announces the hiring of UCLA graduate Sarah Orozco as its first head coach. Rick Nordell, who has been the coach at Golden West High School in Visalia for 26 years, led his team to back-to-back CIF titles in 2014-15 3. Announcement of DII competition: July 2020 - Dr. Barry H. Corey, President of Biola University, received a phone call from leadership at the NCAA, informing the institution that it's officially been granted full membership into NCAA Division II.

Women's Water Polo for membership in the conference beginning in 2021-22.

The WWPA was founded in 1981 as a men's water polo conference featuring NCAA Division I and III teams. The women's group was launched in 1999 and began sending teams to the national championships in 2001.

"I'm still recruiting and need three more players," said Orozco, who was also a four-year varsity water polo and swimming letter winner at Montebello High School. "That is the goal."

The first signee for Orozco was goalkeeper Damaris Kientz, who is a freshman from Abbotsford, British Columbia, Canada.

Orozco, who assisted at APU for four years prior to her Biola hiring, had first seen Kientz when she came on her official visit as a junior in high school.

Kientz graduated this year and APU didn't need a goalie and the timing was just right for her to sign with Biola.

"Once I had the first nine or 10 players, then I had a good feeling about the team," she said. "I thought, wow, this is awesome and no one is even playing yet."

There were other issues still to be taken care of, such as equipment, water polo balls, goals, etc. "Coach [Nordell] and I were involved in the ordering.

However, one important item was missing and still is - an assistant. "I'm on the search right now for an assistant," Orozco added.

Because of the pandemic, it wasn't possible to get an assistant hired.

She added, "my brother is working and getting on board with the men's team and that's exciting that he is coming here to Biola

As for the schedule, Orozco is involved with the games to be played.

"I try not to get too excited yet," she said. "It's exciting getting into tournaments. I don't know their talent vet as a team, but I want them in higher tournaments.

What excites me is the scheduling of games."

and loved it. I started at age nine and played in their youth program.

"I'm very excited to play on Biola and a Christian team and feel very honored that Biola has allowed me to play for them on their very first team.'

Thoennes was among five players that gathered for a photo session and actually was the first time anyone had met. They gathered at Splash Aquatic Center, which is the home pool for both teams.

"It's really nice to finally have them together after recruiting them and meet some of them in person," Orozco said. "I was getting to know them through video and FaceTime. It was pretty exciting to finally get to see a few of them.

"But there is still a while before I get to see all of them, but the date is getting closer. I'm excited about that."

and more amazing to come here (Biola). We're building together and learning and setting goals for the future people to come in (and play). It's just a beautiful campus as well.

"I think it's going to be an amazing opportunity for me to get to know people from everywhere. At the end of the day, I just want it to be a family on the team. I think it's going to be a fresh new start for evervone.'

Hanna Jordan, graduate student: "I'm just excited for the opportunity to try and build something and see what it will turn into. The fact that it's new is kind of exciting, versus kind of walking on to a team that's already established. I'm going to be here for a year and I thought it'd be kind of cool to get the opportunity to start something.

"This was the best opportunity for me and my emic career and w at right now. It made the most sense for me.

This notification ends Biola's three-year membership transition process and comes four-and-a-half years after university leadership first identified the need to rise from NAIA to NCAA Division II. This announcement of full membership comes more than 10 years after Biola's Board of Trustees first began considering a shift in the Eagles' national athletic affiliation.

4. Official announcement of conference affiliation: December 2020 - The Western Water Polo Association (WWPA) Executive Committee unanimously approved Biola Men's and

As for her first official job as a head coach, Orozco turned to some of the coaches on the Biola campus to help with the recruiting process and received a great response.

"I needed to figure how to recruit and met a couple in person and also on Zoom meetings with Biola coaches," she said.

One of her recruits, Paige Thoennes, was right in front of her. In fact, she has been around the Biola campus for quite a while. Both of her parents, Erik and Donna Thoennes, are on the faculty at the university. Erik is the chair of the Theology Department.

Freshman Paige Thoennes, who played water polo at La Mirada High School, played a lot of sports at an early age.

"When I was younger, I played a lot of different sports from tennis to soccer," said Thoennes, who was adopted by Erik and Donna Thoennes at the age of seven and is from Taiwan.

"A friend of mine bugged me to play with her on a co-ed water polo club team (at Biola). I joined

The team actually doesn't get to practice as a team until this fall when they all show up for school

Another unusual twist for one of the Biola players is one half of a set of twin sisters.

Freshman Samantha Rainey, a goalkeeper, is set to be a part of the inaugural women's team. However, her twin sister, Shyanne, currently plays for APU and plays the set position.

It will be a house divided for the Rainey family for the next few years. Shyanne actually told Samantha about the forming of the water polo program and the hiring of Orozco as coach.

Samantha simply said of the ongoing rivalry between the two schools and possible meeting in 2021 with the twins opposing each other, "I'm just going to say 'game on', because I really want to beat Azusa."

And so it begins for the Biola University women's water polo team.

What they said:

Veralie Naranjo, freshman: "I just thought it was super cool

"I never thought I'd be 23 and playing water polo, but here I am.

Kadee Torres-Guerrero, sophomore: "I played at Riverside City College and finished second in state in 2019. I knew that I wanted to transfer this year and at Biola is where I felt most welcome and most at home and I belonged here.

"Biola was the last school to reach out to me and my coach at RCC talked to (Coach Orozco) and she reached out to me.

"I think coming here, it's going to be cool to be able to socialize with people of all ages and different points in their lives. It'll be cool to learn and work together on the same team. It's nice to really see faces (at the photo session) rather than just seeing pictures.

Samantha Rainey, freshman: "I played field in high school and hurt my right shoulder and switched to my left arm and then I realized I wanted to play in goal. I just worked on my goalie technique ever since. I love defense.

"I think without COVID I wouldn't be transferring to Biola. of the Biola sports." It would have never crossed my mind to play water polo (after high school).

"I went and talked to my dad and I told him about Biola and my mom said they are both playing and they are rivals."

Paige Thoennes, freshman:

"I'm very excited to play on a very diverse team with a lot of Christian ladies. We're all sisters in Christ.

"I was really thinking about just doing my major, but I heard that they had a water polo program. I approached Coach and she accepted me and I was very excited.

"I heard about it and was overjoyed and couldn't believe it. My dad comes in and tells me about the program starting up.

I've always loved watching all

Short Story: My Pity Party

By Yolanda Adele

"Welcome to my Pity Party. I had a feeling you two would be the first to arrive. Come in, Moan and Groan."

"Are you kidding, we wouldn't miss it for a funeral," said Groan with her usual creaking voice. "My, don't you look perfectly pathetic in your black and gray jammies. But tell us Soledad, what's the occasion?"

"I'm approaching my seventieth birthday and I have forgotten how to enjoy life. All my fun friends are too busy for me."

"You poor thing," said Moan painfully. "But at least you have opened the door to find Misery. She was wearing her old wedding dress that she dved black. Behind her were Sadness, Pain, Anger, and Fear.

"Come in, the others are here."

"Good, let the binging began," Misery commanded. She handed me bags of cookies, potato chips, and chocolate candy, as they all marched in like gaggling geese.

"What, no alcohol?" I was disappointed.

"Afraid not," someone shouted, "Booze makes you giddy and after all this party is not exactly about having fun, right?'

Of course, she was right. I had invited my friends over to indulge me in my self pity, to cheer me on as I vented, to eat comfort food with me and to tell me everything I wanted to hear.

I turned on the CD player to some pre-selected songs: "Are You Lonesome Tonight," "One is the Loneliest Number," "Cry Me a River," "You're Nobody Until Somebody Loves You," "Losing Faith," any song that could make you feel like throwing yourself off a cliff. Then I strewed a variety of tissue boxes around the coffee table.

I took a place on the couch with my guests. Everyone was sympathetic to me, at first, saying how I deserve better and how unfair it is that I'm under appreciated, that I had good reason to be depressed.

The conversation shifted when Moan and Groan went on and on for what seemed like eons about their little aches and pains and those of their dogs and cats, and that of their neighbors down the street. Misery chimed in about the state of the world's poverty and squalor and how happiness is just an illusion anyway.

Sadness began to cry. Anger told everyone to shut up! Fear put her hands over her ears and trembled, her lips quivered so that she was unable to verbalize her anxiety. "Hey!" I growled through clenched teeth. "This party is for me!

"Of course, it is dear, but your problems are minor, low in severity compared to those of the world."

Anger got up and began to shout at me. "You are self-centered and don't give a fig about anybody else.

"That's because it's my pity party! Not any of yours!'

Sadness and Fear got on their feet and said they were leaving. Sadness added that she should not have come because of her seasonal affective disorder, due to lack of sunshine.

"Well, you can all leave," I announced, "I can eat junk food, listen to sad songs, watch tearjerker movies all by myself."

With that they all marched out in a huff, slamming the door memoirs group.

I was 16 years old when I puffed my first cigarette. I enjoyed watching my parents smoke. They looked so cool. Their brand of cigarettes was, of course, Kool. My "kool" parents!

My mother would have me light her cigarettes on the stove burner. This is how I was introduced to smoking.

"Hello, cigarette!" I'd get the cigarette, light it on the burner, glance over my shoulders (making sure there was no one around), take a quick puff, gag, cough, and wonder "What are they getting out of this awful stick?"

Time went on and, as my mother would have me light her cigarettes, I continued to take that puff, hoping to get some pleasure out of it—or at least try to look cool like her.

My father's routine of ingesting nicotine was to light up when he used the bathroom, and the matches were usually left there. That gave me a chance to practice smoking in the bathroom since smoke was still lingering in the air. When my mother didn't have me light her cigarettes, I started stealing some from the packs that sat freely on the dresser in their bedroom.

I would wait for my father to leave the bathroom and, while my mother tended to her kitchen duties, I would sneak a cigarette and rush to the bathroom and light up. Taking that puff time and time again, trying my best to get some pleasure from it, really weighed heavily on me. Eventually, I did get the hang of it, but by then I was exhausted, beat and worn out—or "all puffed out."

I had become a smoker—or at least I thought I had—looking so cool in the bathroom, smoking cigarette after cigarette taken from my parents. I could not purchase cigarettes on my own so I took advantage by taking theirs.

The following year, when my 17th birthday came around, my father waltzed up to me, wished me a "happy birthday," tossed me a pack of Kool cigarettes, and said, "Here! Stop smoking mine!"

Little did I know I would become addicted to this awful stick for 17 years. Thankfully, I kicked the habit 29 years ago.

"Goodbye, cigarette!"

Halloween Horror Nights returning with new mazes

Universal Studios Halloween Horror Nights will return in September with all-new mazes, including some inspired by the critically-acclaimed Netflix series "The Haunting of Hill House."

The series follows members of the Crain family who are haunted by long-dormant fears stemming from their time living in the menacing Hill House as children.

Iconic scenes from the series will be featured throughout the mazes, including the Red Room and the infamous Hall of Statues.

Apparitions will appear around every corner, from William Hill The Tall Man, whose towering stature overwhelms everyone he counters; to The Ghost in the Basement, who feverishly crawls throughout the bowels of the House in search of his next victim; to The Bent-Neck Lady, whose disturbing scream and ghastly appearance invokes a constant state of unnerving dread.

Halloween Horror Nights opens Sept. 9 and runs select nights through Halloween.
