U.S. restricts overseas travel

■ Concerns over the new omicron variant prompt international travel restrictions.

The U.S. is enacting travel bans in an effort to limit the spread of the new omicron variant of the coronavirus, which the World Health Organization warns poses a "very high" global

Starting Monday, President Biden has imposed travel non-U.S. restrictions citizens from the following eight countries:

> Botswana Eswatini Lesotho Malawi Mozambique Namibia South Africa Zimbabwe

The European Union, Canada, United Kingdom, and Israel have announced travel restrictions from southern African countries

Some health officials and public health experts caution that travel restrictions alone may not be effective in controlling the spread of infectious disease, and could even have harmful effects, like exacerbating xenophobia and deterring countries from being transparent about the state of the virus in the future.

The variant was first reported last week in South Africa, where vaccination rates are about 24%.

Cases of the omicron variant have since been confirmed in Botswana, the United Kingdom, Italy, Germany, Belgium, Israel, the Netherlands, Australia and Hong Kong.

Biden is encouraging children and adults to get vaccinated against COVID-19.

"This pandemic will not end until we have global vaccinations," he said last week in a statement.

In an address on Monday, he said the variant is "a cause for concern — not a cause for panic."

"The best protection against this variant or any of the variants out there is getting fully vaccinated and getting a booster shot," he said.

Biden said scientists didn't think that extra measures would be needed to fight the new variant, but he added that his administration was working with vaccine manufacturers to develop vaccines or boosters against omicron if needed.

He said he will also direct the Food and Drug Administration and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention "to use the fastest process available without cutting any corners for safety" to get such vaccines approved and on the market.

He said that science adviser Dr. Anthony Fauci believes the current vaccines provide at least some protection against severe disease.

Booster

U.S. health regulators last week expanded the eligibility for booster shots of COVID-19 vaccines to all adults aged 18 and older either six months after their initial Pfizer or Moderna vaccine doses or two months after their Johnson & Johnson (JNJ.N) shot.

The CDC, however, stopped short of saying all adults aged 18 to 49 should get the additional

Amid the renewed emphasis, Pfizer and partner BioNTech are expected to ask the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) in the coming days to authorize their booster shots for those aged 16 and 17 years, the Washington Post reported on Monday, citing

Norwalk senior goes from writing student to published author

■ Norwalk author Yolanda Adele wrote and published her memoir so her family and loved ones will remember her authentic self.

By Vincent Medina Contributor

NORWALK Norwalk resident and author Yolanda Adele, 75, published her memoir "History, Mystery, and Loving Memories," on Nov. 9 after participating in a creative writing class at the Norwalk Senior

"When my granddaughter asked me why I write, I told her I write so my family could get to know me better," said Adele. "There are so many times with my grandmother where I didn't ask her a question when I had the chance. Now my grandkids can learn about me and find the answers in my book.'

As a creative writer, Adele needed an office space where she could work. She did not hesitate to ask Victor Adele, her husband of 59 years, to build her a private space so she can focus on writing.

I just told him what I wanted, and he did it," said Adele. "I call him my Houdini because I see him through the window of my office in the backyard, and then he disappears around the corner because he is always doing something.'

Even as she spoke, her husband was heard on the roof putting up their Christmas lights.

"To have a strong marriage, you have to look at some bad examples so you learn what not to do," said Yolanda. "You have to love the other person more than you love yourself, that way you will be selfless."

Victor, 77, ensured that his wife was more than happy with the office by building it exactly as she envisioned. He built an archway for a window, found a lawyers bookcase, and ordered the bookshelf wallpaper to place on the closet door. Mr. Adele also placed crown molding in the room and carved her first initial to the closet door frame.

Adeles' focus was on raising their two daughters, Yvette and Tina.

They found their home in Norwalk in 1972, and continue to live in the city after 43 years.

In her memoir, Adele illustrated how hard her parents worked to provide for their family and how it inspired her to work hard for what she wanted.

Adele says she followed in the footsteps of her mother and became a housewife, and took care of her family.

"Women have different dreams," said Yolanda. "My daughters are educators, and my granddaughters have dreams, too. Mine was to build a nest for my family."

While her father was not present due to work, Adele knew how much she meant to him.

At Cerritos, Adele was reminded during a triathlon that hard work will make up for a lack of skills or talent.

Her P.E. instructor, Rea Black, gave Adele the award for women's fitness triathlon despite her coming in last because of her determination to stay late into the evening to finish.

In one essay called, "How want to be Remembered," Yolanda expresses the hope that Victor remember her as loving, loyal and thoughtful, and that her grandkids record their memories of her in their journals.

She says, "she did her best with the knowledge she possessed at any given stage in her life. That is legacy enough for me."

Whittier teen overcomes grief with help from dance team

■ Samantha Araujo turned to her high school dance and spirit team after the death of her father.

WHITTIER - Pioneer High School senior Samantha Araujo was a freshman when she was summoned to her counselor's office and told her father - the man who inspired her to be a scholar - had just died.

Araujo spent weeks grieving, lacking the motivation to get out of bed. One day, Araujo began rereading her father's encouraging text messages and returned to school with renewed enthusiasm. Araujo found an extended family in the Pioneer High Spirit and Dance team and a mentor in Dance Team Director Christine Avila

Araujo, who was honored as Pioneer High's 2021-22 standout student, was recognized by the Whittier Union Board of Trustees with an Award of Merit during its Nov. 9 board meeting, honoring her resilience and determination in the face of adversity.

"What has helped me to continue to be the best version of myself every day is reading the texts I got from my father and the encouraging messages he sent, such as 'have an amazing day'," Araujo said. "With my mother by my side, my amazing siblings, and my amazing family of friends, teachers and coaches, I am determined to be the scholar that my father always knew I could bé."

As a freshman at Pioneer, Araujo embraced school life and loved how friendly everyone was, from students to staff. Araujo was determined to find an extracurricular activity to match the family atmosphere on campus and she found it by trying out for and joining the

Stephen Sondheim

Stephen Sondheim, renowned Broadway lyricist

Stephen Sondheim, one of the most renowned lyricists and composers of the Broadway stage, died Nov. 26 at age 91.

Sondheim was one of the first people to whom Lin-Manuel Miranda reached out in 2008 for feedback on his early drafts of "Hamilton." More than half a century earlier, Sondheim had learned to compose music and lyrics at the knee of his mentor, Broadway great Oscar Hammerstein II.

In between learning from one generation's preeminent influencer Broadwav and mentoring another's, Sondheim reinvented the Broadway show for his own generation, creating innovative musicals including "Sweeney Todd" and "Into the Woods.

In a career that lasted more than five decades, Sondheim created some of the greatest musicals of his time. He didn't do it by following a winning formula; instead, he offered something new each time he debuted a musical. Style followed content for the creator who told Broadway World, "I'm an eclectic and I always have been."

The result of that eclecticism was a body of work that includes "A Little Night Music," composed largely in waltz time; "Pacific Overtures," built around Japanese-style pentatonic scale; and the operatic "Sweeney whose characters only rarely break out of song to speak.

catalog means that his fans differ greatly on which of his musicals is the best. There was no definitive Sondheim musical: Some love the accessibility of "Into the Woods" (Broadway.com's pick for Sondheim's best), others the bombast of "Sweeney Todd" (the top of Fandomental's list). Entertainment Monthly cited the complexity of "Company" in ranking it as his best, while critic Mark Robinson chose "A Little Night Music" as Sondheim's greatest and most timeless

When Sondheim debuted as composer and lyricist with 1962's 'A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," it was a rousing success. The show ran for 964 performances and won a number of Tony Awards, including Best Musical. But Sondheim's score was not recognized by the Tonys, and it wasn't seen as among the show's great selling points.

Sondheim had burst out of the gate with early Broadway success and sustained it through his first three professional shows, but his work didn't always hit the mark. And in 1964, his next collaboration with Laurents, 'Anyone Can Whistle," was a flop. The surreal fantasy survived only nine performances before closing, though in the years since, it has gained a cult following.

Sondheim's next effort, 1965's "Do I Hear a Waltz?" marked the last time he'd write lyrics to someone else's music for was made following the poor experience he had writing lyrics for Richard Rodgers, the former writing partner of Sondheim's his work alongside Rodgers after his death, and Sondheim agreed to give it a try, but he strained within the partnership and ended up regretting the decision. Moving forward, he vowed he'd only work on musicals for which he could write both lyrics and music, and he stuck with that promise.

Phil Saviano, exposed child abuse within Catholic Church

Phil Saviano, a survivor of childhood clergy abuse whose work to help other survivors and uncover predatory behavior in the church was featured in the Oscarwinning 2015 film "Spotlight," died Nov. 28 of gallbladder cancer at the age of 69.

Saviano was sexually abused by a priest at St. Denis Catholic Church in Douglas, Mass. It wasn't until decades later that he realized he hadn't been alone and became determined to help other survivors and work toward preventing further abuse.

Saviano began researching exual abuse in the Catholic Church, uncovering evidence that priests with a record of abuse were simply sent to other parishes rather than punished and removed from the priesthood. He also founded a New England chapter of the Survivors Network of Those Abused by Priests (SNAP).

Saviano went to the Boston Globe to tell his story; the newspaper initially declined to publish it but later used it as the bedrock of a major investigative project.

The Spotlight report won the Globe a Pulitzer Prize as a team of reporters dug into decades of clergy abuse and coverups. The Globe's report led to a new awareness of clergy abuse, including broader support for victims of that abuse.

The same year the report was published, Cardinal Bernard Law admitted that abusive priests in the Boston area had been reassigned with little effort to put a stop to abuse.

The movie detailing the investigation, "Spotlight," won Best Picture at the Academy Awards and featured actor Neal Huff as Saviano; the actor and the activist he portrayed became friends.

Arlene Dahl, leading actress in the 1950s

Arlene Dahl, an actress known for 1950s movies including 'Slightly Scarlet" and "Journey to the Center of the Earth," as well as the mother of actor Lorenzo Lamas, died Nov. 29 at age 96.

Dahl's film debut was in "My Wild Irish Rose" in 1947. It landed her a contract with MGM, and she became a star in leading roles in movies including "A Southern Yankee," "Reign of Terror," and "Watch the Birdie."

Dahl's greatest fame came in the 1950s, including her role as a kleptomaniac in the film noir "Slightly Scarlet" and as a widow on an adventurous expedition in "Journey to the Center of the Earth." She sang in the movie musical "Three Little Words," featured in the song "I Love You

Her movie career slowed down in the 1960s, with only a handful of film roles in later years. Dahl was often seen on TV after her film career, with roles on shows including "One Life to Live" and "The Love Boat."

Dahl was known for her fiery red hair and beauty mark, and her Technicolor looks led to a second career in the beauty industry. It began in 1951 with her column for the Chicago Tribune, "Let's Be Beautiful." The column was syndicated nationwide and ran for two decades.

Later in the '50s, Dahl expanded her reach in the beauty world by founding Arlene Dahl Enterprises, selling cosmetics and lingerie. Her products included the Dahl Beauty Cap, worn at night to keep one's hair in place.

Justus Rosenberg, a Holocaust survivor who worked with the French Resistance to help refugees escape the Nazi regime, died Oct. 30 at age 100.

A native of Danzig, in modern-day Poland, Rosenberg was sent by his parents to study in Paris in the years leading up to World War II.

As the Nazi occupation of Paris neared, Rosenberg fled to Toulouse, in the south of France, where he became involved with the French Resistance. He worked with Varian Fry's Emergency Rescue Committee, a network that helped Jews and other enemies of the Third Reich escape Nazi Europe.

With the group. Rosenberg worked to carry messages and provide forged identity papers to refugees, as well as escorting them across the Pyrenees to Spain.

Still in his teens when he began working with the Resistance, Rosenberg was captured at 21 and sent to a concentration camp. He faked appendicitis and was sent to a hospital for surgery, where he escaped during his recovery.

Rosenberg began working with the U.S. Army later in the war, and he was honored with a Bronze Star and a Purple Heart. His military service also gained him entry to the U.S., where he lived from 1946 on.

Dictionary company Merriam-Webster unveiled its word of the year for 2021, and it is "vaccine."

That is a logical follow-up to its 2020 word of the year, "pandemic," and it matches the Oxford English Dictionary's word for 2021, "vax."

But "while other dictionary companies choose words of the year by committee," The Associated Press reports, "Merriam-Webster bases its selection on lookup data, paying more recently, year-over-year increases in searches after weeding out evergreens.'

Searches for "vaccine" increased 601 percent over 2020 and 1,048 percent over 2019, Merriam-Webster said.

"This was a word that was extremely high in our data every single day in 2021," Peter Sokolowski, Merriam-Webster's editor-at-large, told AP. "It really represents two different stories. One is the science story, which is this remarkable speed with which the vaccines were developed. But there's also the debates regarding policy, politics, and political affiliation. Ît's one word that carries these two huge stories."

"Few words can express so much about one moment in time," Merriam-Webster said.

The dictionary editors Merriam-Webster's definition of vaccine earlier this year to encompass the mRNA breakthroughs, but the word itself "is a relatively recent one in English, dating back to the 1880s," the company explained. "Vaccine comes from the Latin word for 'cow,' vacca, because the term was initially used to refer to inoculation using doses of cowpox that, it was discovered, protect humans against smallpox."

Merriam-Webster's runnerup for 2021 was "insurrection," thanks to the Jan. 6 siege of the U.S. Capitol by supporters of former President Donald Trump.

COVID-19 does not discriminate against stupidity

By Froma Harrop

Cruel as this may sound, I'm having a hard time cringing at the internet trolls now going after noisy right-wingers who propagandized against the coronavirus vaccine and then succumbed to the deadly disease

One was Nick Bledsoe, a car mechanic in Opelika, Alabama. Bledsoe achieved minor celebrity opposing public efforts to contain COVID-19. He petitioned against school mask mandates and turned refusal to get shots into a political statement, negatively linking them to President Joe Biden. Bledsoe died of COVID at age 41, leaving a wife and four children.

His Facebook page then became a clearinghouse for attacks by vaccine supporters. Some insulted and mocked him. Others left heartfelt sermons on the insanity of risking one's life in return for partisan hugs

Let the record show that I disapprove of any dancing on this man's grave. After all, Bledsoe walked the walk of his ignorance. Unlike some media personalities who dismissed the shots while securing one for themselves — or former President Donald Trump, who quietly put himself and loved ones at the front of the line when the vaccine became available — Bledsoe played the dangerous game of COVID-19 chance with his own life.

On the other hand, the lies and conspiracy theories he and others advanced could well be responsible for thousands of other deaths. There is blood on their hands and, as is being noted, most may be coming from fellow travelers on the right.

COVID-19 now takes its biggest toll in the red, vaccine-resistant parts of the country. Health care analyst Charles Gaba found that since the end of June, the virus has killed about 47 out of every 100,000 people in counties where Trump got 70% or more of the vote. In counties where Trump won less than 32%, only about 10 out of 100,000 people have died from COVID-19.

There is a rule on the right fringes that no one ever has to take responsibility for their own behavior. On Breitbart, John Nolte tests the bounds of idiocy by blaming Howard Stern (and House Speaker Nancy Pelosi and Biden and Dr. Anthony Fauci) for Trump supporters' hostility toward vaccination. By making fun of those who didn't get the shots, he writes, Stern is causing even more resistance to the shots. (Oh, to be retweeted, eh, Nolte?)

It's time the right wing understood that the opposition can also troll, and very effectively. "Suicide by COVID" has become a popular heading for commentary on the pathetic loss of life among Trump cultists.

Heartless? Perhaps. But earlier in the pandemic, when the blue cities were hardest hit, people spent hours online trying to get an appointment for a shot. Yours truly was among them. When I finally nailed a date, I traveled three hours to a dingy high school gymnasium where I joined lines of Americans scrambling for protection and a return to normality.

Now that shots are being waved, it seems, on every street corner, sympathy for those who refuse them — and then get gruesomely sick — is not commanding much emotional space. When there was less anyone could do to avoid a COVID-19 death or prolonged illness, things were different.

Some of my right-leaning correspondents like to sign off their notes with the words, "You can't fix stupid," possibly referring to me. I will concede that progressives can be stupid on some things, but not on this one.

When writing back to the truly delusional, I now attach a clever meme that has been making the rounds. It shows a woman saying, "You can't fix stupid." Under her, a cartoon virus covered in spikes adds, "I can fix stupid."

Biden's comments on climate change don't match his actions

By Steve Chapman

The Biden administration, to its credit, never misses a chance to emphasize the importance of dealing with climate change. President Joe Biden calls it an "existential" threat to humanity. John Kerry, his special envoy on the issue, said in April: "That means life and death. And the question is, are we behaving as if it is? And the answer is no."

That was certainly true under former President Donald Trump, who championed coal, abandoned the 2015 Paris agreement on climate and dismissed global warming as a hoax. Biden has brought a badly needed shift on policy. But his policies sometimes are at war with his rhetoric.

One crucial part of his agenda is speeding the transition from gasoline-powered vehicles to electric ones. Cars and light trucks account for 16% of all U.S. greenhouse gas emissions, and Biden wants half of all autos sold in this country to be electric or plug-in hybrids by 2030. That transition would significantly reduce carbon output.

But let's not get the idea that the administration is laser-focused on whatever it takes to curb climate change. Its enthusiasm for electric vehicles, it turns out, is not unlimited. In Biden's eyes, some electric vehicles are good and some are bad, and the difference has nothing to do with greenhouse gases.

The social spending and climate package recently approved by the House of Representatives would encourage Americans to buy electric vehicles by providing a tax credit of as much as $12,500 for each purchase, an increase over the existing $7,500 credit. That indirect subsidy is needed because these cars generally cost more to purchase than comparable conventional cars.

But Biden and his congressional allies are not enamored of all electric vehicles. They want to restrict the full tax break to those cars that are built by union workers in the United States and have batteries built by union workers in the United States. Buyers of other vehicles would get only a $7,500 credit — a $5,000 penalty.

That penalty would apply to almost all of the 50 electric vehicles currently sold here, including every model made by Tesla, the Ford Mustang Mach-E, the Nissan Leaf, the Rivian pickup, the Hyundai Ioniq and more. The only exceptions are two Chevy Bolt models. It would also harm workers in U.S. plants operated by foreign automakers, which are nonunion and produce nearly half of all the vehicles sold here.

The discrimination is a giant favor to the United Auto Workers, a stalwart of the Democratic Party that has been weathering a major corruption scandal. "The union has stressed to the Biden administration that the country shouldn't sacrifice union jobs to meet its climate goals," reported The Wall Street Journal. A White House spokesman insisted that "jobs taking on the climate crisis must also be jobs that build the middle class."

There are some obvious flaws in the administration's logic. One is that given the monumental size of the battle against climate change, it is imperative to enlist every automaker, including nonunion ones.

To exclude nearly all electric cars from the full tax credit will make the national transition away from gas-powered vehicles — a hugely formidable undertaking under the best of circumstances — slower and more expensive. It's exactly the wrong strategy if you place a supreme priority on saving the planet from excessively high temperatures.

The UAW has repeatedly lost elections allowing workers at foreign-owned plants to decide whether to sign up with the union. Limiting the tax credit will hurt those workers. It will also encourage automakers to build electric cars abroad, where they can achieve lower labor costs — enough, perhaps, to overcome the tax disadvantage.

It will also be a boon to the internal combustion engine. As Jeffrey Schott, a senior fellow at the Peterson Institute for International Economics, told me, "If you raise the cost of electric vehicles too much, people will buy gas-powered cars."

The Trump administration refused to require any sacrifice from fossil fuel companies and their employees merely to avert the worst-case climate scenario. The Biden administration is willing to act against climate change, but it too insists on protecting certain groups at the expense of the broad American public — and all humanity.

Denying the full tax credit to the vast majority of electric vehicles will mean more carbon emissions and warming of the planet. But hey — it's not like this is a matter of life and death, right?

Let's end the COVID-19 blame game

By Bret Stephens

Over the summer, as Covid cases started rising from their midyear lows, it became popular to blame Republicans for fueling the pandemic. The argument was that Covid had become a red-state scourge because of lower rates of mask-wearing and vaccination — along with high doses of vaccine misinformation — in places that went heavily for Donald Trump.

It even seemed true for a while, with states like Florida, Alabama and Louisiana suffering from a huge surge in cases. But the virus has had a way of making fools of us all.

Take Vermont, which has one of the highest vaccination rates in the nation, and where Joe Biden took 66 percent of the vote. Because of the Delta variant's vigorous attack on even the relatively small number of unvaccinated Vermonters, the state has experienced one of the biggest recent Covid surges, with hospitalizations up by 24 percent in the past two weeks. In Santa Fe County, N.M., where Biden won with 76 percent and 74 percent of the population is fully vaccinated, hospitalizations are up by 40 percent.

You'll find similar trends in Hennepin County, Minn. (Biden, 70 percent), where vaccination rates are high; and in Wayne County, Mich. (Biden, 68 percent), where vaccination rates are relatively low.

Meanwhile, in Florida, Alabama, Louisiana and other red states, cases have plummeted after earlier surges swept through, leaving many with immunity.

We'll see how long things will stay that way, especially if (or, rather, once) the Omicron variant hits American shores. But here's a plea for when it does: Let's put an end to the partisan Covid blame games. They're pointless, divisive and dumb.

Consider the record of Covid score-settling thus far:

Covid is mainly a problem of the big cities! But then it became a tragedy for rural America. (And yes, this is me pleading guilty to a bad argument in the pandemic's early days, when I thought population density would be the main driver of transmission.)

The lab-leak theory is racist right-wing conspiracy talk! Um, except the argument is far from settled on whether or not it's true.

Andrew Cuomo is a model of crisis management! But then it turned out that the disgraced former governor was guilty of one of the worst political decisions in the early months of the pandemic, when he forced New York's nursing homes to take back patients who had been hospitalized with Covid, and later tried to cover up the blunder.

Ron DeSantis is a model of crisis management! The Florida governor did, in fact, do well in the early months of the crisis, when he focused state resources on protecting the elderly, only to later preside over a gigantic spike in cases.

Trump is responsible for hundreds of thousands of Covid deaths that might have been avoided if only someone else had been in the White House! But now Biden has presided over even more deaths, not that anyone should blame him for it.

Anti-vax myths are being driven by right-wing liars! But then people like Sean Hannity of Fox News and Christopher Ruddy of Newsmax urged people to get their shots, while the bulk of vaccine misinformation on social media came from characters like Robert F. Kennedy Jr., Rizza Islam of the Nation of Islam and other alternative-medicine quacks of mostly unguessable political views.

Germany is a model of intelligent consensus-driven action when it comes to public health! But vaccination rates among Germans are still relatively low, mistrust of government is depressingly high, and cases are soaring.

Sweden is a model of good sense when it comes to lockdowns! Well, the Swedes, who avoided lockdowns, have fared relatively better than Spain or Britain, which locked down repeatedly. But, as Bloomberg's Justin Fox points out, the Swedes also fared considerably worse than their Scandinavian neighbors, who took stricter precautions.

The list goes on. There were those on the right who predicted an end to the pandemic based on expected herd-immunity thresholds. There were those on the left who foresaw an end based on vaccination rates. Nature — on the one hand viral and the other hand human — embarrassed them both. If the Omicron variant is anything like the Delta one in its transmissibility, it will embarrass them again.

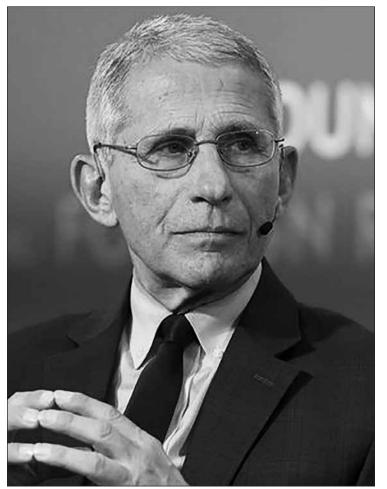

So here are some modest pleas coming out of this Thanksgiving season.

Let's put away our crystal balls and shake up our snow globes instead. We have about as much foresight in this crisis as a snowman in a blizzard.

Let's quit arguing that Covid is a red- or blue-state thing. Yes, Republican areas have tended to have lower vaccination rates, but disease trends have a way of switching directions for reasons none of us really understands.

Let's stop imputing bad faith or recklessness or greed to our partisan opponents. They have loved ones who are just as much at risk of infection as our own.

Let's accept that people have needs and ideas that differ from ours, whether on account of health status, livelihood or deep-seated belief. Lectures, condescension and scorn aren't going to change the

I have no idea what Omicron will bring, and very slight hopes that we'll be able to exercise any effective form of control over it. But it shouldn't be beyond asking that we stop being beastly to others. We are all riding out the same storm.

Demolition looms for Downey's abandoned hospital

■ L.A. County officials have set aside $28 million to demolish more than 100 buildings on the former hospital campus.

By Alex Dominguez Staff Writer

redevelopment of Rancho Los Amigos National Rehabilitation Center's abandoned south campus pressed onward last month when the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors greenlit the demolition of over 100 buildings at the location.

The county-owned 74-acre property is located at 7601 E. Imperial Hwy. Its buildings have remained abandoned and in a continued state of decay since medical-related services were consolidated to Rancho's north campus in the 1980's.

As they stand currently, the south campus and its current buildings are incompatible with any county use, and restoration would amount to a costly $300 million, county officials said.

Despite its dormant state, the site continues to demand approximately $1.5 million in resources annually, as the county continues to spend on security measures such as fencing repairs, securing/boarding up of abandoned buildings, brush clearance, debris removal to remove fire hazards, and fire and police protection services including 24/7 patrol.

The deteriorating buildings also present a hazard for security personnel – and potential trespassers – as many are structurally unstable and contain hazardous materials including asbestos, mold, and lead paint,

Of course, the south campus is already in the midst of a multifaceted, multi-million dollar development.

The $468 million project includes development of up to approximately 650,000 square feet of floor area of new buildings to serve as headquarters for the County's Internal Services Department, Probation Department, County offices, as well as two parking structures and necessary infrastructure improvements. Several of the existing buildings and structures will also be reused or retained as well, including the Casa Consuelo, power plant, water tower, and shop and laundry.

The Administration building - which is currently occupied by the Sheriff's Department - will be retained with no alterations to the building or changes to its use. The historic Moreton Bay Fig Tree will also be retained.

The demolition of the 103 buildings slated to be knocked down does mean, however, that the site will lose eligibility as a historic resource; a sacrifice deemed necessary by the Board in order to achieve its objectives for the campus.

In total, the demolition project is budgeted at $28.6 million. It is expected to be completed by fourth quarter

Attorney General Rob Bonta, significantly since then despite they need to be arrested. Police Newsom said. State crime statistics show property crimes dipped 7.7% last year, led by a nearly 15% drop in larceny thefts and 4% drop in burglaries.

But Newsom said both the recent spate of mass thefts and lack of prosecutions are "unacceptable."

"If people are breaking in, Property crime dropped people stealing your property, need to prosecute them. Judges need to hold people accountable for breaking the law," Newsom said. "These are not victimless crimes, and I have no empathy for these criminal elements.

Even thefts under $950 should be prosecuted as misdemeanors or "stacked" into felony complaints if there are repeat offenses, he said, contending some officials "choose" not to do

"I want to see local efforts. I want to see them stepped up,' said Newsom, formerly San Francisco's mayor. "Look at the laws. You have the ability. Stack repeat offenders and move to prosecute."

How recognizing top employees can cure the quitting epidemic

■ Showing appreciation for your employees can go a long way in keeping them around.

A record 4.3 million workers left their jobs in August, continuing a trend in 2021. Reasons for quitting vary, but as one recent survey shows, a lack of appreciation from employers is a common driver.

Appreciation is an especially important factor to a large segment of the workforce millennials and Gen Z. In a poll taken shortly before the COVID-19 pandemic began, 79% of millennial and Gen Z respondents said an increase in recognition and rewards would make them more loyal to their employer.

With companies losing talented people and struggling to fill open positions, leaders need to know how to make employee recognition and appreciation a more consistent part of their work culture, says David Friedman (www.culturewise. com), author of Culture by Design: How to Build a High-Performing Culture Even in the New Remote Work Environment.

"Recognition is the best way to boost employee engagement, productivity and profit while significantly strengthening your culture," Friedman says.

"It may seem intuitive that employees who are thanked and recognized for their work are happier and, as a result, perform better. But unfortunately, managers may be busy with other tasks or have an attitude of 'If you don't hear anything, assume you're doing a good job. That approach loses good people who were very valuable.

There are benefits to company leaders praising teams as well as individuals. A Gallup survey shows giving kudos to teams can encourage collaboration, inspire trust, clarify organizational goals, improve quality, and reinforce a team's sense of purpose.

"Praise for a job well done should flow across all levels of the organization - peer to peer, manager to their direct report, and direct report to their manager," Friedman says. "Remember your remote workers - they may already be feeling disconnected from the workplace, so remind them that you notice and appreciate their contributions.

Friedman offers these thoughts on giving recognition and showing appreciation in the workplace:

It should be authentic and individualized. Friedman observes that employees are savvy and can see through an "everyone gets a trophy" mentality. "Saying 'great job' is nice, but it's much more meaningful if you detail the specifics of the person's actions and how they helped advance the company's objectives," he says. "And if their efforts merit more than a compliment, or such efforts are a trend for them, then leaders need to figure out a fair tangible reward. Promotions with pay raises and increased responsibilities go the next step to show consistent high performers that they are truly

Tailor recognition to the recipient. Some people enjoy being the center of attention, so a formal public recognition is ideal for them, Friedman says. Others avoid the spotlight and prefer a one-on-one acknowledgement. For a team acknowledgment, a companywide or departmental meeting might be a fitting forum. "That's a great way to show the link between the team's accomplishments, company objectives, and the importance of working well together," Friedman says.

Convey your appreciation in person. Friedman notes this may be difficult with remote workforces, and sometimes a phone call or email will have to do. "But the in-person touch has a lot more impact," he says, "especially when it comes from an executive with whom the employee has very little exposure.

Create a culture of recognition. "Culture change starts with identifying the specific behaviors that drive success in your company, Friedman says. "One of them should be showing meaningful appreciation. That means regularly recognizing people doing things right, rather than frequently pointing out when they do things wrong.'

"Recognition leads to happy employees, better retention, and better business results," Friedman says. "When your people know they are appreciated, really valued, it will make a huge difference in your day-to-day culture and in your growth as a company.

Long Beach police chief joins race for sheriff

The list of people running to become Los Angeles County's next sheriff is getting longer.

Long Beach Police Chief Robert Luna announced on Wednesday that he will challenge current Sheriff Alex Villanueva.

"I am doing this because the current sheriff has created dysfunction and chaos, which has put our public safety at risk," said the police chief in the county's second-biggest city.

As Luna held his news conference in Signal Hill, protestors critical of law enforcement in Long Beach interrupted him several times.

He tried to address the group over their chants.

"There are people with all different opinions and for anybody who has worked around me, they know I respect everybody's opinion. So even for the people yelling behind me, I absolutely will sit down with anybody at any given time," he

Luna is the latest in a candidate field that now includes Sheriff's Commander Eli Vera, LAX Police Chief Cecil Rhambo, Sheriff's Lt. Eric Strong, Capt. Britta Steinbrenner, Capt. Matt Rodriguez, Long Beach School police officer April Saucedo

Hood, and Enrique Del Real.

Sheriff Villanueva has a rocky relationship with the Board of Supervisors and the county's Civilian Oversight Commission. Those are some issues that Chief Luna wants to address.

"Regain the relationships with the Board of Supervisors, with oversight committees, to be open to criticism...I'm being criticized now, I'm open to it,' says Luna.

When asked to comment on Luna's remarks, Villanueva responded with the following:

"Actually, I take that as an endorsement that the political establishment wants a puppet sheriff and they have a casting call for as many applicants as possible - the next puppet sheriff. So, it's a free country - anybody can run and I look forward to to the debates," he

The primary election is scheduled for June 7. With so many candidates it's likely no one will get over 50% of the vote, which would send the top two candidates to a runoff in the November general election.

John Glenn wrestlers top Cal High, 48-29, in non-league dual meet

■ The young Eagles team won all six matches via pinfall.

WHITTIER - After a limited 2021 spring wrestling season, high school teams are ready to finally get back to normal this

John Glenn and California high schools are just two of those schools and they both put on quite a show Wednesday night

The Condors, hosting the early-season dual in a gym packed with anxious wrestlers and families, fell to Glenn, 48-29.

"The kids wrestled hard and showed a lot of heart," said Glenn coach Monico, who began coaching at Glenn in 1999 as an assistant and has been head coach for 12 years. "We're very young with a lot of freshmen on our team and a lot of 10th graders. It was a good win for these kids."

Assisting coach Monico Enriquez are his brothers, Adrian Enriquez and Juan Enriquez and Martin Gevorkian.

On the other side of the mat is the Condors. After many years with coach Doug Loo in charge, a new staff took over this season and is keeping the strong tradition going on the Whittier

"It's a great privilege to be back here at my alma mater," said assistant coach Robert Rosa.

Rosa will be assisting head coach Steve Muchaca, along with Anthony Espinoza and Daniel Delgado, who were all part of the 2013-14 Del Rio league

"We're trying to improve on the basics and get those things down first," Rosa added. "We're starting to improve week by

Cal opened with a match against La Mirada, while Glenn took third in the Gahr duals, Nov.

Prior to the boys varsity match, the John Glenn girls remaining. had a few matches against Cal, followed by a JV match between the two schools. In the boys varsity match, the Eagles came through with all their points with six pins out of the 11 matches on the mat. The other two wins were by forfeit. Cal scored two pins, two major decisions, a decision and a forfeit.

After Cal opened up with a forfeit in the 106 lb. weight class, Glenn sophomore Julian Rodriguez scored the first of the six pins for the eagles. Leading, 2-0, in the first period, Rodriguez (113 lbs.) gave Glenn the 12-point advantage early in the match over freshman Bryan Meza.

The Condors' Jesse Hernandez, sophomore, (120 lbs.) won by a major decision (13-4) over Glenn junior Emmanuel Enriquez.

"This year I hope to get to experience how it is to go to CIF and if I get a chance, Masters and maybe state," said Hernandez, who wrestled on varsity in his freshman year. He led, 3-1 after the first period and built it up to 9-3 after the second period.

Glenn led, 12-4, after three

Next up was Glenn's Jacob Enriquez (126 lbs.), who is the freshman cousin of Emmanuel Enriquez. With 45 seconds left in the opening 2-minute period, Jacob Enriquez completed the second pin for the Eagles over Condors junior Angel Anaya for the 18-4 lead.

"We have a lot of younger people now and it's a longer time to build and get their skills higher and higher," said Jacob Enriquez, of the young Eagles team. "All of us Enriquez' are always competing, being cousins."

Jacob Enriquez' father is assistant coach Adrian Enriquez.

Cal then came back with back-to-back pins by senior Jacob Benavidez (132 Lbs.) over Robert Renteria with just 12 seconds left in the second period and junior Christopher Louden (138 Lbs.) over sophomore Andrew Gomez with two seconds remaining in the opening period.

Cal closed to within two points, 18-16, after six wrestlers.

The Eagles picked up another six points for the second Cal forfeit, followed by their third pin of the night by junior Diego Lopez (152 lbs.) over junior Adrian Melero, with 1:32 left in the first period.

Cal again won two consecutive matches - a 15-4 major decision by senior Ronnie Maxwell (160 lbs.) over junior Edmund Mariquez and a 6-1 decision by senior Santiago Silva (170 lbs.) over Glenn junior Alex Valdez. After a scoreless first period, Silva scored three points in each of the second and third periods for the win.

Glenn now led, 30-23 with four matches remaining and the result still up in the air.

However, the next three Glenn wrestlers all won by pins senior Xzavian Miranda (182 lbs.), senior Freddie Valdivia (195 lbs.) and junior Logan Torrez (220 lbs.) for the insurmountable, 48-23, lead with only one match

The last match went to the Condors, as Glenn forfeited the heavyweight match to finish the

One of the highlights of the night was the first varsity win for Miranda, in his first wrestling match ever.

Miranda, who has specialized in the martial arts for years and attends Southeast Academy across the street from John Glenn, was in a 0-0 draw after the first period.

By the end of the second period, Miranda had his opponent pinned, but time ran out.

He finally pinned his opponent with 1:20 remaining in the match.

ever," said Miranda, who was mobbed by his teammates after his first-ever win. "I'd been wanting to be on the wrestling team since last year. Covid happened and everything and unfortunately, I wasn't able to.

league championship, which was only duals competition, went to John Glenn, led by Renteria, Lopez and Emmanuel Enriquez.

What they said:

Monico Enriquez, Glenn coach: "It was big when Freddy (Valdivia) and Logan (Torrez) won their matches by pins. Because we knew we didn't have a heavyweight because he is hurt.

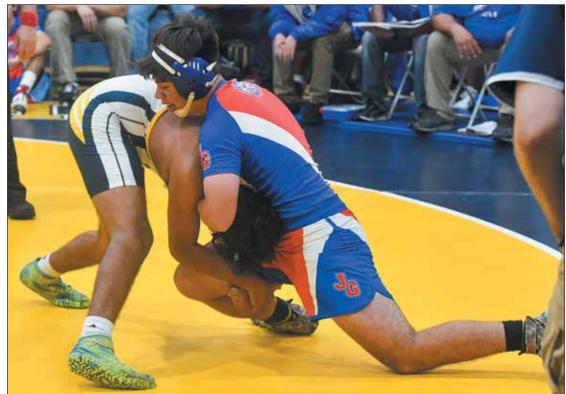

"It's been great, finally working on campus and I got a lot of kids out and we're excited for the future. And Xzavian came through big time for us for a first-vear wrestler. He came and got that pin for us. It was huge."

On AD Linda Parra: "Linda is a great athletic director. I couldn't be doing this if it wasn't for her. She's a tremendous help. She's great."

Robert Rosa, Cal coach: "I thought both sides did great, competing-wise. We just have a lot to improve on and get better.

"As coaches, we love wrestling and we're trying to get back the feeling and their dedication of the sport. Our goal is to get the league championship.

match. Christopher Louden, Cal "This was my first match" (138 lbs.): "I like these (new coaches) who trained under coach Loo. Just because Loo is gone, I don't really feel like his training is really gone. I feel like these guys are carrying on what he did with previous teams. He was really enthusiastic.

"I'm really excited to be back conditioning. on the mat. To get work back in and make it to CIF."

Jacob Glenn (132 lbs.): "It was a blessing to come out here and perform for everybody. The coaches really push the pace. The practices are almost like a college. They (coaches) really get our conditioning right. We start on conditioning and end on

"(Tonight), it was a good experience for everybody. We Benavidez, John have a new team and a lot of people are conditioning. Now, we got a taste for everything."

> Freddy Valdivia, John Glenn, (195 lbs.): "I've been wrestling since my freshman year and I was part of the 2019 CIF Championship team. In my pin, I was just trying to take him (opponent) down as quick as possible.

"It feels real good to get out here and get this win. I know it's not our home gym, but it still feels good to just win. This meet feels great to just kick off our
