Norwalk honors Penny Brothers

NORWALK - The City of Norwalk proclaimed Feb. 22 to be Penny Brothers' Day in honor of NFL stars Elijhaa and Rashaad Penny.

Both men are alumni of Norwalk High School. Elijhaa graduated in 2011 and Rashaad graduated in 2014

Both were jersey number 22, which was retired last month by Norwalk High School.

"My City Council colleagues and I are very proud to be able to proclaim Feb. 22, 2022 as the Penny Brothers' Day," said Mayor Rick Ramirez in a ceremony held March 15. "It's not often that you get a local resident playing in a sport in a major league, let alone two local residents that happen to be brothers. Having them give back to the community that they grew up in is inspiring for younger residents to strive to make their own dreams a reality.

the football field, the brothers have done a lot for the Norwalk community. They started the Two Cents Family Foundation that provides recreational experiences and educational resources to children in Norwalk.

Through their foundation, the brothers have offered free football camps to teach young players about sportsmanship, teamwork and hard work, while incorporating mentorship. The foundation has also hosted a backpack giveaway.

Norwalk officials said they hope to collaborate with Elijhaa and Rashaad on more community events

2002 Norwalk Pony World Series Champs honored at Holifield Park

NORWALK – A double header sweep of rival Hartwell was the key to a terrific World Series run and eventual championship for the 2002 Norwalk Pony All Star team in 2002.

A 20-year anniversary of the title was held at Holifield Park Saturday (March 19), with many players and coaches appearing at the opening day of the 2022 Pony League season.

On display was the Roy Gillespie Memorial Trophy that the team received in the World series.

Norwalk, which dominated the Series, shutout Levittown, Puerto Rico, 10-0 in five innings to win the championship and became the first area team to win a Pony World Series since the 1965 Long beach team.

"It was an amazing run," said second baseman Johnny Perez, who was wearing his No. 5 jersey from the 2002 team. "It was unbelievable. Our team was so stacked. It was so hard even to get playing time, because we were so good. We just went on this amazing run where we couldn't lose. I still remember it like it was yesterday."

"Yesterday" was the theme at opening day for the team.

"It feels great, this is home," former Norwalk Pony All Stars coach Ruben Velazquez said. "This has to the title that year. always been home for many of us here. It's always great to come back here and see the league still going.

"Ultimately, that's what it's about. It's about the kids. It's not about us. We're just trying to lay the foundation and hope that things keep running and keep growing, and keep growing. This is happening every year."

Velazquez commented on the players now and how they are just

Velazquez remembered the run

"It was a memorable one," he said. "It was a total team effort and we had a ton of fun and a bunch of memories. We just completely dominated that World Series run. It's history now.'

Velazquez, who looked around at the field and said it still looked the same and talked about how his team bought into what they were coaching that year.

"The total team buy-in to what

The one big hurdle for the 2002 team was the Regional Tournament held at Norwalk, which was the step before Zone.

"Hartwell was our archenemy up the street," Velazquez remembered. "We had to beat them in a double header to move on to Zone, before we went to the World Series. By far, that's one of the biggest series that all of these guys will talk about. We're kind of like hated rivals. It's like the Dodger-Giants rivalry and we had to beat them twice to move on and we did."

Schwulst hit a homerun in the game for Norwalk.

Assistant coach Jorge Sanchez, who was the first base coach, described how he knew that team would go far that season.

"That season was memorable, continued on page 2

A nice moment of the ceremony and we still talk about it today when the guys get together," Sanchez said. "All of these kids could straight out play baseball and just about every kid on the team was a pitcher. We were never worried about pitching and we knew we were going to go far, just the caliber of baseball the kids were playing that year."

> Asked about what stressed Sanchez the most during the playoffs, Sanchez knew right away which game it was.

"It must have been the game we were playing in Zone against Los Alamitos," Sanchez remembered. "We were down by one run and I believe it was the bottom of the sixth or the bottom of the seventh.

Norwalk parks due Pony League Champs celebrate for renovations 20th anniversary construction of a new community

NORWALK – Norwalk parks are in store for upgrades and renovations over the next several years, according to a presentation to the City Council on Feb. 22.

Among the recommended upgrades are adding block walls in parks that would provide better security and decrease continued maintenance costs for repairs due to cut fences and vandalism.

In addition, new pour-N-Play surfaces for playgrounds will create a safer environment for children and decreased staff time and maintenance, officials said.

The city also recommended the installation and upgrade of ballfield lighting at parks that will increase hours of operation.

The City Council was supportive of the recommendations made by city staff.

"We need to invest the money we have, while at the same time aggressively go after additional said Mayor Rick resources," Ramirez. "We need to upgrade these parks now.'

A few highlights of the planned park projects:

Hermosillo Park – Norwalk has been awarded an $8.5 million grant through Prop 68 to rehabilitate the park. Funding includes the building, restrooms, parking lot, and various amenities throughout the park. The playground was replaced in 2018 and will remain but a new Pour-N-Play surface will be installed.

Norwalk Park - Plans include new sports fields, playgrounds, an additional restroom facility, and a variety of amenities.

Lakeside Park - Funding of $14,000 was approved in Norwalk 2021-22 budget for laser leveling of ballfields, which will be completed in the coming months.

Holifield Park - One of the playgrounds was recently replaced, funded by the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors. A large open space is being considered for a new skate park similar in size to the skate park at Norwalk Park that is being removed.

Gerdes Park - Ballfield lighting will be added to the main field. Design work is being completed and the project is due to be bid in late spring. The $300,000 project will increase play time capacity for the leagues that currently use the field.

November, the City Council approved plans for a new restroom building and dog park using Prop 68 funds.

Prior to the series, the Pony Leaguers all watched the Little League World Series and commented on the way some of them acted up in front of the cameras.

Sanchez' son Victor said of the Little leaguers at the time: "Coach ouldn't let us get away with that stuff," he said. "Showing up the other team. Showboating. That's not right. If we did that, he'd yell at us and we'd be sitting on the bench."

In the championship game, Victor Sanchez had six RBIs and a home run.

Victor Sanchez said later after the game to the local newspaper: "It feels great," he said. "I'm still kind of shocked."

Victor Sanchez' brother, Jorge Sanchez also said of the Little Bob White Park - Last Leaguers: "I wouldn't want anybody to do that to me, if they hit a homer off me.

While Democrats debate Latinx, Latinos head to the GOP

By Mike Madrid

Democrats working to save their slim majority in the House in November's elections have been sounding alarm bells lately over research showing that Republican attacks on culture-war issues are working, particularly with centerleft, Hispanic and independent voters. Hispanic voters, many of us alienated by progressive labels and mottos like "Latinx" and "defund the police," have been drifting rightward as Donald Trump marginally increased the G.O.P. Hispanic vote share in 2016 and again in 2020 - a phenomenon, it should be noted, that goes beyond Mr. Trump or any individual campaign.

Democrats now understand that they are losing support among Hispanics on culture as well as pocketbook issues, leaving little in the message arsenal for the party's candidates to use to stanch what appears to be a long-term bleed.

The Democrats' problems with Hispanics are especially glaring when you consider that Republicans are not exactly flawless when it comes to appealing to these voters. Both parties have committed a mind-boggling form of political malpractice for years: They have consistently failed to understand what motivates Hispanic voters, a crucial and growing part of the electorate.

As the growth of the Hispanic eligible electorate continues to outpace other new eligible voting populations, the caricatures and stereotypes of "Hispanic issues" are proving further and further removed from the experience of most Hispanics. Yet, for all the hype and spin about Republican gains with Hispanic voters, the rightward shift of these voters is happening despite Republicans' best efforts, not because of them.

In the eyes of some on the American right, Hispanics are hyperreligious Catholics or evangelicals, entrepreneurial, anti-communist, social conservatives reminiscent of the ethnic white voters of yesteryear. To some on the left, we're seen as angry, racially oppressed workers of the cultural vanguard who want to upend capitalism while demanding open borders. While none of these caricatures are accurate, in them there are enough grains of truth to lull self-righteous partisans on both sides into believing that they may be on the winning side of the emerging ethnically pluralistic American majority.

In our current era of negative partisanship, voters are as often motivated to oppose the party they dislike or view as extreme as they are to support the party with which they align. Latinos, of course, are no different, and it is at the cultural extremes where Democrats face the greatest threat to losing what they have long viewed as the foundational base of their long-term majority prospects. As "culture" grows as a proxy for "race," the electoral math for Democrats will most likely get bleaker as political campaigns continue as referendums on "critical race theory" and "defunding the police." It will be worse still if Hispanics increasingly do not view themselves as an aggrieved racial minority.

This understanding will help determine which party controls Congress and the White House, beginning with the 2022 midterms. Under newly drawn district lines, four of the most competitive House seats will have Hispanic populations of at least 38 percent and are in California, Texas, New Mexico and Colorado. Additionally, Hispanic voters will be essential components of Senate and other statewide contests in Arizona and Nevada. The Latino voters in these states and districts are important for both parties. As the Democratic Party drifts away from its working-class roots and emphasizes cultural issues, Republicans are well positioned to pick up these politically untethered voters and with them the reins of power.

The recent debate over the term "Latinx" symbolizes the cultural alienation of institutions far removed from the realities of life for an overwhelming number of working-class Hispanics. "Latinx" was created as a gender-neutral alternative term in Spanish, a gendered language, that refers to males as "Latino" and females as "Latina'

Commonly used by media, political and academic elites as a sign of gender inclusivity, it is virtually nonexistent in the communities it refers to. In 2020 Pew Research revealed that only 3 percent of Latinos use the term, while 9 percent of white liberals think it is the most appropriate term to use. In fact, only 14 percent of Latinos with just a high school degree or less had even heard of it.

This was not a sign of intolerance but rather was emblematic of one class with the luxury of being consumed with such matters trying to impose their values on working-class families trying to keep up with paying the rent on Friday. Members of the Democratic Party don't just live in a distinct cultural bubble removed from the realities of their blue-collar counterparts, they are so removed from the rapidly growing Hispanic working class that many of them are now literally speaking a different language.

The growing cultural divide in America, in which Hispanics appear to be increasingly turned off by progressive mottos and movements, is linked to the education divide in America between college-educated and noncollegeeducated voters of all ethnicities. According to Pew Research, Republicans increasingly dominate in party affiliation among white noncollege voters, who make up 57 percent of all G.O.P. voters. This in a country where 64 percent of voters do not have a college degree.

The Democratic Party is losing its brand among white, working-class voters and Hispanics. This is especially pronounced among Hispanic men and Hispanic noncollege-educated voters, who are trending more Republican, just as their white noncollege-educated peers are. Latinos are increasingly voting similarly to noncollege whites, perhaps because they don't view themselves all that differently from them. Pew Research studies on Hispanic identity have shown that fully half of the country's Hispanics view themselves as "a typical American"; fewer responded as identifying as "very different from a typical American.'

For all the discussion about diversity within the Latino community, and the now-trite adage that the community is not "monolithic," in fact what unites most Hispanics is that they are an important share of the blue-collar noncollege-educated work force, and their presence in the labor force is only growing. The "essential workers" of the pandemic are disproportionately Black and Latino, and as a decidedly younger demographic, Hispanic workers are filling the roles of manufacturing, agricultural and construction trades in tates with large Hispanic populations.

Democrats have increasingly become a party shaped by and reliant upon white voters with college degrees. Compared with 40.1 percent of white adults age 25 and older, only 18.8 percent of Latino adults in this age group have a bachelor's degree. Latinos are, and increasingly will be, a key part of the bluecollar work force of the future and their politics are reflecting that.

From 71 percent support for President Barack Obama in 2012 to 66 percent for Hillary Clinton and 59 percent for Joe Biden in 2020, Democrats find themselves slowly but measurably losing hold of Latinos, the fastest-growing segment of the electorate. As Latino voters grow in number in key battleground states, they are increasingly rejecting the minority construct promulgated by the media, academia and Democratic politicians and consultants.

The party that is able to express the values of a multiethnic working class will be the majority party for the next generation. As we continue to watch the country's culture war increasingly divided by education levels, it is quite likely that Latino voters will continue to trend, even if marginally, into the ranks of Republican voters. The country stands on the precipice of a significant political shift. As President Ronald Reagan once quipped, quoting a Republican sheriff nominee, "I didn't leave the Democratic Party, the Democratic Party left me."

Downey's controversial sports bar

Dear Editor:

We would like to correct some misinformation included in recent news coverage about the new Ojos Locos Sports Cantina opening in Downey.

We are a restaurant and sports bar serving wings, Tex-Mex items, sandwiches, and more, and like similarly positioned sports bar restaurants with female servers, our standard uniform includes skorts and t-shirts. The picture posted with a recent newspaper article was misleading in suggesting that our servers wear lingerie as their uniforms. This is not the case.

In addition, a quote in that article suggested that our restaurants are known for attracting criminal behavior and even biker gangs. This is simply not true and apparently the person who said this must have confused our concept with that of a different brand. Since this will be our first California location, for someone to make such statements that are not factual, puts us in a negative light, one that we do not deserve.

Ojos Locos is proud to support each individual community we serve, and we work collaboratively with members of each community to adhere to local requirements and preferences. This has been the case in Downey and will continue to be as we work to bring our concept to Downey with great food, excellent service, and an exciting atmosphere, all while adding 120 new jobs to the Downey community.

Rick Van Warner on behalf of Ojos Locos

Dear Editor:

I'm confused. Is it 1922 or 2022?

Have the anti-Ojos Locos crowd been to the beach in the last decade? Have they seen what young women are wearing? Are they paying attention to what their daughters are wearing every day?

After this censorship campaign, what next? Book-burning bonfire nights in the Downey High parking lot? Banning alcohol sales in Downey?

I understand the publicity seeking politicians. All eager to pose, Trump-like, holding up a bible in front of Denny's. But Downey is not the Twilight Zone. There's no going back to the 1890's.

As long as there's sufficient security, we should give these people a chance to make good.

John Marinelli

Downey

Dear Editor:

As I read the article and opinions about a potential new business hoping to open at the old Denny's site on Firestone and Dolan, the residents of Downey have a right to be upset. This business should've been proposed near an industrial setting, not in the business sector near schools, churches, and a hospital.

Who were the council members deciding Ojos Locos should establish in Downey? Didn't they first evaluate this business? How do council members view women? This isn't West Hollywood.

A clinic, King Taco, a family restaurant like Heritage Family, or anything else would be more fitting for the surrounding community.

Doesn't Downey already have enough liquor businesses to go around? It's up to the council people how they want to run their city and have respect for their residents. These kinds of venues you'll see in the San Fernando Valley. It only takes one business to open up and others will follow.

The next Covid wave is probably already on its way

By Dr. Tom Frieden

The most important lesson of the Covid pandemic is that the only constant is change. Variants spread, cases surge and abate, treatments change and knowledge expands. This means that we - the public, elected officials and public health leaders - need to learn constantly and adapt quickly, acting on the insight that no one policy response is likely to stay effective for long.

Now is the moment to put that flexibility into practice. Rising Covid cases in Europe, the toll Omicron is taking particularly on unvaccinated elderly people in Hong Kong and slowing vaccinations are warnings that another wave of infections is likely approaching the United States. But we are by no means helpless. We can prepare better, save lives and reduce disruption.

Although the exact reasons for the rapid increase in cases in Europe aren't known, it almost certainly results from a combination of the highly infectious BA.2 Omicron subvariant, changing public behavior and waning immunity.

BA.2 is making up an increasing proportion of new cases, and is extending the Omicron surge. At the same time, countries in Europe are lifting Covid-19 restrictions, including mask mandates and indoor capacity limits, and immunity to infection from vaccines and possibly also from prior infections is waning. Thankfully, although protection against infection through vaccination is something of a flash-in-the-pan phenomenon, the protection vaccines provide against severe infection and death is more durable.

We've also learned more about the nature of the threat. It has been an open question whether Omicron is a much less severe variant of the Covid virus than earlier strains, or if it has caused much less severe disease because it had run into a wall of immunity from vaccination and prior infection in the United States, Europe and parts of Asia with high vaccination rates. The deadly outbreak in Hong Kong answers that question: Covid remains ferocious, and Omicron is lethal in an immunologically naïve population, particularly among unvaccinated older people. This has caused the devastating surge in deaths there and helps explain why the United States continues to report around 1,000 deaths per day, the vast majority among people not up-to-date with vaccination.

Unfortunately, in the United States and many other high-income countries, vaccination has slowed to a trickle: It's down in the United States by more than 95 percent from the peak of 4 million vaccinations a day. In some countries of Africa, where competing health risks are substantial and the health care Until U.S. primary health care systems are much more robust, diagnosis, infrastructure is stretched thin, vaccination rates are very low and are likely to remain so for many months.

The risks for the United States are clear. BA.2 is increasing and will likely soon account for most new cases in the country. Masks have come off and approximately 60 percent of Americans, including more than one third of people above age 65 — more than 15 million seniors — are not up-to-date with vaccination. This doesn't mean that BA.2 will inevitably cause a deadly surge. But it does mean that cases may increase soon, and that unvaccinated and under-vaccinated elderly and medically vulnerable people could face a deadly threat.

Leaders need to redouble efforts to get more Americans, particularly older adults, vaccinated and boosted. Also, people who are older or immunocompromised and those around them should consider masking with a more protective N95 or equivalent mask. Increasing access to rapid testing could blunt the case increase by isolating people faster and linking those who test positive to rapid treatment with medications which drastically reduce the risk of severe illness.

Improving vaccination rates may be harder with the rollback of vaccine mandates, which increased vaccine uptake and saved lives. With vaccine mandates politically or legally infeasible in some places, other strategies become increasing important. These include ensuring that every physician offers Covid-19 vaccination to every patient at every clinical visit. Outreach programs and media campaigns can engage people without a regular doctor or who are otherwise not receiving care. Providers and health systems should reach out to every Medicare patient who may not be up-to-date to schedule vaccination.

Repeated Covid surges have thrown into relief the underlying weaknesses and chronic underfunding of our public health and primary health care systems. Infectious diseases emerge where society fails. Lack of trust limits the ability of governments to protect their people. Weak public health systems mean that new threats are discovered when it's too late to take action. Sustained funding can help ensure Americans are protected from future pandemic threats by allowing permanent budget-cap exemptions for critical health defense functions rather than relying on transient supplemental funding for each health emergency.

treatment and vaccination against Covid and other threats will remain lacking, allowing Covid to spread, and to do so among populations that are far less resilient than they would be if people received good preventive care.

"Follow the science" is a mantra, but science can be painfully slow and decisions inevitably need to be made before perfect information is available. We don't yet know what's driving the emergence of variants or what future variants will bring. Nor do we know the optimal vaccination schedule for different groups, whether a fourth dose will be needed, and, if so, for whom and when. And we don't know whether the highly effective treatments that have been discovered, on which the Biden administration is betting heavily, can reach enough people to greatly reduce hospitalizations and deaths. The struggle to get even half of eligible Americans up to date with vaccination doesn't bode well for widespread treatment; treatment is generally much more difficult to scale than vaccination.

Even so, we must try. Public health, like politics, is the art of the possible. Rigorous epidemiology, meticulous response management and wellcommunicated science need to be the foundation of public health action. Increasing vaccination, including boosters, among older and vulnerable people is a life-or-death challenge. Scaling up the linkage of testing to treatment can reduce hospitalizations and deaths substantially and protect health care systems. The United States also needs to support faster detection and response systems nationwide and globally. As a supplement to strengthening other tracking systems, monitoring for Covid in wastewater, as is done for polio and other diseases, may identify disease spread before many people become ill. If public health professionals find outbreaks right as they start, leaders can limit spread.

For now, most of us can enjoy the warm spring sun on our unmasked faces. But we can also do a lot more to control Covid. If we learn quickly and act quickly, we can outmaneuver the virus. As Covid continues to adapt, our response needs to adapt along with it. We could be entering the endgame for Covid. How we play it will determine what happens next.

Dr. Frieden was the director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention from 2009 to 2017.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF JOHN WILLIAM GLASSON CASE NO. 22STPB02009

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the WILL or estate, or both of JOHN WILLIAM GLASSON.

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by JOHN JACOB GLASSON in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES. THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that JOHN JACOB GLASSON be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent. THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act with limited authority. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority. A HEARING on the petition will be held in this court as follows: 04/07/22 at 8:30AM in Dept. 79 located at 111 N. HILL ST., LOS ANGELES, CA 90012 E YOLL OR IECT to the granting of the

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney. IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Paging Dr. Frischer...

By Dr. Alan Frischer

Last weekend my wife and I planned to stream a movie, and I offered to microwave some popcorn. The popcorn 50 was delicious, but was that actually a good idea? Air-popped popcorn is whole grain, high in fiber, low in calories, and linked to a lower risk of heart disease, diabetes, some cancers, and several other diseases. It's a good snack, inexpensive, and tasty. This sounds just great.

However, before you start eating it by the handful, let's ensure that your popcorn is a truly healthful snack. We see a completely different product in a movie theater: A tub of oldfashioned movie theater popcorn can contain 2,650 milligrams of sodium. Sodium is one of the leading risk factors for hypertension and stroke. That same tub can also pack over a thousand calories of saturated fat. Saturated fats contribute to atherosclerosis, which leads to vascular disease, stroke and heart attack. (Of course, not all movie theater popcorn is the same. Some is popped in canola oil, which certainly has calories, but is heart healthy.)

It certainly is simple, clean, and fast to make popcorn in prepared microwave packets. But ingredients vary widely. Select one with the fewest ingredients, and avoid those with additives, artificial ingredients, processed oils and saturated fats, and high amounts of salt or sugar.

Some of the most healthful microwave popcorn options that you might wish to try include Quinn White Cheddar and Sea Salt; Black Jewell; Whole Foods' 365 Organic Popcorn; Orville Redenbacher's Skinnygirl; and Newman's Own Touch of Butter.

Many of the larger, popular microwave popcorn brands now offer more healthful alternatives alongside their more traditional offerings. Jolly Time, Pop-Secret, and Act II now have options that are not loaded with palm oil, butter, and salt. The secret is to avoid the ones that do

It's clear that popcorn can be a fantastic, unprocessed, wholegrain, and healthful snack. It is simply an entire corn kernel, which pops when heated. However, movie theater-style popcorn, loaded with butter and salt, is an entirely different matter. I urge you to limit your saturated ("bad") fats, and to limit your sodium. Be vigilant in reading microwave popcorn labels. They are not all created the same.

Of course, the best way to be in control of the oil, butter, salt and sugar that you put into your body is to make your snacking popcorn at home with an air popper.

Enjoy healthy snacking with your next movie!

NORWALK - Norwalk parks renovations over the next several years, according to a presentation to the City Council on Feb. 22.

Among the recommended upgrades are adding block walls in parks that would provide better security and decrease continued maintenance costs for repairs due to cut fences and vandalism.

In addition, new pour-N-Play surfaces for playgrounds will create a safer environment for children and decreased staff time and maintenance, officials said.

The city also recommended the installation and upgrade of ballfield lighting at parks that will increase hours of operation.

The City Council was supportive

"We need to invest the money are in store for upgrades and we have, while at the same time aggressively go after additional said Mayor Rick resources," Ramirez. "We need to upgrade these parks now.'

> A few highlights of the planned park projects:

> Hermosillo Park - Norwalk has been awarded an $8.5 million grant through Prop 68 to rehabilitate the park. Funding includes the construction of a new community building, restrooms, parking lot, and various amenities throughout the park. The playground was replaced in 2018 and will remain but a new Pour-N-Play surface will be installed.

Norwalk Park – Plans include new sports fields, playgrounds, an November, the City Council additional restroom facility, and a variety of amenities.

$14,000 was approved in Norwalk 2021-22 budget for laser leveling of ballfields, which will be completed in the coming months.

Holifield Park - One of the playgrounds was recently replaced, funded by the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors. A large open space is being considered for a new skate park similar in size to the skate park at Norwalk Park that is being removed.

Gerdes Park - Ballfield lighting will be added to the main field. Design work is being completed and the project is due to be bid in late spring. The $300,000 project will increase play time capacity for the leagues that currently use the field.

Bob White Park - Last approved plans for a new restroom building and dog park using Prop 68 funds.

Report: LA has most polluted air in United States

By City News Service

LOS ANGELES - Los Angeles has the most polluted air out of more than 2,400 U.S. cities analyzed in a report released Tuesday by an airquality monitoring firm, despite the city showing 6% pollution decrease in 2021 compared to the previous year.

Air pollution globally degraded to unhealthy levels in 2021, according to the report by IQAir, a company that tracks global air quality and markets air-purification systems. The report found that pollution in every country, and in 97% of cities, exceeded the World Health Organization's air quality guidelines.

"It is a shocking fact that no major city or country is providing safe and healthy air to their citizens according to the latest World Health Organization air quality guidelines," Frank Hammes, CEO of IQAir, said in a statement. "This report underscores just how much that everyone has safe, clean and pollution. The French territory healthy air to breathe. The time for action is now.

According to the report, the five most polluted countries in 2021 were Bangladesh, Chad, Pakistan, Tajikistan and India. The United States ranked 90th on the list.

The report noted that U.S. air quality has generally improved over the past 50 years, fine-particle pollution actually increased nationally by 7% between 2020 and 2021.

"The country's reliance on fossil fuels, increasing severity of wildfires as well as varying enforcement of the Clean Air Act from administration to administration have all added to U.S. air pollution," according to the report. "Nationwide, 264 million people lived in areas where pollution levels were above the WHO annual guideline for PM2.5 concentrations in 2021."

The report found that privilege. worldwide, only 222 cities of the 6,475 analyzed met the work remains to be done to ensure WHO standards for fine-particle of New Caledonia, and the U.S. territories of Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands met the guidelines.

We understand better than ever before how air pollution damages our health and economies,' Greenpeace India Campaign manager Avinash Chanchal said in a statement released with the report. "This report is a wakeup call, revealing how people worldwide are denied access to clean air. Particulate matter air pollution is produced through burning fuels including coal, oil and fossil gas, unsustainable development, and agricultural activities. Addressing the air pollution crisis requires the development of renewable energy resources and clean-powered, accessible public transport. Moreover, solutions to air pollution are also solutions to the climate crisis. Breathing clean air should be a basic human right, not a

Reflecting on a legacy of service in the Army: Women's History Month

By Mario A. Guerra Contributor

During the celebration of Women's History Month, I wanted to reflect on a few amazing women soldiers that have helped change our country.

The national 2022 Women's History Month theme is "Women Providing Healing, Promoting Hope." This theme pays tribute to the ceaseless work of caregivers and recognizes the thousands of ways that women of all cultures have provided both healing and hope throughout history.

Throughout history, women have made our Army stronger, from the vital roles they played in the Revolutionary War to their service today as Soldiers, nurses, operators, secretaries, codebreakers, military intelligence, troop leaders and maintenance and supply workers. Female Soldiers, Army Civilians, Veterans, and family members are critical members of our Army team.

The strength of the Army comes from its diversity. Developing and maintaining qualified and demographically diverse leadership is critical for mission effectiveness and is essential to national security. Army leaders across the department continue to set the conditions for all Soldiers and civilians to reach their full potential and assign tasks and jobs throughout the force based on ability, not gender.

Making up 16% of the total force, by the end of 2021, the Army had assessed and integrated more than 9,400 women into Infantry, Armor, Field Artillery, Air Defense, Engineer, Field Artillery and Aviation specialties.

In 2021, Secretary Christine Wormuth was sworn in as the 25th Secretary of the Army and the first woman named to the service's highest position. I proudly serve under her leadership.

Later that year, Lt. Gen. Donna

Martin became the first woman to out the ball herself rather than be appointed Inspector General of the Army. The Army had its first all-woman changing of the guard at the admitted to the hospital for a fever, Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington National Cemetery.

And while women continue to take advantage of the opportunities finally open to them through elite training and schools, they are also able to see women in leadership roles previously held only by men.

Gen. Laura Richardson became the second woman in Army history promoted to the rank of four-star general and only the second woman in history to lead a combatant command in October 2021. I've been able to meet with her several times and you can see her leadership instantly.

These women embody the Army's virtues of loyalty, duty, respect, selfless service, honor, integrity, and personal courage. I want to share with you the stories of some women who made our diverse nation what it is today.

During the Revolutionary War, women served the U.S. Army in traditional roles as nurses, seamstresses and cooks for troops in camp.

Some courageous women served in combat either alongside their husbands or disguised as men, while others operated as spies for the cause. Though not in uniform, women shared Soldiers' hardships, including inadequate housing and little compensation.

Deborah Sampson, man and used the name Robert Shurtleff in order to fight in the Revolutionary War. Assigned duties as a scout, even leading a raid on a Tory house that led to the capture of 15 men, she evaded detection for a year and a half, despite being highest military honor. wounded twice Women continued to distinguish themselves with selfless service during the Civil War as well. For example, Harriet Tubman, born into slavery and best known for her work guiding dozens of slaves to freedom on the Underground Railroad, was also a scout and a spy for the Union Army. She helped John Brown plan and recruit for his 1859 raid on Harpers Ferry, and organized and a led a group of freed slaves who sought out information about Confederate troops in the Beaufort, South Carolina area.

Her work enabled Union troops to conduct a series of raids to acquire supplies and destroy enemy torpedoes, railroads and bridges.

Tubman is also the first woman to lead an armed expedition in the Civil War, guiding the raid at Combahee Ferry and liberating more than 700 enslaved people. Following the war, she remained active in the Women's Suffrage movement until being overcome by illness. In 2021, Tubman was posthumously inducted into the Military Intelligence Hall of Fame in a ceremony at Fort Huachuca.

in uniform also guaranteed their freedom." More than 35 thousand American women volunteered for military service during World War I. The Navy and the Marine Corps were the first military services to recruit women for non-combat positions such as radio electricians, telephone operators, accountants and clerks.

More than half of the women who served in the military during World War I were part of the Army Nurse Corps, and most of the switchboard operators were women. They worked close to or at the front lines, living in bunkers and makeshift tents. Grace Banker, a switchboard operator who served as the chief operator of mobile for the American Expeditionary Forces in the Signal Corps, was awarded the Distinguished 4 Service Medal for her extraordinary service assuring the success of the telephone service during the operations of the 1st Army during the Meuse Argonne offensive in 1918.

for the right to vote for decades, without much real success. But with women serving overseas, it was through an enemy kill zone, where hard to ignore the call for equality. The service of these women inspired change across the nation and helped to propel the ratification of the 19th Amendment in August 1920, guaranteeing women the vote.

She led the Army Nurse Corps at the height of the Vietnam War and in 1970, became the first woman promoted to General Officer in the U.S. Armed Forces. She pushed to expand scholarship opportunities and education for Army nurses. She also supported policy changes, so married nurses who became pregnant were not automatically discharged.

> Due to the exceptional service women in the military during World War II, President Harry S. Truman signed the Women's Armed Service Integration Act into law on June 12, 1948. This bill authorized a permanent presence of women in the military. Women continued to prove themselves over and over during the conflicts in Iraq and Afghanistan.

In 2005, Sergeant Leigh Ann Hester, a military police officer in the Kentucky National Guard, became the first woman awarded the Silver Star since Mary Roberts Women had been fighting Wilson in World War II. When her convoy was attacked near Baghdad, Hester maneuvered her team she assaulted a trench line with grenades and M-203 rounds, then engaged three enemy soldiers while clearing two more trenches, thus saving numerous American lives. Specialist Monica Brown, a medic, was the first woman to receive the Silver Star during the War in Afghanistan, and the second to earn the Silver Star since World War II. Brown was riding in a convoy on a routine security patrol when the trail vehicle struck a pressure plate improvised explosive device - commonly referred to as an IED – the initiating event for a planned ambush. As enemy fighters engaged the patrol, Brown ran through gunfire to provide medical care to wounded Soldiers, at one point throwing herself over the wounded to shield them from mortar fire. Approximately 15 mortars impacted within close range as Brown continued to help her fellow Soldiers. As the platoon continued to return fire, Brown once again shielded the wounded

There are common threads that run through the stories of these women and our veterans. These individuals are willing to put the needs of their country above their own. They fight for equality and fairness. And it is this self-sacrifice and determination that ensures that our country not only survives, but thrives.

Today, women have more opportunities than ever in the Armed Forces. About 16% of the Total Army is female and all positions in the Army are open to women. Women are serving in positions that provide full and challenging career and promotion opportunities. We know from history and experience that the contributions and achievements of women make our Army stronger. I said before that the theme this year is: "Women Providing Healing; Promoting Hope.'

We honor the hard work of the women who paved the way for today's Soldiers. And we honor today's Soldiers for securing our future - a future for women with more opportunities than ever before. Right now, in a recruiting station, or Basic Training class, or ROTC program are young women, eager to serve, whose energy, talent and leadership will shape our future military. We know that when women succeed, America succeeds. The strength of our economy rests on whether we make it possible for every citizen to contribute to our growth and prosperity. As we honor the many patriots who have shaped not only the destinies of other women, but also the direction of our history, let us resolve to build on their efforts in our own time. Thank You for reading this and allowing me to honor just a few amazing women in our country Mario A.
