Residents hear updates at forum

NORWALK - The City of Norwalk held its first hybrid community forum March 31, the first such forum event of the year.

The event took place at Paddison Elementary School, which is the first time that the event had been held at that location.

There were four short presentations prior to the questions and answers portion of the event. The presentations dealt with the most frequently mentioned topics that have been brought to the city's attention: traffic enforcement, homelessness, street repairs, new development projects, and the state mandated organic/food waste recycling program.

Residents were in attendance both virtually and in-person to have their questions answered by city staff. Key highlights from the presentations included:

•Traffic enforcement improved this year compared to the end of 2021, which led to an overall reduction in vehicle collisions during this time period.

•The Homeless Operation Prevention and Engagement (HOPE) COVID-19 relief funding has been team has visited 599 locations, cleaned 39 encampments, referred 413 individuals for support services.

•Concrete work and asphalt replacement will be completed in Zone 28 (the neighborhood within Excelsior Dr., Norwalk Blvd., Alondra Blvd., and Pioneer Blvd.) by the end of April 2022. Work will also begin in other parts of the City this summer.

•The Norwalk Entertainment District, Norwalk Transit Village, and Heart of Norwalk projects continue to seek feedback from the community to determine how these projects can best suit the community.

•Plans for the development of a Holiday Inn, Sprouts Farmers Market, and a second Chick-fil-A continue to move forward. The Sprouts is expected to open in the fall of this year.

•A representative from Athens Services clarified the SB 1383 organic/ food waste mandates that residents and businesses must comply with statewide. Athens created a recycling guide that can be found on its website to help residents determine how to properly use recycling bins.

Additional community forums are planned throughout the year and will be announced via the Norwalk Now newsletter and the city's social media pages.

LA County urges Congress to continue Covid funding

• Officials worry that a reduction in funding could limit access to testing and vaccinations.

By City News Service

LOS ANGELES negotiations continue in Washington, D.C., the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors Tuesday urged Congress to approve additional COVID-19 funding to ensure continued access to vaccinations, testing and care for virus patients.

The board unanimously approved a motion by Supervisor Hilda Solis to formally urge President Joe Biden and members of Congress to negotiate an agreement that continues funding for COVID health measures.

"For the last two years, federal critical in supporting our efforts in Los Angeles County to combat this unprecedented pandemic," Solis said in a statement after the vote. 'With these resources, our county, with our federally qualified health centers, hospitals and community partners, has created an extensive testing network, supported a massive vaccination effort with large scale and mobile vaccination sites, distributed PPE to our most vulnerable, and delivered lifesaving therapies and treatments to those with COVID-19.

"These funds were essential, and they helped us provide services to those most in need, including low-income communities and communities of color," she said.

The board's vote came one day after news that congressional leaders had reached a tentative agreement on a $10 billion COVIDresponse funding package. The total well below the White House's original $22.5 billion funding request, and below a more recent $15 billion agreement.

The reduction in funds primarily represented money that would be used to battle virus outside the United States.

Los Angeles County officials As have expressed concern in recent weeks about possible cuts in federal funding domestically that could hamper continued COVIDcontrol measures -- most notably in providing access to testing and vaccinations, and for treatment of patients without insurance.

> Solis wrote in her motion that a reduction in federal funding will force health-care agencies that care for "vulnerable" residents to "absorb costs, turn people away or withdraw from the significant network that the county has built for testing, vaccine administration and treatment."

Speaking to the board Tuesday, Public Health Director Barbara Ferrer reiterated that local COVID case and hospitalization rates are down dramatically from the winter surge, although the decline in infection numbers has leveled off.

She noted that over the past week, the seven-day daily average of new cases was 783 -- a 19% increase from the prior week. Average daily deaths, however, remained low at 14 per day, nearly half of the average of 27 per day two weeks ago.

Hospitalizations have also remained low, she said. According to state figures, there were 297 COVID-positive patients reported in county hospitals as of Tuesday, up from 287 a day earlier. There were 42 of those patients being treated in intensive care, down one from the previous day.

Ferrer reported 708 new COVID cases on Tuesday, along with 12 additional virus-related deaths.

Hilda Solis

overall death toll of 31,722, and a cumulative case total of 2,837,430.

The average daily rate of people testing positive for the virus was 0.8% as of Tuesday, roughly the same level as the past several weeks.

Ferrer noted that there has been a recent upswing in outbreaks of cases in school classrooms. She said that last week, only four classroom outbreaks were reported, but for the week of March 28 through Sunday, 10 were reported. And on Monday alone, six new classroom outbreaks were reported.

"While we don't see significant increases in the number of students and staff that are testing positive through routine testing, we are ... seeing a sharp uptick in school outbreaks," she said.

She said the county continues to strongly recommend that people wear masks indoors at schools, even though they are not required. The county is also recommending that schools across the county conduct weekly testing for unvaccinated

NORWALK - The bipartisan omnibus appropriations bill signed by President Joe Biden on March 11 includes more than $1.72 million earmarked specifically for Norwalk.

Included in the bill is $1.72 million for Norwalk's Smart Cities Digital Divide project, which will provide free wifi zones at Norwalk public parks and city facilities.

The wi-fi project is designed for Norwalk's underserved students, employees, workers and small businesses, with free internet at parks and facilities where residents may not have access to the internet.

'This funding is much needed to help bridge that gap in access to free wifi, especially for our students in the city," said Mayor Rick Ramirez. "My city council colleagues and I have been working with our legislators at all levels of government to secure funding to improve our city.

"I was honored to successfully include funding for this critical project in the City of Norwalk," said Rep. Linda Sanchez. "Taxpayers deserve to have a say in where their money is spent and I am glad to have secured this funding at the city's request. This project will make life better for students and residents all across Norwalk."

Also included in the appropriations bill is $250,000 for an environmental infrastructure project with the Army Corps of Engineers. The project will ensure that Norwalk's groundwater remains safe.

Norwalk named a 'Tree City USA'

NORWALK - Norwalk is officially a 2021 Tree City USA, the eighth year in a row that Norwalk has earned the recognition.

The Tree City USA program is one of the Arbor Day Foundation's earliest programs.

Cities achieve Tree City USA recognition by meeting the following four requirements: forming a tree board or department, creating a tree care ordinance, having an annual community forestry budget of at least $2 per capita, and an Arbor Day observance and proclamation.

"It is a great honor to be recognized as a Tree City USA for the eighth year in a row," said Mayor Rick Ramirez. "My City Council colleagues and I are committed to the environment and this program highlights the importance of trees in our community and makes it an even more attractive place to live."

Dan Lambre, chief executive of the Arbor Day Foundation, said Tree City USA communities benefit from the positive effects that an urban tree canopy offers.

"The trees being planted and cared for by Norwalk ensure that generations to come will enjoy a better quality of life," Lambre said. "Additionally, participation in this program help cultivate a sense of stewardship and pride for the trees the community plants and cares for."

County bypasses sheriff to discipline unvaccinated deputies

County officials could discipline sheriff's deputies who refuse to get vaccinated against Covid-19.

By City News Service

LOS ANGELES - In a move prompted by Sheriff Alex Villanueva's refusal to enforce a vaccine mandate for deputies, the county Board of Supervisors approved an ordinance Tuesday giving the county personnel director overriding authority to discipline any employees who fail to comply with the requirement.

Supervisors Sheila Kuehl and Holly Mitchell introduced the proposal in February, citing lax compliance with the vaccine mandate in the sheriff's department. At the time, they said more than 81% of the county's 100,000 employees were fully vaccinated, but the rate was less than 60% in the sheriff's department.

"Unsurprisingly, approximately 74% of the more than 5,000 COVID-19- related workers compensation claims filed by county employees as of Jan. 29, 2022, have been filed by employees in the sheriff's department," according to the motion. "This data illustrates vaccinations' vital role in limiting the spread of COVID-19 and thus, the urgent need to increase vaccination rates across the entire county workforce."

The authority to discipline -- or terminate -- employees who violate the mandate previously rested with individual department heads, such as the sheriff. But Kuehl and Mitchell argued in their motion that the arrangement "has allowed for inconsistent application and enforcement of the policy and wide variety from department to department."

The ordinance was approved Tuesday on a 4-1 vote, with Kathryn Supervisor Barger dissenting. Barger said in February she opposed the adoption of such a countywide ordinance aimed at a single department head --Villanueva.

Villanueva has repeatedly spoken out against the county's vaccine mandate, saying it would decimate the ranks of what he calls an already depleted department. He said deputies should have the option of undergoing regular testing rather than being forced to get vaccinated.

He told the board in February the shift in disciplinary authority would be a "death blow to public safety in Los Angeles County" that would have little impact.

He argued that as of early February, his department's fully vaccinated members had tested positive for COVID-19 over the previous month at a rate of 1973: Artist Pablo Picasso died at age 91.

LA donating surplus police equipment to Ukraine

LOS ANGELES - The Los Angeles Police Commission Tuesday approved the donation of surplus ballistic helmets and vests from the Los Angeles Police Department to a foundation that will deliver the equipment to Ukraine for its army to use in defense against Russia.

The 526 helmets and 378 vests will be donated to the First-In Fire Foundation, which will be responsible for the shipment and delivery to Ukraine. The department said the items are prepared in pallets and ready for immediate shipping.

"The equipment has no value to the LAPD," the department's chief Michel Moore said in a letter to the commission. The equipment was going to be destroyed after exceeding the manufacturer's five-year warranty.

Moore added that Mayor Eric Garcetti "is aware of this donation and fully supports the transfer of the equipment to aid the Ukrainian people.'

The commission unanimously passed the motion without a discussion.

Russia has been accused of "apparent war crimes" against Ukrainian civilians by Human Rights Watch, and President Joe Biden on Monday called Russian killings of civilians in Bucha a "war crime."

Los Angeles has sought ways to aid the beleaguered nation. The City Council on March 25 voted to initiate the process to adopt Kyiv as a Los Angeles sister city, which would allow L.A. to send Kyiv retired goods such as ambulances and fire trucks.

The motion, presented by Councilman Joe Buscaino, acknowledges that it is "literally the last thing on the minds of the leaders of Kyiv" -- but it calls for initiating the sister city process now as a sign of support for the Ukrainian capital amid Russia's invasion.

Republicans put party over country by voting against Ketanji Brown Jackson

By Susan Estrich

The announcements by Sens. Lisa Murkowski and Mitt Romney that they would join fellow Republican Sen. Susan Collins of Maine in supporting Judge Ketanji Brown Jackson's nomination to the Supreme Court gives a small margin of bipartisan support to a highly qualified nominee.

Make no mistake: There is no reason to oppose this woman on the merits. She is highly qualified and well prepared, smart and savvy, a person of enormous dignity and integrity who will bring valuable experience to the Court. And after witnessing her demeanor during the hearings, where she maintained her composure in the midst of ridiculous questioning, she surely has the temperament to serve on the Court.

In announcing her support for the nominee, Murkowski praised the judge's "qualifications, which no one questions; her demonstrated judicial independence; her demeanor and temperament; and the important perspective she would bring to the court." Romney called Judge Jackson "a well-qualified jurist and a person of honor."

So why did every Republican on the Senate Judiciary Committee vote against her confirmation?

Why did they put her through bruising hearings, cross-examining her on such irrelevancies as the kindergarten curriculum of the private school whose board she sits on?

Murkowski, in announcing her support, said she was supporting Jackson in part to reject "the corrosive politicization of the review process for Supreme Court nominees, which, on both sides of the aisle, is growing worse and more detached from reality by the year."

That's putting it nicely.

It is a national disgrace

With the war in Ukraine and skyrocketing prices here at home, Americans can be excused if we paid less attention to this confirmation process than we have to some of those that went before, when there were fewer distractions. Just as well. It was terrible to watch. Whatever you thought of some of the prior hearings, this one was worse because it was about absolutely nothing. There were no witnesses questioning the nominee's character or honesty. There was really no basis for opposition on the merits. The woman before the committee was brilliant and well-qualified. But she was also a Democrat, appointed by a president who Republicans are determined to undermine, right or wrong.

What has happened to us? Why can't we unite behind a history-making appointment and show our kids, ourselves and the world that we are capable of moving past our partisan divides, that democracy works, that people who disagree can nonetheless work together for the common good? Isn't that what we are trying to show the world?

Instead, small-minded Republicans are preparing a nasty opposition to a qualified woman who will be confirmed and will at least have a lifetime appointment to recover from the bruising battle of confirmation, which is more than can be said for those who face similar scrutiny for short-term posts.

It should not take the courage it does to support a highly qualified nominee like Jackson.

There should be more than three Republicans willing to break ranks with the knee-jerk opposition.

What is the matter with the rest of the Republican Party? And will the voters recognize that come November, if they give the Republicans a real majority in the Senate, it may be the end of accomplishing anything at all? That is the point, I suppose.

Democratic paralysis? Is this what we want to show the world?

Apparently so. If they aren't willing to vote for a Black woman who is highly qualified, exactly who and what will they support?

When will Democrats get serious about repealing pot prohibition?

By Jacob Sullum

When Republicans who oppose federal marijuana prohibition vote against your legalization bill, you probably are doing something wrong. That is what happened last week, when the House of Representatives approved the Marijuana Opportunity Reinvestment and Expungement (MORE) Act by a vote of 220 to 204.

The ayes included 217 Democrats but only three Republicans, two fewer than voted for the MORE Act when the House passed it in 2020. The meager and waning GOP support for the bill suggests that Democrats want credit for trying to legalize marijuana but are not really interested in building the bipartisan coalition that would be necessary to accomplish that goal.

The 2020 vote was the first time that either chamber of Congress had approved legislation that would remove marijuana from the list of federally prohibited drugs. But as expected, the MORE Act went nowhere in the Republican-controlled Senate.

The Senate is now evenly divided between the two parties, with Democratic control depending on Vice President Kamala Harris' tie-breaking vote. So even if Democrats unanimously supported a legalization bill, they would still need the support of 10 Republicans to overcome a filibuster.

Democrats seem determined to ignore that political reality. Both the MORE Act and the legalization bill that Senate Majority Leader Chuck

Schumer (D-New York) plans to introduce this spring include unnecessarily contentious provisions that are bound to alienate Republicans who might otherwise be inclined to resolve the untenable conflict between federal prohibition and the laws that allow medical or recreational use of cannabis in 37 states

According to the latest Gallup poll, 68% of Americans think marijuana should be legal, including 83% of Democrats and 50% of Republicans. Even Republicans who are not crazy about the idea should be able to get behind legislation that would let states set their own marijuana policies without federal interference.

Such legislation can be straightforward. The Respect State Marijuana Laws Act of 2017, sponsored by then-Rep. Dana Rohrabacher (R-California), consisted of a single sentence that said the federal marijuana ban would not apply to conduct authorized by state law. Its 46 co-sponsors included 14 Republicans - 11 more than voted for the MORE Act last week

The Common Sense Cannabis Reform Act, which Rep. Dave Joyce (R-Ohio) introduced last May, is 14 pages long. So far it has just eight cosponsors, including four Republicans, but that still means it has more GOP support than Democrats managed to attract for the 92-page MORE Act, which includes new taxes, regulations and spending programs.

Rep. Thomas Massie (R-Kentucky) thinks Congress never should have banned marijuana because it had no constitutional authority to do so. He nevertheless voted against the MORE Act, objecting to the "new marijuana crimes" its tax and regulatory provisions would create, with each violation punishable by up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The 163-page preliminary version of Schumer's bill doubles down on the MORE Act's overly prescriptive and burdensome approach. It would levy a 25% federal excise tax on top of frequently hefty state and local taxes, impose picayune federal regulations and create the sort of "social equity" programs that gave pause even to Rep. Matt Gaetz (R-Florida), the MORE Act's lone Republican co-sponsor.

GOP support for marijuana federalism is clear from the fact that 106 Republicans voted last April for the Secure and Fair Enforcement (SAFE) Banking Act, which would protect financial institutions that serve statelicensed marijuana businesses from federal prosecution, forfeiture and regulatory penalties. The SAFE Banking Act would already be law if it had not been blocked by Schumer, who insisted that his own bill take priority.

Instead of building on the Republican appetite for letting states go their own way on this issue, Schumer is effectively telling GOP senators their views don't matter. That makes sense only if he is more interested in scoring political points than in reversing a morally, scientifically and constitutionally bankrupt policy that should have been abandoned long ago.

How healthy is the economy really?

By Susan Estrich

The United States added 431,000 new jobs last month, a sign, we are told, of how healthy the economy is.

You could have fooled me.

I'm not a numbers cruncher. I'm talking about how the economy feels, which translates pretty directly into how voters vote.

And it doesn't feel healthy, not at all.

A big part of the reason is inflation, of course, and the rising prices and hidden little taxes you find on menus, in Ubers and Lyft rides, and just about everywhere else. Believe it or not, in California, gas stations actually advertise gas that is priced north of $6 a gallon. People compare notes on how much it cost to fill their tank - that is, how much change you get for a hundred. It's hard to feel like the economy is healthy when the cost of eggs and gas and everything else keeps going up.

If the products are even there. Last week, my local grocery store ran out of orange juice. They didn't get their deliveries for three days. "Supply chain." I have no idea whether that's the same supply chain that delayed our dog food delivery or the same supply chain that, on a clear day, shows off huge container ships waiting in line 20 miles from the port of Los Angeles. But it doesn't matter.

The fact that everything costs so much more if you can even find it leads to a sense of economic insecurity that seems to pervade the country. It helps explain why, if the economy is so healthy, the president's approval ratings are so low. It's not just the war in Ukraine, where the truth is that the president is doing precisely what the majority of us want him to do, which is to support Ukraine and punish Russia without causing a world war. Not exactly the sort of stance you can literally rally around, but it's the best there is.

In California, the economic insecurity that is fed by the gas crisis is also fed by the homeless crisis, and the blight it has caused. No one who rides the Metro and has to avoid the homeless people who live there can really think that the economy is particularly healthy. No one who steps over people on their way to get a cup of coffee at a local shop, no one who witnesses a homeless person accost someone for no reason except their own mental illness, thinks to themselves, what a wonderful economy we live in.

The joke out here is that if we clean up California by sending the homeless back where they come from, the rest of America will start looking like the worst of California. There are places that already do. The blight of homelessness is a drag on our sense of economic security.

Then there are the "help wanted" signs. Yes, there are jobs to be had. Thankfully. But the high starting salaries aren't quite so high when you take into account the price of a sandwich and soda at lunch or what you pay to commute. And maybe my sample is skewed, though I help people from all walks of life, but finding the right job is no easier than it has ever been: Equal Employment Opportunity concerns lead to advertisements for openings that don't really exist, and the internet is often a black hole for applicants, leading to a sense of rejection and frustration that does not contribute to a positive view of the economy.

At the end of the day, there are two questions that go to the heart of an incumbent's status. One is whether people think the country is headed on the right or wrong track. The other is whether they think the incumbent understands/cares about the problems of people like them. A healthy economy should help on both, but the insecurity that is so much a part of the current economic climate eats away at the sense of well-being that is so crucial to the president's political health.

Priority No. 1 in Ukraine: avoid nuclear war

By Steve Chapman

Ever since Russian tanks and troops poured into Ukraine, there has been a clamor for the Biden administration to do more on the military front establish a no-fly zone, provide fighter jets to Ukraine and even prepare to send U.S. troops into battle. The reports of Russian atrocities will increase the pressure for stronger action. But the case against U.S. escalation remains exactly as it was: irrefutable.

Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy portrays NATO's caution as a monumental disgrace. Rebuking the German parliament in March, he invoked the Holocaust: "Every year politicians say 'never again.' Now I see that these words are worthless."

What is surprising is that even in the face of gruesome images and heartbreaking stories, Biden has rejected deeper involvement. He and most Washington policymakers understand that the only thing worse than the wanton savagery unleashed by Vladimir Putin would be the catastrophic effects of a nuclear attack. Making sure that doesn't happen is, and should be, Biden's highest priority.

It's easy to say the U.S. and its allies should have stopped Adolf Hitler when he first engaged in aggression. But Hitler didn't have doomsday weapons. Putin does. As military strategist Bernard Brodie wrote in 1946, the year after the U.S. used two atomic bombs against Japan: "Thus far the chief purpose of our military establishment has been to win wars. From now on its chief purpose must be to avert them."

In the decades after World War II, the United States and the Soviet Union became the worst of enemies - scheming and striving against each other in every corner of the globe. Both maintained enormous military forces. Both fought wars beyond their borders. But their relentless competition had clearly defined limits.

"At no point during the long history of the Cold War have Soviet and American military forces engaged each other directly in sustained hostilities," wrote historian John Lewis Gaddis in 1986. Why not? Because neither was willing to take the risk that a conventional conflict would end in Armageddon. Leaders embark on wars because they think they can win. But there can be no winner in a nuclear war.

The Soviet Union is gone. But the regime that replaced it has reminded everyone what it can do. At the outset of the invasion, Putin warned that any country trying to stop him would incur "consequences such as they have never seen in their history." Later, he said he had put Russia's nuclear forces on alert.

What's not clear is where his red line is located. During the Cold War, the Soviets provided arms and other aid to the North Koreans and the North Vietnamese during our wars against them. We did the same for the Afghans during the Russian occupation. Our assistance to Ukraine so far falls within the established rules of the road.

But setting up a no-fly zone would not, because U.S. warplanes would be shooting down Russian ones. Sending jet fighters to Zelenskyy would fall into a gray area — but carries the danger of pushing Putin too far.

Maybe he's bluffing about using nukes. But maybe he's not. The consequences of believing him and being wrong would be horrendous.

But the consequences of not believing him and being wrong would be cataclysmic.

The carnage wrought by Russia in Ukraine may seem so awful that failing to do whatever is necessary to stop it amounts to a moral outrage. But the lesson of the post-World War II era is that unbearable moral outrages must sometimes be borne.

During the Cold War, the Communist rulers of the Soviet Union held half of Europe in bondage, crushing democratic movements wherever they emerged. They abused their own people, sending some 14 million to forced labor camps. The West had to accept these unconscionable barbarities rather than try to undo them and risk annihilation.

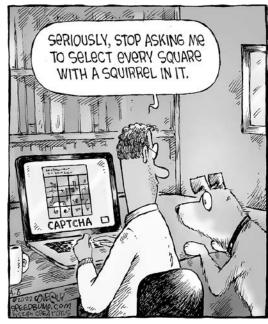

The real urgency here is finding a way to end the war through a negotiated settlement. That inevitably will mean the world will have to ratify some illegitimate Russian gains. But there's no good alternative. In the realm of foreign policy, the choice is often between a terrible option and a worse

The images of civilians who were murdered by Russian troops and left in the streets or buried in mass graves are painful to contemplate. But before we escalate in response, we should take a long look at another set of images: from Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

At Rancho, healthcare Rancho hospital named workers self-care a priority A national survey ranked Rancho Los Amigos National Created before the pandemic, a volunteer program at Rancho Los Amigos aims to ensure hospital staff also take care of themselves.

By Zachary Deere Rancho Los Amigos Foundation

DOWNEY - Helping Healers Heal, also known as "H3", is making an amazing difference at Rancho Los Amigos National Rehabilitation Center.

"The spirit of H3 is to take a traumatic or significant event a health care worker has experienced and provide them with a safe and confidential space for immediate support. This way, an individual can turn a moment of crisis into a situation that they can thrive in," shared Kelli McSwan, Clinical Psychologist and Director of H3 at Rancho Los Amigos. "Healthcare providers are often so focused on caring for others that they forget to care for themselves.

The H3 model was first introduced to the Rancho Los Amigos staff in 2019 and at Rancho, each department has at least two staff members who have volunteered to undergo specific H3 training

By decentralizing the program, staff are able to get emotional support from trained coworkers who can fully empathize and understand the ins and outs of their specific workplace. In addition, these H3 "champions" are given the flexibility to accommodate an impromptu H3 interaction when needed without taking time or quality of care away from their patients.

With the added pressures on healthcare workers over the last two years, Dr. McSwan has made it her mission to make sure that all 1,500+ Rancho staff members not only know about H3, but also feel comfortable accessing these resources.

Equipped with snacks and treats provided by the Rancho Los Amigos Foundation, Dr. McSwan, along with Speech Therapist, Sarah Taylor, regularly make rounds throughout the hospital to educate staff about this invaluable resource and to council staff when necessary.

Dr. McSwan hopes that H<sub>3</sub>'s impact at Rancho will continue to grow and so too will the ways staff can connect. Whether through one-on-one sessions, group meetings, bereavement sessions, or spontaneous conversations in the halls, H3 will continue to break the stigma around mental health and will care for those who care for others.

For more information on the programs and services funded by the Rancho Los Amigos Foundation or to make a donation, please visit us at www. RanchoFoundation.org.

La Mirada wins 35th consecutive Suburban League game

High School Baseball Round-Up

• With three weeks left in the season, the Matadores are closing in on another league title.

By John Sherrard Contributor

LA MIRADA - With the season winding down for high school baseball and only three weeks left before playoffs, the La Mirada Baseball team is on a roll.

The Matadores have won seven of their last eight, which includes five Suburban League wins in a row.

Not only are they undefeated in league this season, but La Mirada (15-4-1, 5-0) has now won 35 consecutive league games dating back to 2016.

with a tough schedule," La Mirada of 154-58-2 since he took over Baseball coach Jimmy Zurn said. "You don't win championships without winning league. I'm a league.

product of the Suburban League and we want to be a consistently good team.

"This is all a tribute to our coaches and all of the hard work.'

Asked about the winning streak, which Zurn hadn't realized it had reached that many games, said, "It's a tribute to our kids. In our program, we strive to be consistently good."

In late March, La Mirada played and won a close game against a fellow D1 team in Damien.

"We hit seven doubles in the Damien game with two D1 players on their team," Zurn added. "We're excited about playing these D1 teams and there's no better teams in Southern California.'

Zurn has been at the helm for the last five consecutive league titles "We've played well all year and has amassed an overall record in 2015. In his first year in 2015, the Matadores finished second in Overall, La Mirada has won 27 outs. Suburban League titles and two CIF Championships.

With two wins this week against Mayfair (4-0) on Tuesday and Bellflower (12-2) on Wednesday, the Matadores could be in a good position for their sixth straight league championship with three games to go.

La Mirada plays at home against Mayfair today (April 8).

Zurn, in his eighth year, has led his team to the CIF-Southern Section playoffs in six of seven years. In 2020, the team was off to a 6-2 start before the season was cancelled.

The Matadores reached the semifinals in Division 2 in 2019, losing to eventual CIF Champion Cypress, 1-0.

From 2016 through the 2019, La Mirada has had at least 23 wins each season, with 26 wins in '18 and '19.

La Mirada 12, Bellflower 1

In the first of two league games against Bellflower last Friday (April 1), the Matadores had their secondlargest run output of the season, with a 12-1 win.

In the game, La Mirada was led by junior left fielder Aidan Haller (3 for 4), who knocked in three runs, scored a run and had two doubles.

With two hits each was freshman first baseman Maverek Russell (2 for 3, R, 3 RBIs, Dbl.), freshman Aiden Aguayo (2 for 4, R, pitching staff as a whole is really Dbl.) and junior third baseman Eric good." Jeon (2 for 4, R, 2 RBIs)

The Matadores had 14 hits in the game.

La Mirada got off to a quick start in the game with five runs in the first inning.

The first three batters - senior shortstop Noah Rodriguez, senior center fielder Rudy Gonzales and senior catcher Andrew Pyle - all walked to load the bases with no

A passed ball, sacrifice fly by Russell and a single by Aguayo gave the Matadores a quick 3-0 lead. That was followed by back-toback doubles by Haller and junior designated hitter Pablo Hidalgo for the 5-0 lead.

The Matadores added single runs in the second and third innings for the 7-0 lead.

Meanwhile, Matadores junior pitcher Benjamin Kim was sailing along without allowing a run in the first three innings in his first start of the season.

The right hander allowed a run in the fourth, but a great diving catch by the Matadores senior right fielder, Derek Cruz, saved a second run from scoring to end the inning.

La Mirada added five more runs in the top of the fifth to take a commanding, 12-1 lead.

In the inning, Haller doubled and came home for the eighth run on a single by Hildago. Jeon then singled in a run (9-1) and Russell doubled in two more runs for the 11-1 lead and Aguayo singled home the 12th run.
