Classes resume after latest campus mass shooting

A gunman killed 19 kids at a Texas elementary school, sparking another nationwide debate on how to keep students safe.

By Eric Pierce and City News Service

NORWALK - One day after a tragic shooting at a Texas elementary school that killed 19 students and two teachers, campuses opened their doors as usual Wednesday across the Southland, with some under a closer watch from law enforcement hoping to offer some assurance of safety to students, parents and staff.

Orange County Sheriff Don Barnes said there were "no adequate words" to describe Tuesday's shooting at Robb Elementary School in Uvalde, Texas, about 85 miles west of San Antonio.

But he added, "While we believe this is an isolated incident, the Orange County Intelligence Assessment Center is monitoring the situation, and we will have an increased presence at schools in our jurisdiction (Wednesday).'

Barnes went on to say, "No parent should ever have to wonder if their child is safe at school. We extend our condolences and prayers to the grieving community of Uvalde."

In a statement, Norwalk-La Mirada Unified School District superintendent John Lopez expressed condolences for the victims and encouraged students and parents to report suspicious activity

"I want to emphasize our utmost commitment to the safety of our students and staff. Our schools will continue to be diligent in implementing our safety protocols. In addition, the District has connected with our law enforcement partners at the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department to increase their patrol units and presence around our schools.

"Understandably, students and staff may be concerned and will want to speak with someone about this tragedy. Please contact your school directly to be connected with counseling resources.

"As a community, we all must be vigilant and report any suspicious activity. Thank you for your continued partnership to ensure our schools are a safe place to learn and work."

Los Angeles County Sheriff Alex Villanueva said his department would be working with "school resource officers to ensure the safety of our children."

In neighboring Downey, officials emphasized collaboration between the Downey Police Department and Downey Unified School District.

"The Downey Police Department, is aware of the events that unfolded at Robb Elementary School [Tuesday] and are aware that events like this can happen anywhere and at anytime," said Police Chief Leslie Murray. "The Downey Unified School District (DUSD) Superintendent Dr. John Garcia and I are focused on the safety of our community. "As a result of community support for our facilities in 2014, DUSD has made significant physical upgrades to our campus safety which has supported our efforts to ensure another level of security for our students and staff.'

Los Angeles Police Department Chief Michel Moore said the department "is working closely with Los Angeles School Police to increase patrols around our schools and common pathways to ensure the safety of our children. We are also working diligently to investigate crimes and behaviors that can lead to future violence."

The Santa Monica Police Department issued a statement saying, "Even though we have no information of any credible threats occurring in our schools, personnel within our department will show a strong presence around our local schools." In Torrance, police Chief Jay Hart said the department "is committed to protecting the safety of Torrance students and continues to work with (Torrance Unified School District) to create an environment where students and teachers can thrive.<sup>2</sup>

In Long Beach, police issued a statement also saying there are no known threats of violence locally, but "we are maintaining a vigilant posture and increasing our patrol presence throughout the city, including at our schools."

Across the Southland, parents walked or drove their kids to schools as usual. There were no announced changes to any school schedules at the Los Angeles Unified School District, the second-largest district in the nation.

"Don't be afraid! Today is a day of showing our true colors to each other," LAUSD Superintendent Alberto Carvalho wrote on his Twitter page Wednesday morning, sharing a video of Cyndi Lauper's song "True Colors."

He again lamented the shooting, saying, "This devastating, repeating tragedy that keeps robbing us, as a nation, or our future, through the Tuesday's horror took place around noon Texas time.

Texas Gov. Greg Abbott initially confirmed that 14 students, along with a teacher, were killed when a single gunman struck. The number of students killed later rose to 18, and then to 19, along with two teachers.

According to reports, the gunman, identified as 18-year-old Salvador Ramos, allegedly shot his grandmother earlier in the day. then headed to the school, armed with a handgun and a rifle.

In addition to those killed, roughly 15 other children and two adults were injured in the shooting, according to various reports. The gunman was killed by police.

Carvalho and LAUSD board President Kelly Gonez issued a joint statement Tuesday saying, "Our hearts are with the victims of today's school shooting. May they have the strength and resilience to endure this unacceptable tragedy. As a nation, we must continue to speak up against gun violence. We have a moral and professional collective obligation of ensuring a perimeter of inviolable safety around schools. Enough is enough."

Cecily Myart-Cruz, president of United Teachers Los Angeles, the union representing LAUSD teachers, said in a statement, "We grieve with the parents, guardians, educators, students, families and the Uvalde community. It saddens us that once again our world is rocked with the senseless death of students and an educator. Our schools should be the safest spaces to send our children. ... Thoughts and prayers are not what's needed. We need gun reform now."

UCLA Chancellor Gene Block added, "Children should be able to go to school without the fear of violence. What happened today shakes me to my core."

In response to the calls for gun control, the Sacramento-based Gun Owners of California retweeted a statement from its partners at Gun Owners of America, saying, "We mourn the innocent Texans murdered this afternoon. Sadly, we have already seen significant politicization of this tragedy for political gain by those on the left, including most alarmingly, in fundraising emails -- but also in calls for gun control. Additionally, politicians who support the Second Amendment across the state and country are being made the subjects unacceptable, vitriolic, adof hominem attacks, and we stand in their defense.

"Instead of playing politics, we must discuss real solutions to preventing this type of evil from striking again, for example, by arming willing teachers which is a solution supported by 81% of police. If our elected officials are important enough to receive armed protection, so too should our children."

The nation's latest mass shooting came one day after Los Angeles elected officials, faith leaders and cultural leaders gathered at First AME Church of Los Angeles for a candlelight vigil to honor the victims killed in two racial- and hate-motivated mass shootings in Buffalo, New York, and Laguna Woods last week.

The vigil was hosted by the Los Angeles Civil + Human Rights and Equity Department and attended by Garcetti, Councilmen Curren Price and Paul Koretz and Los Angeles Police Department Chief Michel

Los Angeles County Supervisor Hilda Solis echoed those thoughts, saying on Twitter, "Gun violence has devastated far too many communities including Uvalde, Texas today. When is enough, enough? #EndGunViolence NOW."

Rep. Karen Bass, D-Los Angeles and a candidate for mayor, said, "After the shooting at Sandy Hook Elementary School, we said never again. ## Witnesses: Deputy gangs still active in LA County Sheriff's Department Employees of the Sheriff's Department testified that law enforcement would celebrate deputy shootings.

By City News Service

LOS ANGELES - Deputy cliques continue to fester at the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department, witnesses told an oversight commission Tuesday -- describing how members of the internal gangs initiate "work slowdowns" to assert their power and shun or even deny backup to deputies who fail to fall in line.

The testimony, which included a current East Los Angeles station employee who spoke anonymously by telephone with a disguised voice, came in the first of what is expected to be a series of hearings by the Civilian Oversight Commission, which announced earlier this year a "full-scale investigation" into roughly 12-15 deputies are tattooed allegations of deputy gangs.

The anonymous employee told the panel a gang known as the "Banditos" still essentially runs the East Los Angeles station, despite Sheriff Alex Villanueva's previous insistence that he cleaned house at the station. The witness said members of the group initiated a work slowdown as recently as known as the Executioners when actions members of the Banditos slowdown in 2019 because he took against outsider deputies, saying they would be shunned publicly, with members and their supporters turning their backs to those who defied the organization. In some cases, member deputies would refuse to provide backup to outsider deputies in the field.

response times to calls.

According to witnesses, members of the Banditos at the East L.A. Station, with another 10-15 considered associates.

Sheriff's Lt. Larry Waldie, who conceded being a member of a group of deputies known as the Gladiators when he was a deputy at the Compton station, told the panel he had run-ins with a tattooed gang last summer -- essentially slowing he became the station captain.

Waldie described how the The witness also described Executioners launched a work wouldn't assign a member of the gang or one of its supporters to the powerful position of scheduling deputy -- a post that controlled where station deputies were assigned and to which shifts. Waldie confirmed statistics that showed an uptick in criminal activity in the station's coverage area during the shutdown.

Waldie also said members of the Executioners would hold celebrations in response to deputy shootings.

Villanueva was invited to attend the commission's meeting, but did not appear at the meeting. He has repeatedly downplayed the influence of so- called deputy cliques, saying discipline cannot be meted out solely because deputies have a particular tattoo -- only if it leads to some type of criminal behavior.

He has also blasted the work of the Civilian Oversight Commission and Inspector General Max Huntsman, saying they are political pawns of the county Board of Supervisors, with which the sheriff has repeatedly clashed over budget and policy matters.

plans announced for investigation of deputy gangs, Villanueva called it a political move aimed at harming his re-election bid. He said in a statement that Huntsman's office has already been carrying out such a probe for three years and "not one deputy `gang member' has been identified."

"Almost 6,000 pages were provided to the OIG on this subject almost a year ago, and LASD.org has an entire webpage dedicated to this topic," he said. "There is nothing new."

Villanueva told ABC7 Tuesday the hearing was a "political stunt" that allowed witnesses to testify without cross-examination.

The sheriff said previously that he cracked down on the Banditos presence in East Los Angeles as one of his first acts upon being sworn commission in. He told reporters he removed an the station's leadership and about 30 deputies.

> Retired sheriff's Cmdr. Eli Vera, now a candidate challenging Villanueva, challenged that assertion in his testimony Tuesday, saying none of the transfers from the station were forced. Vera also said Villanueva has shown favoritism toward the East L.A. station, beginning with his inauguration ceremony, when the front of the auditorium was reserved for personnel from that station.

> "As a professional law enforcement officer, that is a very bad signal for the organization," Vera said.

> Vera was demoted from a division chief to commander when he announced his candidacy for sheriff.

We are a country that prioritizes guns over children

By Dr. Roxane Gay

There is a cultural obsession nowadays with civility, with the idea that if everyone is mannered enough, any impasse or difference of opinion can be bridged. But these are desperately uncivil times. And there is nothing more uncivilized than the political establishment's inurement to the constancy of mass shootings in the United States: 60 deaths in Las Vegas, 49 deaths in Orlando, 26 deaths at Sandy Hook, 13 deaths in Columbine, 10 deaths in Buffalo. Adults, schoolchildren, concertgoers, nightclub revelers, grocery shoppers, teachers.

The scale of death in Uvalde, Texas, is unfathomable. At least 19 children and two teachers are dead. These staggering numbers will not change one single thing.

Time and again we are told, both implicitly and explicitly, that all we can do is endure this constancy of violence. All we can do is hope these bullets don't hit our children or us. Or our families. Or our friends and neighbors. And if we dare to protest, if we dare to express our rage, if we dare to say enough, we are lectured about the importance of civility. We are told to stay calm and vote as an outlet for our anger.

Incivility runs through the history of this country, founded on stolen land, built with the labor of stolen lives. The document that governs our lives effectively denied more than half of the population the right to vote. It counted only three-fifths of the enslaved population when determining representation. If you want to talk about incivility, let us be clear about how deep those roots reach.

The United States has become ungovernable not because of political differences or protest or a lack of civility but because this is a country unwilling to protect and care for its citizens — its women, its racial minorities and especially its children.

When politicians talk about civility and public discourse, what they're really saying is that they would prefer for people to remain silent in the face of injustice. They want marginalized people to accept that the conditions of oppression are unalterable facts of life. They want to luxuriate in the power they hold, where they never have to compromise, never have to confront their consciences or lack thereof, never have to face the consequences of their inaction.

Gun violence is one of the problems with which they need not concern themselves because they believe these calamities will never affect them or their families. Instead, these politicians talk about protecting our Second Amendment rights — and they have reimagined the Second Amendment as something that will accommodate whatever the gun lobby wants, rather than what the Constitution actually says. With a conservative majority on the Supreme Court, the continued reinvention of the Second Amendment will likely flourish, unchecked.

When asked for solutions, Republicans talk about arming teachers and training them to defend their classrooms. We hear about how good guys with guns will valiantly stop mass shootings, even though there have been good guys with guns at several mass shootings and they have not prevented these tragedies.

These politicians offer platitudes and prayers and Bible verses. But they do not care to do what must be done to stop the next gun massacre or the average of 321 people shot a day in the United States — including 42 murders and 65 suicides. It is critical that we state this truth clearly and repeatedly and loudly. That we don't let them hide behind empty rhetoric. That they know we see through their lies. They must know that we know who they truly are.

They called for civility again and again, as they did during protests after Black people were shot or killed by the police in Ferguson and Kenosha and Minneapolis and Louisville. They called for civility when a draft of a Supreme Court decision that would overturn Roe v. Wade leaked this month. The draft decision tells people of childbearing age that they have no bodily autonomy. It is barbaric.

In the wake of the leak, there were lawful, peaceful protests outside some of the justices' homes. Journalists and politicians proceeded to fall all over themselves to condemn these protests as incivility — as if the protests were the problem. The Washington Post editorial board wrote that justices have a right to private lives, that public protests should never breach certain boundaries. They call for civility, but the definition of civility is malleable and everchanging. Civility is whatever enables them to wield power without question or challenge.

In March of last year, Senator Christopher Murphy of Connecticut reintroduced the Background Check Expansion Act. The bill is commonsense legislation mandating federal background checks for all firearm purchases, including private sales and transfers. Nothing has happened with this bill. The vast majority of voters support background checks, but Republicans in Congress are preventing the bare minimum of gun legislation.

Their obstruction is vile malfeasance. These are not people who value life, no matter what they say. They value power and control. This too we must state clearly and loudly and repeatedly.

There have been at least 213 mass shootings in the first 145 days of 2022. The politicians on both sides of the aisle who have enabled this convey no real sense of understanding or caring about the incivility of children practicing active-shooter drills and wearing bulletproof backpacks to school. They care nothing, it seems, about children being instructed to throw things at a gunman who might enter their classroom. They care about nothing but their own political interests.

On Tuesday morning, at least 19 children's parents woke them up and helped them brush their teeth, fed them breakfast, made sure they had their little backpacks packed. They held their children's small hands as they walked or drove them to school. Those children were alive when their parents waved to them and handed them their lunches and kissed their cheeks. Their lives were precious, and they mattered.

The greatest of American disgraces is knowing that no amount of rage or protest or devastation or loss will change anything about this country's relationship to guns or life. Nothing will change about a craven political system where policy is sold to the highest bidder. Language is inadequate for expressing this lack of civility.

Let us never forget our solemn pledge

By Joseph Reagan

On Memorial Day, 1945, the war in Europe had ended but the fighting in the Pacific continued, Lt. Gen. Lucian Truscott voiced remarks at the Sicily-Rome American Cemetery at Nettuno, Italy. Turning his back on the assembled VIP's he faced the rows upon rows of headstones and apologized to the 20,000 fallen Americans who had been laid to rest far from home. He was quoted as saying, "All over the world our soldiers sleep beneath the crosses. It is a challenge to us – all allied nations – to ensure that they do not and have not died in vain."

Fast forward to Memorial Day 2022, and the familiar voices of brothers in arms begin to call one another on the phone. People usually think of reconnecting with former military buddies as a joyous happening. However, for this Memorial Day, the topic of conversation was not an armistice, a promotion, or even a daughter's wedding or new addition to a home, it was about the latest in a string of suicides that silence the voice of our brothers but brought renewed connections from other familiar voices. One desperately said, "Sir, I needed to call someone who could understand this."

Everyone in the greatest generation understood war. At home they experienced rationing, schoolchildren collected scrap, and women took up factory jobs while overseas the troops endured combat and were witness to some of the largest and most brutal atrocities in the modern age. When the history as acts of war played out in real-time on our media devices. Although only one percent of Americans served post 9/11, it seems 100 percent of the country used their voice to express their opinions of this shared history as it unfolded.

For Korea and Vietnam Veterans, war was not a shared experience and therefore various voices having various opinions helped further the national conversation regarding the treatment of veterans leading to safer and more thoughtful approaches. Unlike the veterans of Korea and Vietnam, the veterans of the last several decades did not return home to the voices of dissent that could be addressed directly, instead, they returned to a polite nation that creates media of dissent and very little opportunity for honest, open dialog.

This new era of media, learning, and personal discussions bring rise to the question, "Do people really remember why we hold our veterans in a place of honor?" For years, voices saying meaningless phrases like "the enemy gets a vote" or "there's nothing you could have done" were meant to comfort those of us who have held the heavy responsibility of leading troops in combat. However, many people seem to lack the understanding that our hearts have been forever scarred by the invisible wounds of war, scarred by guilt and grief, and by the longing for forgiveness that will never come. Even if forgiveness was offered, it would be hard to accept as no mere words can undo a life experience and because of this, we often feel isolated, misunderstood, and undervalued therefore our voices remain silent. As conversations with the voice on the other end of the phone come to its inevitable conclusion, I am reminded that to remain silent is a betrayal of my obligation to those who made the ultimate sacrifice. As Horace Bushnell once said, the best thing for us to do is to remember "what they have put it on us to do for the dear common country to which they sold their life." As we gather as one nation this Memorial Day, my hope is that instead of directing shallow words of gratitude at each other, we do as Lt. Gen. Truscott did and direct our gratitude directly towards those who made the ultimate sacrifice. In both our words and actions, let us all commit ourselves to serve the country to which they gave their lives.

While there is still much work to be done, the generation of Veterans from this century have access to vast resources, life-saving technology, and increased information. This same generation of Veterans is just now starting to define our post-service legacy and like our grandparents, return home with a deep commitment to service, and a desire to address the many problems that we face.

One such issue needing to be addressed is helping Veterans find purpose in their post-service lives. Truscott's apology to the dead are not empty words, but a strong voice reminding us that we have an obligation to choose resilience and purpose when faced with guilt or grief. As an example, Gold Star Families, who have experienced tremendous loss, continue to serve their communities to maintain the legacy of the loved one they lost. I often recall a colleague of mine responding to the question "why do you do so much to help Veterans?" he simply held up his finger, choking back tears he responded, "for the one I couldn't save." By choosing to use his voice to advocate for other veterans, he not only helped them find their purpose – he found his own.

It's often said that for those who have served "every day is Memorial Day," a traditionally silent observance in the Veteran's mind that can best be described as an impossible trinity made up of an overwhelming sense of guilt, grief, and grit. Usually, a moment of silence on this day is a welcomed and solemn way to honor the voices from our past, but for myself, after losing three former soldiers to suicide in the past few months, silence is no longer an option and the freedom to use our voice is the greatest gift that our veterans have to offer this Memorial Day.

war was over, they followed the lead of Lt. Gen Truscott and committed their lives to ensure that they "have not died in vain." The shared sacrifice of a generation united them and helped them solve tough problems.

In subsequent wars, such as the Korean and Vietnam era, Veterans did not experience the same level of understanding and thus either turned their voice inward or used their voice to fight for one another on subjects that varied from Agent Orange, PTSD, and other once-silent conditions.

The War on Terror introduced a unique time in our nation's collective

When lazy lawyers are not enough

By Susan Estrich

The right to counsel in criminal cases is fundamental. Even schoolchildren can recite the famous warning: You have a right to be represented by counsel, and if you can't afford a lawyer, one will be appointed to represent you.

But having a lawyer is not simply a formality, although sometimes — with overburdened public defenders who meet their clients at the arraignment — it seems that way. No one should face the power of the state and the risk of losing their liberty without a lawyer by their side doing more than just standing there.

The adversary system depends on strong defense lawyers. The government always starts with an advantage in criminal cases, notwithstanding the formal presumption of innocence. They represent the "People." They speak for the victim. Where there's smoke, there's fire. And most of the time, they have far more resources at their disposal than the mostly indigent defendants they prosecute.

The Constitution does not simply guarantee a right to counsel, however incompetent, lazy or overburdened the counsel may be. In theory, according to well-established doctrine, counsel must be "effective." And therein lies the rub.

What happens if someone is sentenced to death after being represented horribly ineffectively by counsel? Back in the day, when death cases were rare, top firms, well-known lawyers, famous professors and elite advocacy groups would take them on to ensure a vigorous defense. Now that executions are frighteningly routine, defendants get no better representation than others in the system, which is the problem.

"Would you rather be rich and guilty or poor and innocent?" I used to ask my students, and the results were a troubling indictment of the system.

The Supreme Court this week, in a 6-3 decision, held that federal courts could not conduct evidentiary hearings to determine if two prisoners sentenced to die had been denied their right to counsel. In the first case, the lawyer at trial utterly failed to investigate or present evidence as to the defendant's impaired mental state, which would have provided a basis for the jury to mitigate his punishment to life in prison. In the second case, even more troubling, the defendant was sentenced to death for causing the death of his girlfriend's daughter after his lawyer failed to investigate whether the injuries had been suffered while the baby was being cared for by someone else.

In that case, Justice Clarence Thomas expressed outrage that the lower court had actually conducted a seven-day hearing to try to determine if an innocent man was about to be executed. Such a waste, said Thomas; "Ostensibly to assess cause and prejudice ... the district court ordered a seven-day hearing that included testimony from no fewer than 10 witnesses, including defense trial counsel, defense post-conviction counsel, the lead investigating detective, three forensic pathologists, an emergency medicine and trauma specialist, a biomechanics and functional human anatomy expert, and a crime scene and bloodstain pattern analyst."

But as Justice Sonia Sotomayor countered in dissent, the reason such an elaborate hearing was required was that the trial lawyers had done none of it. "Far from constituting an inappropriate and 'wholesale re-litigation of Jones's guilt,' the district court's hearing was wide-ranging precisely because the breakdown of the adversarial system in Jones's case was so egregious."

"Death is different," as the Court has long recognized.

The constitutionality of the death penalty depends on the ability of the system to get things right.

Proponents of the death penalty ought to be most troubled by this week's decision because it raises the question of whether the criminal justice system can be trusted to administer the death penalty fairly. Mistakes, it goes without saying, are not acceptable. A system fair enough to execute those found guilty must be one that fully adheres to the constitutional model. Lousy and lazy lawyers are not good enough; investigative resources must be provided. Death penalty cases should show the system at its best, not its worst.

The Supreme Court's decision, Sotomayor concluded, "will leave many people who were convicted in violation of the Sixth Amendment to face incarceration or even execution without any meaningful chance to vindicate their right to counsel."

Paging Dr. Frischer...

By Dr. Alan Frischer

I love to snack on nuts. They are filling, have a satisfying crunch, and are easy to grab. They are natural and wholesome, and suitable for vegetarians, vegans, and raw foodies. However, as you might guess, they come with some disadvantages as well.

What are some of the advantages of including nuts in our diet?

Nuts are high in vitamins and minerals, including vitamins A and B, copper, selenium, iron, calcium, magnesium, and phosphorus. The amount of each varies by nut.

Nuts are actually felt to help with weight loss. Nuts are indeed high in unsaturated fat (the "good" fat), which does come with calories. However, it has been shown that some nuts, like almonds, pistachios, and cashews, help to shed extra calories when eaten in moderation. Their high fiber content helps to curb appetite.

Eating nuts helps to lower LDL and total cholesterol. This is primarily due to their unsaturated fats. Some raw nuts also have higher levels of phytosterol, which helps to lower the risk of cardiovascular disease.

Nuts are rich in omega 3 fatty acids. Walnuts, almonds, macadamia, hazelnuts and pecans have the most. The health benefits of omega 3 fatty acids include reducing triglycerides, slowing the development of plaque in the arteries, reducing the chance of abnormal heart rhythms, reducing the risk of heart attack and stroke, and lessening the chance of sudden cardiac death in those with heart disease.

Since nuts don't affect insulin or glucose, they are a healthy option for diabetics. Nut butters like peanut butter have been shown to lower the risk of diabetes, particularly in women. Interestingly, almonds reduce the risk of after-meal sugar bumps.

Nuts are rich in plant proteins and dietary fiber. This makes them a healthy alternative to eating meat for protein.

What are the downsides of eating nuts?

Nuts, when consumed in large quantities, do add a lot of calories to the diet. Almonds have the lowest calorie count, at 160 calories per ounce. Of course, the calorie count depends on how they are processed. They may be coated in toffee, or fried in oils. Some are processed with preservatives, unhealthy chemicals, salt or sugar. The easiest way to keep the calorie count down is to avoid oil-roasted nuts. As always, read labels.

Nuts have high levels of oxalates. Oxalates can be a key ingredient in the formation of kidney stones.

For those prone to acne, nuts contain some oils that should be avoided.

For most of us, the pros of eating nuts far outweigh the cons. If you eat them frequently, I encourage you to stick with mostly raw, unprocessed and lightly salted nuts, and as with most things...to practice moderation.

Downey hires purchase, and acquire military equipment.

> The city's new policy authorizes use of a large amount of varying pieces of equipment under specific guidelines, including unmanned aircraft systems, armored vehicles, several types of less-lethal rounds, less-lethal shotguns, distraction devices, chemical agent and smoke canisters, pepper balls, rifles, and personally owned rifles.

The bill also required Downey LAHSA PD to inventory any military equipment that it had acquired prior to Jan. 1. of this year.

Councilmember Donald La Plante expressed annoyance with the new law, calling it "nonsense."

"The legislation may have had a good idea of requiring the cities to produce information on military police equipment; look at our agenda at what our police department had to do to comply with that law," said La Plante. "It's page upon page that provides detail upon detail about nothing ... This whole report is unfortunately nothing more than a pile of paperwork to document things like rubber bullets.'

When asked by La Plante how long it took staff to inventory the equipment, Police Chief Leslie Murray confirmed that it took also hired a firm to aid in that several DPD staff members a 'significant" amount of time, though was unable to give a specific number.

The inventory will need to take place annually, including a meeting held by DPD to allow for community manager. The firm will assist in input.

COMMERCE - Authorities Tuesday identified one of two men who died in a shooting at a Commerce business in what the sheriff's department said was an apparent murder-suicide.

The men died at the scene of the shooting, which occurred just before 11:45 a.m. Monday in the 2700 block of Supply Avenue, according to the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department.

One of the men was identified by the Los Angeles County coroner's office as Ronald Lee, 51, of Pasadena. Authorities withheld the the excess meals to protect the name of the other man, who was in his 50s pending notification of his

"the reported suicide," according to the coroner's office.

"The incident appeared to be a murder-suicide where an employee shot and killed another employee and then shot and killed himself," LASD Deputy Lizette Falcon said.

Anyone with information on the shooting was asked to contact the LASD Homicide Bureau at 323-890-5500. Anonymous tips can be called in to Crime Stoppers at 800-222-8477 or submitted at lacrimestoppers.org.

explains throwing away food

LOS ANGELES - Responding to a broadcast report, the Los Homeless Services Angeles said Tuesday its Authority employees throw uneaten food in dumpsters "to protect the health and safety of the people they serve.'

CBSLA said Monday its investigative team monitored LAHSA teams for months as they were tasked with picking up food and bringing it to people on the street. While many outreach workers were seen folding up empty boxes that previously held food -- which the station presumed had been after all the food was distributed -- another team allegedly drove around and stopped at Target, Starbucks and McDonald's without stopping to hand out food to unhoused people along the way.

Once that team returned to its office, the workers were caught on camera throwing a full case of food in the dumpster, CBSLA reported. Another team was also seen throwing food in the dumpster a block from people who were living on the street.

LAHSA responded Tuesday saying that "the health of the people we serve is of the utmost importance to LAHSA and our outreach teams."

The lunches LAHSA outreach teams provide to our unsheltered neighbors are perishable. While an outreach team will take out enough meals to serve everyone in their assigned area, not all of the people they encounter will accept them. When our teams have excess meals, they can give the meals to entities -- like shelters or service providers -- that can distribute them," LAHSA said.

"Otherwise, the teams discard health and safety of the people they

City Attorney Mike Feuer said Tuesday he wrote a letter to LAHSA's senior management calling for an explanation.

"With so many people experiencing homelessness desperate for food on our streets, this apparent waste of taxpayerfunded resources is inexplicable and utterly unacceptable," Feuer wrote. "This news report raises a host of pertinent questions and requires that LAHSA ensure an immediate investigation is conducted.<sup>3</sup>

Feuer asked LAHSA if it has written protocols for the distribution of food, who is responsible for ensuring the protocols are followed and if discarding undistributed food violates the protocols. He also asked what corrective action will be taken to ensure that food is not wasted again.
