NORWALK — It seems like a long time since the last opening day ceremony for the Norwalk-Santa Fe Springs Saints youth football and cheer program.

Actually, the last opener was in 2019 and last Saturday (August 13), it all came together at a packed Little Lake Park with parents, city officials and all of the players from the five divisions waiting to finally be recognized as a team.

To top it off, it was the 60th Anniversary of the organization.

"Yesterday's event was long awaited," NSFS president Babetta Gomez said. "We were not able to have opening day last season after coming back from the lockdown because equipment was delayed due to the shutdown.

"It's our 60th anniversary and it is very special," said an emotional Gomez. "We had a lot of obstacles getting here. As a board, for the kids, we worked together and kept it going. We've always, as a board, supported each other for the kids and the community. We were always still standing strong. We were able to get here to our 60th."

In attendance were the following city officials from both Norwalk and Santa Fe Springs: Rick Ramirez, Norwalk Mayor; Gabriel Jimenez, Little Lake City School District Board Member; Annette Rodriguez, Santa Fe Springs Mayor; Babetta Gomez, President NSFS Youth Football Program; Joe Angel Zamora, Santa Fe Springs Mayor Pro-Tem; Nick Cabral, NSFS Vice President & Head Coach 14U; Juanita Martin, Santa Fe Springs Council member and Norwalk Vice Mayor, Ana Valencia.

The ceremonies opened with the City of Norwalk's LCPI Worley Young Marines (Lance Corporal Worley) color guard leading everyone in the National Anthem.

The city officials gathered and gave all of the players high fives as they passed by when the teams were introduced.

"Our kids have worked hard all off season at our Sunday clinic in preparation for the start of our regular season," Gomez said. "It's good to finally see them play against another team. I know the kids are excited. My own son was really looking forward to playing Hawaiian Gardens today."

Gomez explained the difficulty in getting ready for the season.

"It was a little difficult getting equipment this season," Gomez said. "We had to go through three different vendors and some online companies, but we got the job done.

"We have every division this season and our teams are full. We are grateful for that."

The visiting Hawaiian Gardens flag team had difficulties getting all of their kids there (Saturday). So, in typical Saints fashion, the coaches worked together with their coaches and were able to have a practice game.

The 8U team didn't have a game scheduled, but they hung out along with their coaches to support all the other teams.

The 10U & 14U also played Hawaiian Gardens, while the 12U team played a round robin with Hawaiian Gardens and Downey.

"We're looking forward to seeing both these teams during the regular season." Added Gomez. "This program is my heart and it's a lot of work to run, but I'm happy to do it."

Gomez added her personal touch to the Saints program:

"All three of my kids have been Saints," she said. "My two older boys went through the program and have even helped coach."

"My middle son helped me last season as our equipment manager. My own experience as a parent in this program is great. I met longlasting friends that became part of my family and in some ways, they helped me raise my boys.

"My hope is that every parent gets that same experience nothing less than great. I am a strong believer that it takes a village to raise our kids and I'm glad to be part of that village."

The following are board members and coaches:

Monique Martinez - League

Nick Cabral - Vice President and 14U head Coach

Erroll Tucker. - Athletic Director & 10U Head Coach

Vanessa Garcia - Special events coordinator

Tanya Lopes - Social media manager

Don Ratliff - 6U Head Coach Anthony Ratliff - 8U head

oach

Ronnie Felic - 12U Head Coach

"Every season is different," Gomez explained. "We meet new parents. Some stay and some go and that's OK. As a board, our #### focus is this league and keeping it growing stronger every season. Sixty years strong and proud to be part of the NSFS Saint Family."

What they said:

Anthony Ratliff, Coach 8U: "It's a different field, different grass, but a field away, but it's the same thing. We love it to be out here. I'm traveling from 30 miles away, but the dedication is here.

It's where we grew up and played. We're here to bring the Saints

Don Ratliff, Coach 6U: "It feels great to give back to this community we grew up in. Until this day I remember the coaches' names that affected me. I enjoy being out here helping the kids."

Jordan Medrano, player, 14U: "I like the tackling, the running, the touchdowns. For offense I play running back and full back. For defense I play linebacker. I live in Norwalk."

Erroll Tucker, Athletic Director, Coach 10U: "I'm just looking forward to this year and making sure that we get off to a good start and have fun this year.

After the COVID year in 2020 where we didn't get a chance to play, a lot of kids were affected throughout the county and state. I think the kids were one year behind coming back and it took a lot to get the kids back into it in 2021. I think now we're back on the right track. The bright part is we're back in action in 2022 and we're ready to play ball."

Note: Tucker played in the NFL, drafted in 1986 by the Pittsburgh Steelers. He also played for the Buffalo Bills and new England Patriots.

Joe Angel Zamora, Mayor Pro-Tem, SF Springs: "We actually played in this field maybe 35 years ago. It makes me feel great to see the families out here. The best thing in a team is it brings out unity and it also prepares you for jobs. It's also prepares you for jobs and it also prepares you for the role that you have to have that discipline. That's the thing that we're missing in this world with our kids. This is what youth football does. It's a great thing and it's an honor to be here and I'm just glad that the kids are here playing football. The season is back. The Norwalk-Santa Fe Springs Saints is a great delight and a joy to my heart."

Rick Ramirez, Mayor, Norwalk: "I'm honored and privileged to be here on the 60th Anniversary. As an individual I love to see the community building – unity builds community. When you have the dedication of the family and the coaches in our youth in our community, and give them a positive outlet, I think

"As an elected official, building community is our priority and through sports I think we can accomplish that."

sports builds a commadore and sportsmanlike conduct.

Annette Rodriguez, Mayor, Santa Fe Springs: "It's great to be here to support the children. It's all about the youth and sports is everything. You got to keep the kids in sports. (The 60 years) means everything. It's our heritage and our legacy. That's why we're here to support it. We'll always be here."

Newsom said in 2018 he was "very, very open" to the idea of a injection sites. But in a statement Monday, Newsom said he was concerned over the "unintended consequences" of the bill, authored by Sen. Scott Wiener, D-San Francisco, because it would allow an unlimited number of safe injection sites.

Florida governor fights intolerance with intolerance

By Jacob Sullum

Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis, a leading presidential contender, is skilled at appealing to Republicans who resent the censorious self-righteousness of woke progressives. But instead of defending free inquiry and open debate, DeSantis seems bent on fighting intolerance with intolerance.

When he signed the Individual Freedom Act in April, DeSantis bragged that it would "prevent discriminatory instruction in the workplace," striking a blow against "the far-left woke agenda." But as a federal judge explained last week, the law's restrictions on employee training blatantly violate the First Amendment

The IFA expanded Florida's definition of "unlawful employment practices" to include "any required activity" that promotes one or more of eight forbidden concepts. Some of those ideas are plainly illiberal (e.g., linking moral status to race) or patently silly (e.g., viewing virtues such as excellence, hard work and fairness as white supremacist constructs), while others are ambiguous or debatable (e.g., the notion that "members of one race, color, sex, or national origin cannot and should not attempt to treat others without respect to race, color, sex, or national origin").

Whatever you think of those ideas, the government has no business decreeing whether and how they can be discussed in private workplaces. Yet that is what the IFA does: It allows discussion "in an objective manner without endorsement of the concepts" while forbidding speech that "espouses, promotes, advances, (or) inculcates" them.

As U.S. District Judge Mark Walker noted when he issued a preliminary injunction against those restrictions, they amount to "a naked viewpoint-based regulation on speech," which is presumptively unconstitutional. "Under our constitutional scheme," Walker observed, "the 'remedy' for repugnant speech 'is more speech, not enforced silence."

DeSantis argued that the IFA aims to prevent a "hostile work environment" created by ideas that might discomfit employees. Walker thought that was a stretch because that term encompasses speech only when it is "both objectively and subjectively offensive and when it is sufficiently severe or pervasive" — requirements that provide "shelter for core protected speech."

More to the point, conservatives have long criticized discrimination claims based on an allegedly hostile work environment, precisely because they can transform otherwise protected speech into illegal "harassment." Yet DeSantis is not only defending that concept; he is extending it to cover even a single "required activity" that "espouses" ideas he does not like.

The governor's support for Florida's social media law evinces a similar lack of principle. That 2021 law prohibits platforms like Facebook, Twitter and YouTube from removing or limiting access to content they deem objectionable, including material produced by "journalistic enterprises" and posts by or about political candidates.

As DeSantis saw it, the law would "ensure that 'We the People' — real Floridians across the Sunshine State — are guaranteed protection against the Silicon Valley elites." He said it would combat the "Big Tech censors" who "discriminate in favor of the dominant Silicon Valley ideology."

DeSantis likened Facebook et al.'s moderation decisions to the "censorship and other tyrannical behavior" of Cuban and Venezuelan despots. But as the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 11th Circuit pointed out when it blocked enforcement of Florida's law last May, such comparisons elide a constitutionally crucial distinction.

Unlike "Big Tech censors," an unconstrained government has the power to ban and punish controversial speech by force of law, as Florida sought to do with the IFA. The First Amendment, which aims to guard against that danger, does not impose any limits on the editorial judgment of private organizations.

To the contrary, the Supreme Court has repeatedly held that the First Amendment guarantees the right to exercise such discretion. But in Florida, Walker wryly noted, "the First Amendment apparently bars private actors from burdening speech, while the state may burden speech freely."

That backward view is not just diametrically wrong but dangerously shortsighted. Depending on the vicissitudes of elections, a government with the powers DeSantis has claimed easily could use them to advance "the farleft woke agenda" that keeps him awake at night.

Stop growing grass in the desert

By Froma Harrop

One can well understand the allure of the American Southwest.

Shirtsleeves in February. Natural beauty under a big starry sky. But as the region's water shortage approaches crisis levels, newcomers — and old-timers — may have to give up the idea that the good life includes a lush green lawn.

Las Vegas isn't Buffalo without the snow. Grass grows in Buffalo with minimal effort. Not so in Las Vegas, set in the Mojave Desert.

Grass needs lots of water, and the region's supplies are so strained that Las Vegas is sending out contractors to dig up "nonfunctional turf." The city defines "nonfunctional" as grass kept only for its good looks — in practice, grass along streets or at commercial sites.

Over 40 million people rely on the stressed Colorado River for water. Water levels in the river's two big reservoirs, Lake Powell and Lake Mead, are at historic low levels. Meanwhile, the other source that has provided water forever, underground aquifers, are drying up. Climate change and growing populations are making shortages worse.

As a result, states in the Southwest are facing a hard reality: Greenswards and gurgling fountains may become part of an unrealistic past.

Where water is scarcer, its distribution must be tightly managed. Layers of federal and local agencies must make the hard decisions about who gets how much water and for what. They have no choice but to tighten the rules.

That's why being rich and famous in the Southern California city of Calabasas still doesn't guarantee you a green lawn. Residents there are now limited to watering only eight minutes one day a week.

There's a reason golf was invented in Scotland. The weather there is cool and rainy, and that's what makes grass happy.

Not so in the Sonoran Desert, where Phoenix happens to be located. Phoenix is hot, dry and booming with new arrivals taking showers and flushing toilets.

And so it makes sense to ask why the Phoenix area has 165 golf courses. Having formed an alliance to defend their water allocations, the owners argue that year-round golf is important to the region's economy. That may be so, but couldn't they change the idea of what a golf course looks like?

Arizona farms use over half of the available water. Now getting less water than in previous years, they, too, have banded together. Perhaps the time has come for some of them to stop growing thirsty crops like cotton in the desert.

And what about homeowners? Arizona's cities and suburbs are still largely shielded from drastic cutbacks in water use, but a green lawn may no longer be in the cards.

The good news is that desert vegetation has its own charms. "This Old House" aired an interesting episode on landscaping a front yard in Phoenix. The result was largely a hardscape of pavement and rocks with spots of desert-friendly mesquite, lantana and, of course, cactus. One plant, the red yucca, offered dramatic blooms eight months a year.

No, it wasn't the opulent green carpets of Connecticut. On the other hand, you don't get eight months of bloom in Connecticut.

A reduced Colorado River has ignited new worries not directly tied to irrigation. Lake Powell has been a source of hydropower. Its water level has fallen so low that it soon may no longer be able to produce electricity serving millions of Westerners. Lake Powell is now down to 27% of capacity.

Mother Nature is a disciplinarian. If you want a lot of rain, move to Hawaii or Louisiana or Mississippi. Otherwise, learn to love the desert the way the Creator made it. Really, there's little choice in the matter.

By targeting Trump, FBI shows its inconsistencies

By Larry Elder

Attorney General Merrick Garland justified the unprecedented FBI raid of the residence of a former president by saying: "The department does not take such a decision lightly. Where possible, it is standard practice to seek less intrusive means as an alternative to a search, and to narrowly scope any search that is undertaken."

With the approval of former President Donald Trump and after a request by the Department of Justice, Magistrate Judge Bruce Reinhart, who approved the warrant, publicly released it, as well as the inventory of items removed. According to The Wall Street Journal, the FBI "removed 11 sets of classified documents, including some marked as top secret ... and ... took around 20 boxes of items, binders of photos, a handwritten note and the executive grant of clemency for Mr. Trump's ally Roger Stone."

The crimes the DOJ asserts include evidence of probable cause that Trump violated the part of the Espionage Act pertaining to classified information; removal of government records; and the destruction of records. Generally, disputes between a departing president as to what documents and materials can be removed and what should be returned are worked out between the president and the relevant government entities.

The problem is the appearance of a two-tiered system of justice, one pertaining to Trump and the other pertaining to laws or subpoenas allegedly violated by top Democratic officials like then-President Barack Obama's

Attorney General Eric Holder, who refused to comply with a congressional subpoena and became the only sitting AG to be found in criminal contempt of Congress; IRS official Lois Lerner, accused of withholding the granting of tax-exempt status to conservative charities and who refused to comply with a congressional subpoena; the treatment of Bill Clinton's National Security Adviser Sandy Berger, who removed and destroyed documents from the National Archives in 2003; and Secretary of State Hillary Clinton for her alleged violation of the Espionage Act.

Take Clinton's alleged violation of the Espionage Act because of the private server she installed in the basement of her home, a server on which she sent and received classified information. About Clinton and her staff, then-FBI head James Comey said, "there is evidence that they were extremely careless in their handling of very sensitive, highly classified information." But he concluded that Clinton was not engaged in "clearly intentional and willful mishandling of classified information."

But does the relevant part of the Espionage Act require "intent"?

Political columnist and commentator Charles Krauthammer wrote: "This is baffling. Under the statute (18 U.S.C. section 793(f)), it's a felony to mishandle classified information either intentionally or 'through gross negligence.' The evidence, as outlined by Comey, is overwhelming."

Former Assistant U.S. Attorney Andrew McCarthy wrote: "The question is whether she knew classified info would end up on the server, and her set-up made that inevitable. ... Clinton could've been prosecuted either for will fully mishandling classified info or for doing so through gross negligence."  $\,$

Peter van Buren, a 24-year veteran of the State Department, wrote: "While Comey maintains there was no intent or gross negligence by Clinton to violate the law, it is difficult to reconcile her actions and his statement. ... The standards applied in the Clinton case are at variance with how classified information violations elsewhere in the government are handled."

Harvard Professor Emeritus Alan Dershowitz wrote: "Berger was administratively fined, and Mrs. Clinton was rebuked by James Comey, then director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which might have cost her the 2016 election. But neither was subjected to broad search warrants or criminal prosecution."

There is much we still don't know about the underlying affidavit for the warrant and whether Trump broke laws in removing material from the White House. But given the treatment of top Democratic officials versus the treatment of Trump, did the FBI search of Mar-a-Lago meet what Garland called the "standard practice to seek less intrusive means as an alternative a search"?

At the very least, the optics look bad, really bad.

Time is now to fight climate change

By Steve Chapman

Riley Moore, the state treasurer of West Virginia, is fed up with people who worry about climate change. "The climate has been changing in the world since Earth was created," he informed The New York Times. "Whether these greenhouse gas emissions are contributing to the warming of the globe, I'm not sure I necessarily agree with that."

It was said of the Bourbons, who once ruled France, that they had learned nothing and forgotten nothing. When it comes to environmental matters, Republican politicians have learned nothing and forgotten everything.

The Inflation Reduction Act signed by Joe Biden Tuesday actually has a lot more to do with combating global warming than it does with inflation. It's a landmark achievement: the first major legislation ever to address climate change.

It will cut greenhouse gas emissions by as much as 42% from the level in 2005. It provides funds and tax breaks to encourage solar, wind and nuclear power, along with incentives for electric vehicles and energy conservation. The Rhodium Group, which does research on climate matters, calls it "a game changer for U.S. decarbonization."

Can you guess how many Republican members of Congress voted for it? Zero. Sen. Kevin Cramer of North Dakota scoffed at the Democrats' approach: "They just have a million ways to slow down development of fossil fuels. And I think we know at this point that is their religion and that's their conviction."

His theology, by contrast, treats climate concerns as the work of the devil. A big element of the GOP brand is an ostentatious indifference to the fate of the natural world. But there was nothing inevitable about that.

It was a Republican president, Richard Nixon, who created the federal Environmental Protection Agency. He also signed the Clean Air Act and the Endangered Species Act.

It was a Republican president, Ronald Reagan, who joined an international treaty to preserve the ozone layer. It was a Republican president, George H.W. Bush, who vowed to be "the environmental president" and signed a new Clean Air Act, which largely solved the problem of acid rain.

But today, the biggest problem is human-caused climate change, and it's a far worse problem because for decades, Republican presidents and legislators have blocked every attempt to resolve it — and, in many cases, denied its existence altogether.

George W. Bush withdrew from the Kyoto climate accord and refused to act on carbon dioxide. Donald Trump, who mocked the notion that the planet was heating up, scrapped Barack Obama's program to curb power plant emissions and abandoned the Paris climate agreement.

It was not so long ago -2003 — that Republican Sen. John McCain of Arizona came close to winning enactment of a "cap-and-trade" bill to reduce greenhouse gas emissions. But in 2019, the liberal Center for American Progress Action Fund reported that 150 Republicans in Congress "do not believe in the scientific consensus that human activity is making the Earth's climate change." That's 60% of GOP members.

They are in perfect tune with Republican voters. Two-thirds of them, according to a 2021 Gallup survey, don't believe that human activity is causing climate change — and 23% deny that global warming will ever occur.

It's a marvel that anyone can contemplate the onset of higher world temperatures, heat waves, droughts, wildfires and floods and then deny the reality of climate change. But immediate self-interest, propaganda and ideological fanaticism have made it impossible for most Republicans to come to grips with this dire reality.

Their blindness is willful. If you accept that climate change is happening, harmful and caused by humans, you have to admit that we need to take collective action to mitigate it. That, conservatives have never been willing to do

They have a reasonable skepticism about the ability of government to solve problems. But their attitude recalls what Mark Twain said about a cat that sits on a hot stove: It won't ever sit on a hot stove again — and it won't ever sit on a cold one.

Some problems can't be solved except through government measures, and climate change is a prime example. The reasonable conservative approach, as Republicans once understood, is to harness the power of the market and ingenuity of businesses to make those remedies as efficient as possible. But today's GOP has no place for reasonable conservatives.

legislation, we finally did something to curb climate change. But they will also remember those who chose to do nothing.

Americans a generation or two from now will remember that with this

In his short life, Valencia inspired many

■ In an interview one week before his death, Sebastian Valencia shared his ambitions for the future.

By Sarah Aguilar Contributor

ebastian Valencia, son of Rick and Sandra Valencia, was a young entrepreneur who impacted and inspired so many. I had the opportunity to interview Sebastian on Aug. 7 about what inspired him, the start of Brick LA, and his aspirations.

Sebastian mentioned to me that he had never done a sitdown interview like this and he was grateful for the opportunity to reflect on his journey so far. When asked what inspires him, he responded: "Others. Creating opportunities for those I care about.'

He loved watching others live out their potential and turning their dreams into reality. Sebastian started Brick L.A. because he wanted to make a name for himself and stand out in Downey. He remembers his business partner and best friend, Tony Ramirez, coming up to him and saying "you have been re-selling shoes since high school, let's start a business.

So they did. They secured their LLC, the location, and didn't even have a name yet but Sebastian knew that this was the next step for him.

Sahastian was a true heliever in being patient. He wanted others to know that the universe has everything mapped out and you can't force anything. Sebastian had dreams of opening up another Brick in Chicago and knew that the doors would open with time.

'You have to be patient and stay true to your intentions," he

When I asked Sebastian what keeps him going on his most challenging days, he said, "I practice being grateful. Meditating. Believing in energy and how our thoughts turn to words which turn to action.

He described that he felt others' energy and always wanted to provide positive energy because he wanted other people to feel that positivity to hopefully help them keep going.

Sebastian and his team, who he gave so much gratitude to, recently celebrated 1 year of Brick I A and he was most proud of the impact the store has had on the community.

"The way the kids come in the store with a big smile, there's no better feeling than seeing that," he said. "Also being able to give back to our community and our store is

He wanted others to know that failure is part of the process. Ninety percent of obstacles live in our heads so you need to think about where you are going to be in two years and go after it, Sebastian stated.

"When starting your own business, you have to have a plan and don't tell anyone unless they are there to help you," he said. "There will be people doubting you and that's okay. Keep your circle small with those who want to help you grow, just as my team has helped me."

I asked Sebastian who inspires him and he let out a big smile with a chuckle.

"I don't want to be cheesy and say my parents, but they do," he said. With Drake playing in the background, he added: "Drake
