L.A. County prepares to end eviction moratorium

■ A ban on rental evictions put in place in response to the Covid-19 pandemic is scheduled to expire at the end of this year.

By City News Service

LOS ANGELES – A divided Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors directed its staff Tuesday to begin a sweeping outreach campaign to ensure that renters, landlords and the 88 cities in the county are prepared for the rapidly approaching end of an eviction moratorium enacted in response to the COVID-19 pandemic.

The county's tenant protections are set to expire Dec. 31, and the board on a 3-2 vote Tuesday called for the development of a "coordinated strategy" to ensure all affected people and municipalities are prepared and aware of resources and financial assistance available to them.

"We must be proactive and perform robust outreach and communication to those that are going to be impacted," Supervisor Kathryn Barger, who introduced the motion, told her colleagues. "... This provides a plan to prepare both the tenants ... as well as the landlords."

Supervisors Sheila Kuehl and Hilda Solis opposed the motion, calling such an outreach campaign premature and suggesting the board may consider extending some renter protections.

"I intend to do everything I can to continue to protect them," Kuehl said, suggesting that launching a public outreach campaign now would "cause a lot of confusion."

Board Chair Holly Mitchell countered that the board voted in January to end the renter protections at the end of the year, and she's yet to see any motions or proposals that would extend them beyond Dec. 31. She said Barger's motion was only designed to ensure that people are aware the protections are set to expire.

is merely developing a plan to communicate what is going to happen in three months unless we change course," Mitchell said. "This motion ... doesn't for the first time articulate Dec. 31 as the end date. That happened in January. ... This says we have a responsibility to communicate the formal phase-out

Kuehl conceded that the eviction protection for non-payment of rent must end, but said she is interested in possibly extending some other protections, such as ensuring that people can only be evicted for just cause and preventing landlords from imposing dramatic rent

Mitchell responded, "If motions are coming forward to extend the emergency protections, great." But she added, "This motion says we need to communicate the impact of an action we took nine months

The motion specifically calls on county staff to create a strategy "to communicate the formal phase out of the county's emergency tenant protections for both landlords and

Retired LASD chief files retaliation suit against Villanueva

■ LaJuana Haselrig said she was retaliated against after reporting Alex Villanueva's

By City News Service

LOS ANGELES - A retired Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department chief Monday sued the county and Sheriff Alex Villanueva, the latest of several department members to claim Villanueva directed a coverup of a video of a deputy with his knee on the head of a man in custody for three minutes.

Plaintiff LaJuana Haselrig was often seen standing next Villanueva during news conferences, but her Los Angeles Superior Court lawsuit alleges whistleblower retaliation, racial discrimination, failure to take all steps to prevent discrimination, intentional infliction of emotional distress, defamation and violations of the Public Safety Officers Procedural Bill of Rights.

Haselrig seeks at least $5 million in damages. Also named as defendants are Cmdr. John Satterfield and Deputy David Yoo.

Villanueva, who has been hostile to Haselrig based on her race, "has a long history of making racist, resentful statements toward African-Americans including in the media," the suit states.

> Villanueva believes

"The motion before us today

It also calls on the county to reach out to the 88 cities within the county to notify them of the lifting of the protections. According to the motion, the county's eviction ordinance was used as a baseline for renter protections in individual cities, some of which chose to enact even more extensive protections.

are "enough" Blacks in sheriff's department management and wants to increase the number of Latinos in the department, the suit "ongoing corruption." Villanueva also has "maliciously targeted plaintiff for being a whistleblower as she exposed the sheriff's ongoing corruption and lack of ethics," the suit states.

Haselrig has a master's degree emergency management administration and has a long, successful 34-year history working for the department, the suit states.

Villanueva retaliated against Haselrig and other whistleblowers after they "exposed Villanueva's coverup of the use of excessive force on March 10, 2021, by Deputy Douglas Johnson against an inmate, Enzo Escalante," the suit states.

A sheriff's commander found out about the Escalante incident, so he and his supervisor, Haselrig, took all the necessary steps to handle the matter promptly and properly, the suit states.

"However, Sheriff Villanueva obstructed justice and covered the (use- of-force) incident up and retaliated against the plaintiff and others for blowing the whistle on the illegal conduct," the suit states.

Downey votes to give $30K to Rose Float

■ Pandemic restrictions have hampered fundraising efforts by the Downey Rose Float, which was awarded $30,000 in taxpayer subsidies Tuesday.

By Alex Dominguez Staff Writer

DOWNEY - The City of Downey will donate $30,000 to the Downey Rose Float Association to go towards their 2023 parade float.

The City Council voted unanimously Tuesday to approve the donation, with the money coming from the city's General Councilman Mario Trujillo said that the hoped the Rose Float "was part of the fabric of our city going

"This is a float that I hope is around when my grandkids are being raised here in Downey someday," said Trujillo. "I think a way to do that is by funding them, at least partly, so they have that seed money to start because it's so difficult to fundraise."

one of only six "self-built," non- to enter our float in the parade. commercial floats in the Rose Parade, funded by donations and designed, constructed, and decorated by volunteers.

Depending on float need, the Downey Rose Float Association raises anywhere between $65,000 to $100,000 annually, most of which coming from three major fundraisers: a Fourth of July firework stand, a Parade of Winners fundraiser, and the Miss Downey

Due to the Covid-19 pandemic, however, Parade of Winners and the Miss Downey Pageant have not been held in two and a half years, greatly impacting the organization's funding, according to a report presented to the City Council.

The City Council briefly considered making the donation an annual expenditure but those decisions will likely be held for budget talks next year.

Downey Rose Float has also historically applied and been approved for $8,000 in rental credit Public Corruption Unit also through the Downey Civic Theater Financial Assistance Program.

Construction Chair Kelley Roberts said that he's seen "more support from our city in the last 10 years" than over his over 40 years volunteering with Downey Rose

"I'm very proud of the city's decision, the float is happy with the decision," said Roberts. "It's going to move the float forward from here

According to Kelley, the $30,000 donation could cover the cost of flowers this year.

"It takes a lot of the stress off the association's back to raise money," said Roberts. "Every year, we deplete all the funds we raise by the end of the year, by the Rose Parade itself, January 1. The very next day, we're already planning the next float; we have to come up with our name Peace Over Violence" to insurance fees, our entry fees which operate a sexual harassment tip Downey's yearly float entry is are over probably $6,500 soon, just

> "When you spend all your raising money, and then towards 2020, a series of 'sole source' the end of the year you're paying out all the bills for flowers, construction material, etc., and then you start the new year, you're like 'There's nothing in the bank, or its very little so we've got to find ways to raise the money real quick to get that entry fee. So, this is going to help the float move forward and do some things."

> Talks of subsidizing the Downey Rose Float began in early August at the suggestion of Councilmembers Claudia M. Frometa and Trujillo, long history of friendship between with further discussions taking place at the Aug. 23 meeting.

Though a majority of the City Council seemed to be behind the funding, further information from city staff and an official request from the Rose Float Organization was requested.

Sheriff's investigators search Supervisor Sheila Kuehl's home

■ The search was related to a public corruption investigation but Kuehl called it political

By City News Service

SANTA MONICA -Los Sheriff's County Department investigators served multiple search warrants Wednesday -- including at the home and office of county Supervisor Sheila Kuehl -- in connection with a public corruption probe involving contracts awarded by the Metropolitan Transportation Authority to a nonprofit group run by a close friend of Kuehl.

Kuehl denied any wrongdoing and blasted the probe as a politically motivated act of harassment by Sheriff Alex Villanueva, who has repeatedly clashed with the Board of Supervisors.

Detectives from the sheriff's served warrants at the home of Patricia "Patti" Giggans and at the headquarters of Peace Over Violence, the nonprofit agency run by Giggans, who is a friend of Kuehl's and sits on the Los Angeles County Civilian Oversight Commission that oversees the sheriff's department.

The unit also served warrants at Kuehl's office at the county Hall of Administration, the Office of the Inspector General and the headquarters of the Los Angeles Metropolitan Transportation Authority, according to the sheriff's

According to a court affidavit filed in support of the search warrants, the case is a probe into "an allegation of criminal conduct" by Kuehl and three "sole source contracts awarded to a nonprofit organization operating under the line for employees and riders on the Metro transit system.

"Between the years of 2014contracts were awarded by the MTA to the Los Angeles-based nonprofit organization Peace Over Violence totaling over $890,000," according to the affidavit. "A sole source contract is a non-competitive procurement that allows a single supplier to fulfill the contractual obligations and requirements from, in this case, a public entity/ government contractor (MTA)."

The affidavit documents the Kuehl and Giggans, noting that Kuehl officiated Giggans' wedding in 2004 when she was a state senator. It also noted that Kuehl who serves on the Metro Board of Directors -- is a member of the advisory board of Peace Over Violence and that Kuehl appointed Giggans to the Civilian Oversight Commission.

Kuehl -- who has clashed repeatedly with Villanueva and has called for his resignation -- was escorted from her home in Santa Monica at around 7 a.m. by sheriff's deputies. She said she was alone at

Sheriff's deputies went inside her home, and could be seen opening and closing doors and taking photos or videos, the Los Angeles Times reported from the scene. Kuehl told reporters investigators took her cell

Kuehl told reporters outside her home the investigation was "bogus," suggesting it was a continuation of Villanueva's criticism and allegations of wrongdoing by the Board of Supervisors. She said she has no knowledge about the awarding of the Peace Over Violence contracts for the sexual harassment

'What this is all about is a disgruntled employee at Metro who was let go who became obsessed with a contract that Metro took with Peace Over Violence related to sexual harassment so that they would take the calls," Kuehl said. "And she claimed that I had something to do with the contract, which was completely false."

Giggans' attorney, Austin Dove, told The Times the raid amounted to "Third World tactics" by the sheriff's department. Dove also accused deputies carrying out the search of going beyond the limits outlined in the warrant -- including towing Giggans' car.

The Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office issued a statement Wednesday afternoon saying the sheriff's department presented its investigation into Kuehl and the Peace Over Violence contracts to prosecutors in September 2021 for consideration of possible criminal evidence at that time did not prove criminal conduct beyond a reasonable doubt," according to the D.A.'s Office. "LASD indicated that they would continue to investigate. We have not had additional contact on the matter and were not consulted or aware of the search warrants that were served today. In this case, because we did not review the warrant beforehand, we do not intend to defend it if challenged in

In a statement released late Wednesday afternoon, Kuehl said the "basis of this search was questionable and will be investigated."

"This morning's storming of my home by deputies with bulletproof vests and tactical gear was an effort to harass, intimidate and retaliate against a public figure who has been an outspoken critic of L.A. County Sheriff Alex Villanueva,"

Kuehl said in the statement. "I am claims former Metro CEO Phillip not the only such critic, and other courageous county leaders have sole- source contract to Peace also been the targets of this sheriff's vindictiveness."

Los Angeles City Councilman Mike Bonin, who also sits on the Metro Board of Directors, issued a statement blasting the investigation.

"This is a bogus, vindictive, politically motivated witch hunt by a corrupt sheriff with a track record of abusing his power and trying to silence and intimidate his critics," Bonin said. "Sheila Kuehl is a public official of the highest integrity and of remarkable accomplishment. Alex Villanueva runs a department notorious for violence, scandal and civil rights violations. He is scared of civilian oversight, defies civilian oversight, and is abusing his power to get revenge on those who exercise civilian oversight."

Despite claiming to have recused himself from the matter, Villanueva on Wednesday sent a letter to the state Attorney General's Office requesting that it investigate a statement made by Kuehl following the raid, indicating a county attorney had contacted her Tuesday night and informed her of the impending sheriff's department search. Villanueva suggested in the letter that county Inspector General 29 calls reported by Metro turned Max Huntsman and the county out to be legitimate harassment counsel's office had interfered with a criminal investigation by notifying Kuehl of the search, calling it a potential felony offense.

The affidavit in support of the search warrant cites allegations 13 legitimate sexual-harassmentby the former Metro employee related calls were received on the mentioned by Kuehl. According line, equating to a per-call cost of to the affidavit, that witness $8,450, the station reported.

Washington pushed forward the Over Violence "to remain `in good graces' with Supervisor Sheila Kuehl." The witness also claimed she pointed out billing irregularities involving Peace Over Violence to Washington, who ordered her to pay bills because he did not want to "upset any of Supervisor Sheila Kuehl's friends."

The affidavit contends that evidence gathered by the search warrants "may prove that there was a `corrupt agreement' between Kuehl and Giggans to award and receive the sole source contracts in return for campaign donations, political power and continued opportunities to enrich each other in a variety of ways."

The affidavit also cites a 2020 Fox11 investigation which found that Peace Over Violence's operation of the sex-harassment hotline was costing taxpayers more than $8,000 per phone call. The station reported that although the line was purported to have received 1,300 calls between 2017 and 2020, very few of them turned out to be legitimate, with the vast majority being hang-ups, tests or not applicable to the line's purpose.

In October 2019, only eight of reports, the station reported. Of the 349 calls to the line in 2019, 260 were wrong numbers or hang-ups, according to Fox11.

Biden, Trump stoke division while complaining about it

By Jacob Sullum

Last week in Philadelphia, President Joe Biden gave "the most vicious, hateful and divisive speech ever delivered by an American president." so former President Donald Trump proclaimed at a rally in Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania, on Saturday before proceeding to outdo Biden.

The two speeches — one decrying "MAGA Republicans" who "represent an extremism that threatens the very foundations of our republic," the other condemning "the radical left lunatics" who are "trying to destroy our country" — mirrored each other in ways neither man would be willing to admit. Both portrayed the other side as not just mistaken but malevolent and warned that its victory this fall would doom everything Americans hold dear.

Biden prefaced his attack on Trump and his followers by drawing a distinction between "MAGA Republicans" and "mainstream Republicans," whom "I've been able to work with." But even as he averred that "not even the majority of Republicans are MAGA Republicans," Biden warned that "the Republican Party today is dominated, driven and intimidated by Donald Trump and the MAGA Republicans," who pose "a threat to this country."

Trump's supporters, Biden explained, "do not respect the Constitution," "do not believe in the rule of law" and "do not recognize the will of the people." They "promote authoritarian leaders" and "fan the flames of political violence," which threatens "the very soul of this country."

MAGA Republicans "refuse to accept the results of a free election," which makes them "a clear and present danger" to "our democracy." They "don't understand what every patriotic American knows: You can't love your country only when you win." They "embrace anger," "thrive on chaos," and "live not in the light of truth but in the shadow of lies." They are "committed" to "destroying American democracy" and "determined to take this country backwards.

Trump complained that Biden was "trying to demonize half of the population" — more than half, actually, since Trump still insists that he won the 2020 presidential election by a wide margin. Referring to the number of votes he received that year, Trump accused Biden of "vilifying 75 million citizens — plus another probably 75 to 150 (million), if we want to be accurate about it — as threats to democracy and as enemies of the state.'

Trump's rejoinder: I know you are, but what am I? "The enemy of the state is him," Trump said. "The danger to democracy comes from the radical left, not from the right."

Although Trump claimed to be dismayed by Biden's "hatred and anger," his remarks in Wilkes-Barre were not exactly full of sweetness and light. "Radical Democrats," he explained, are "sick, sinister and evil people" who are "trying to destroy our country" because they "hate our country."

Democrats are "against God, guns, oil, law enforcement, voter ID, tax cuts, regulation cuts, the Constitution, and ... our founding fathers," Trump said. Their agenda is so repellant that "the way they win is to cheat in elections" — the conviction that led Trump to embrace one wild election fraud claim after another.

Although those sore-loser excuses are at the core of the "extreme MAGA ideology" that Biden perceives, Trump insists the movement is about more than his vanity and lust for power. "The 2020 election was rigged, and now our country is being destroyed by people who got into office through cheating and through fraud," he said in Wilkes-Barre. "This battle is not about me. This is a struggle for the very fate of our republic."

Biden agrees, offering his own apocalyptic take on the next election. While he is obviously right that accepting electoral defeat is a crucial part of democracy, he has his own reasons for exaggerating the imminence of the republic's demise.

Trump and Biden also agree that Americans should be united against division. Voting for Democrats, Biden said in Philadelphia, means choosing "hope and unity and optimism" over "fear, division and darkness." Democrats "think they can divide us," Trump said in Wilkes-Barre, "but they can't."

Why is the other side always so divisive?

It's time to legalize sex work

By John Stossel

Football players make money with their bodies. Some are injured. But football is legal.

So why is sex work illegal?

My video - available on YouTube - this week focuses on that.

Sex worker "Aella" has made hundreds of thousands of dollars, mostly by "camming," showing her body to men online and talking intimately with them. Her customers are happy to pay for that.

This offends people.

It's "exploitation ... under the banner of a career choice!" complains feminist Heather Brunskell-Evans.

Aella laughs at that, saying, "Where was she when I was working at a factory? Lots of people work terrible jobs. (But) a lot of sex workers make Aella left home to escape strict parents when she was 17. That's when she got that factory job.

Eventually, someone suggested she try camming, which Aella says turned out to be much better than factory work. "I could decide what kind of things I wanted to do, what my limits were.'

Also, she made $200 an hour.

After camming, Aella tried "escort" work. That's really just another word

"I remember going into my first appointment feeling really nervous. Then it was actually a lovely experience. ... And I left with a bunch of money in my pocket. I was like, 'This was awesome.'"

To protect themselves, Aella and her friends have a screening process. When a new man calls, they demand references from previous escorts

She doesn't understand why prostitution is illegal, why people like her need to be "protected" from prostitution. On Twitter, Aella labels herself

"When I was working at the factory, that was a thousand times worse," she says. "But nobody cared about that."

 $Prostitution \ is \ legal \ in \ parts \ of \ Nevada, \ in \ Germany, \ Switzerland, \ Greece,$ Netherlands, Hungary, Turkey, Indonesia, Australia and New Zealand

Legalizing sex work doesn't solve its problems, but it makes it safer, and

Of course, some women are forced into prostitution. Some are tricked into coming to America, where traffickers confiscate identity papers, withhold pay, and tell the woman they owe them for bringing them to the U.S.

That's obviously evil and should be prosecuted. But that would be easier

"It really would be a lot safer if it were decriminalized," says Aella. "I've been assaulted during sex work. It wasn't an option in my mind to go get the

Also, the vast majority of sex work is voluntary — a business transaction

You might not realize that most is voluntary because police and media routinely call voluntary sex work slavery.

In 2019, New England Patriots owners Robert Kraft patronized a massage parlor that offered "happy endings." Police arrested him as part of what they called a "sex trafficking" sting.

But there was no "trafficking." Later prosecutors conceded that.

"Ninety-nine percent of the headlines are not true," says Reason reporter Elizabeth Nolan Brown. "They say 'we rescued these women,' but by 'rescue,' they put them in jail and give them a criminal record. The victims are the sex workers themselves."

Today, Aella has mostly retired from sex work. She got funded to work as

She uses her hundreds of thousands of followers on Twitter, Reddit, FetLife and TikTok to run polls that ask provocative questions like, "Do women have systemic privilege due to their gender?"

"I'm really curious about the ways that our moral intuitions don't line up," Aella says. "I poke at things that make people feel confused about what they believe."

Sex work is one of those things.

Polls show a slight majority of Americans think sex work should be decriminalized. Support for legalization has been increasing.

"It should be legal," says Aella. "Discovering sex work was one of the best things that's happened to me. I have my own life. I make good money. I have a ton of spare time to do what I want. People are concerned about my 'exploitation'? That's wrong.'

Why the government should buy Boy Scout camps

By Tom Condon

The Inflation Reduction Act signed into law last month includes billions of dollars for conservation and forestry. Let me suggest a way to spend some of it: Buy Boy Scout camps. Get them while supplies last.

The Boy Scouts of America organization is, as the cops say, jammed up. The BSA is in federal bankruptcy court in Delaware, where this past week it gained approval for a $2.46 billion plan to settle more than $2,000 claims of child sexual abuse spanning decades.

The BSA's approximately 250 local councils will be on the hook for more than $500 million in cash or land, which is why many of them have sold, or announced they are selling, their camps.

Many of these camps are almost pristine, ecologically valuable parcels, with waterfront and forested land. While local governments and nonprofits are trying to save some of the camps, others are being sold and converted to other uses, including a gated community, a water park, a gravel mine and an off-road driving facility.

The federal government needs to step in. This is the moment when these lands will be saved or lost.

BSA campgrounds were being sold even before the sexual-abuse scandal sent the organization into Chapter 11. The BSA has been losing membership for decades, from more than 4 million in the 1970s to less than 800,000

The decline has left the Boy Scouts with more properties than they need. My own Boy Scout camp, Camp Wakenah, on an exquisite 32-acre lakefront site in rural Connecticut, was sold two decades ago and is now a multimillion-dollar residence that offers, among other amenities, an elevator to the wine cellar. Some might view that as an upgrade from a dirt path to the a broader greenway that includes a 17,000-acre state forest. outhouse, I do not.

The BSA bankruptcy and looming settlement only hastened the pace of camp divestment. In July, New York magazine called it "The Great Boy Scouts Land Sell-Off."

Evidence in the bankruptcy case indicated that local councils own as many as 2,000 camps worth $8 billion to $10 billion, an attorney representing 12,000 claimants told the Associated Press in June. The councils control 35,000 acres in New York State alone, a larger footprint than that of Disney World in Florida, New York magazine noted.

Keeping Scout properties as open space can be a challenge. Consider the Deer Lake Scout Reservation, in Killingworth, Conn., not far from my old camp. A year ago, the BSA's Connecticut Yankee Council announced it was selling the wooded, 255-acre site.

The Trust for Public Land, a nonprofit that has preserved thousands of acres in the state, appraised the property and bid $2.4 million. A real estate developer nearly doubled that amount, offering $4.6 million.

But then, this summer, a nonprofit called Pathfinders, which for years had been running summer camping programs at Deer Lake under a lease arrangement with the Boy Scouts, stretched itself to the limit and came up with $4.75 million in contributions and loans to top the developer's bid. The closing is scheduled for Thursday.

The nonprofit plans to maintain its camping program and keep the property, popular with hikers and birders, as open space.

Deer Lake is the kind of property that should be kept undeveloped. It's heavily forested, with a mile-long lake and exotic rock formations. It is part of Small fragments of forests — topographical measles — aren't of much environmental help, but large deep forests are. The benefits from deep woods include helping to clean air and water, store carbon in plants and soil, foster biodiversity and protect communities from flooding.

The Agriculture Department reports that the United States loses approximately 6,000 acres of open space — including "forests, grasslands, and other natural areas" — every day. Deer Lake nearly fell into that category.

It shouldn't take a nonprofit's last-minute rescue to save Boy Scout campgrounds from development when they come onto the market. There is plenty of precedent for government involvement in land preservation.

When Deer Lake appeared on the verge of being sold to a developer, Sen. Richard Blumenthal (D-Conn.) began looking into the use of money from the National Park Service's Land and Water Conservation Fund to aid with the purchase of Deer Lake and other BSA properties on the market nationwide. That might be a useful strategy, but the Inflation Reduction Act's funding for conservation and efforts to combat climate change seems especially suitable for this purpose.

No matter how it's accomplished, many of these Boy Scouts properties should be saved, for ecological, recreational and aesthetic reasons — and, who knows, maybe one day they'll be needed to serve as campgrounds again. Once they're gone, it's pretty much an elevator to the wine cellar.

La Mirada comes from behind to defeat Norwalk, 3-1

■ New Suburban Valley Conference debuts in 2022; Matadores win opening Mid Cities League match.

By John M. Sherrard Contributor

NORWALK – It's the beginning of a new era as the renamed Suburban Valley Conference (SVC) with its two leagues, began action in the area for girls volleyball Tuesday, (Sept.

Two of those teams - La Mirada and Norwalk - both were formally in the Suburban League together, but now compete in the Mid Cities League within the

La Mirada, which came into the match with an even 6-6 overall record came from behind to defeat the Lancers, 3-1, at Norwalk

The Matadores (7-6, 1-0) won 21-25, 25-13, 25-23, 25-22.

"I'm excited," said La Mirada Girls Volleyball coach Kim Mahan, of the new conference. "It is all new. I'm glad we're still playing Norwalk (2-8, 0-1). The other teams I have no idea of what to expect. I've never played

"We're 1-0 and we will just grow from this. Every game we will go back and look at the stats and hopefully we'll do better from have to play our hardest and give

The other four teams in the Mid Cities League are Bellflower, Firebaugh, Lynwood and Dominguez.

The other league within the SVC is called the Gateway League with five teams competing -Paramount, Gahr, Mayfield, Warren and Downey.

Leading the Matadores against Norwalk was junior outside hitter Alyssa Meraz with nine kills, senior OH Bailey Mahan with eight kills and senior middle blocker Milan Nimeh and sophomore middle Natalie Ojeisekhoba with six kills each.

Senior setter Mikayla Gonzalez led with 17 assists and sophomore setter Kiersten Mahan added 11 assists for La Bailey Mahan and Nimeh each had 12 digs.

The Lancers were led by junior OH Kendall Nakano (16 Digs) with a match-high 11 kills, followed by junior OH Marisol Roseboro with eight kills and  $sophomore\ midd\bar{l}e\ Brenda$ Quezada had five.

Nakano also commented on the new conference alignment. "Definitely, some different opponents with a new perspective," she said. "We still it our all."

A match-high 26 digs came from Norwalk senior libero Kimberly Lopez and junior setter Alyssa Dorado (17 Assists) had 13 digs. Sophomore setter Zaidee Zepeda added 14 assists.

In the opening set, it looked like Norwalk was going to walk away with the match with a commanding, 8-0 lead to start the first set.

Dorado served all eight points, including two services aces and a few errors by the Matadores. Nimeh broke the scoring streak with a kill, to trail, Bailey Mahan and Ojeisekhoba combined for three kills to close the gap to 9-4.

Later in the set, while La Mirada senior libero Andrea Rosiles was serving, the Matadores came within a point to trail, 15-14. Rosiles, who transferred in from Sunny Hills, just became eligible after sitting out the mandatory games.

However, the Lancers held on for the first-set win as sophomore middle Samantha Munoz connected with a kill to win the first set, 25-21.

"Last year we went five sets with Norwalk and we knew it was going to be a good match and we just didn't know what to expect," said Kim Mahan, of the first set loss. "I think the girls were a little nervous and it was the first league game and we weren't playing our level of play."

The second set started the same as the first, as the Lancers jumped out to a 4-1 lead. However, with three consecutive Norwalk errors, La Mirada evened the set. 4-4.

That was all the Matadores needed, as they took their first lead of the four-set match, and reeled off 11 consecutive points to lead, 12-4. Bailey Mahan had two kills in that stretch with Nimeh serving all 11 points.

Midway through the third set with Norwalk leading, Lancers' defensive specialist Tatianna Navarro served up an ace to expand the lead by six points,

The matadors countered with four consecutive points behind the serving of Gonzalez to close the gap to 15-12 and eventually took their first lead, 20-19, since early in the set.

Dorado later tied the set, 23-23, with an ace.

Norwalk committed two net errors as the Matadores took a 2-1 lead in sets with the 25-23 win.

The fourth set saw four ties the lead the rest of the way, even though the set was close.

Quezada had two kills to keep the Lancers close midway through the set, along with Roseboro.

However, with Mahan serving, the Matadores went on a 6-1 run to extend the lead to 11-6 and kept the pressure on from there with the two or three-point leads until late in the set.

With a four-point La Mirada lead, 24-20, the Lancers made a late run with two consecutive points on Matadores net errors, to trail, 24-22 on two consecutive match points.

Meraz put the match away with a big kill to give the Matadores their first league victory.

"We're excited to go out there and see our new competition," said third-year Norwalk Girls Volleyball coach Paola Nava, who played for Norwalk in the Suburban League. "We've never seen the new teams. I definitely think that La Mirada is one of our biggest competitors here in our league and possibly Bellflower as

"We're not going to slow down from here. We're going to keep going and learn from (Tuesday). Round two (At La Mirada) we're going to be ready."

What they said:

Kendall Nakano, Norwalk junior OH: "The match definitely could have gone better. We just need to find it in ourselves to give it more and we need to have more character and perseverance on the court instead of shutting down.

When we miss serves that's easy points for them. At the end of the day, we have to get it back."

Even though they are La Mirada and they are expected to be a good school, I still feel like we have a chance at winning."

Paola Nava, Norwalk Volleyball coach: "It's all new to us. We're excited as coaches. We're excited to see new teams (in the new configured league).

I really like it and it's fun to watch these girls play. I played here and learned from the best coaches here and it's exciting to see these girls are now in this league and they are fighting for their title."

Bailey Mahan, La Mirada senior OH: "I think we just have to keep playing our strongest. We'll be fine.

We're best friends (Nimeh and Mahan) and there's just good chemistry there and we're able to work together. It'll help us a lot. We've been playing together since our freshmen year."
