Nurse who sued PIH over covid testing settles

■ Lilia Acevedo-Cosio objected to PIH Health's mandatory COVID-19 testing during the pandemic; terms of the settlement were not divulged.

By City News Service

WHITTIER – A former nurse has settled the one claim left in her lawsuit against PIH Health Whittier Hospital in which she alleged she suffered discrimination and was wrongfully terminated because of her religious objections to being tested for the coronavirus.

Lilia Acevedo-Cosio's Norwalk Superior Court lawsuit also alleged retaliation and failure to prevent discrimination and retaliation. In August, Judge Lee W. Tsao dismissed most of her claims and said that even assuming Acevedo-Cosio had shown a basic discrimination case, the hospital had demonstrated that its actions were legitimate and non-discriminatory.

The 44-year-old Whittier woman also was denied a court declaration that her engagement in protected activity involving religious freedom was a significant reason she suffered retaliation.

Tsao said Acevedo-Cosio could take to trial her claim for failure to inspect personnel and payroll records because the hospital did not provide the records she sought within the prescribed time limits, but the attorneys in the case told the judge during a hearing on Friday that the cause of action was resolved. No terms were

In their court papers, PIH attorneys said the hospital staff "worked tirelessly to accommodate Acevedo-Cosio's inexcusable refusal to simply test for COVID during the height of the pandemic," forcing the hospital to accept her resignation.

But in a sworn declaration, the plaintiff said otherwise.

"My religious beliefs led me to oppose this sort of invasive testing, so I asked for a religious accommodation from the testing and included an attestation from my religious leader...," Acevedo-

Acevedo-Cosio said she was actually terminated on Nov. 15, 2021, and did not quit.

Downey couple killed in crash

■ Emilio and Annabel Guerrero were killed when they were struck by a speeding pick-up truck.

By Eric Pierce

DOWNEY – An investigator with the Los Angeles District Attorney's Office and his wife -- a teacher -- were killed in a South Gate crash, and the cause is under investigation.

Sgt. Emilio Guerrero, 52, and wife Annabel Guerrero, 47, were Downey residents, according to a Downey Police Department press release.

The crash occurred about 2:05 p.m. Sunday at the intersection of Paramount Boulevard and Gardendale Street, police said.

A vehicle driven by a 60-year-old South Gate man crashed into the vehicle driven by Emilio Guerrero, police said.

Los Angeles County Supervisor Janice Hahn posted on social media Emilio and Annabel Guerrero "were dedicated public servants who gave so much to their communities."

"I know this has hit the Downey community hard and my prayers are with their two daughters and their many loved ones in the wake of this incredible loss. May they rest in peace," Hahn said in a post on social media.

Anyone with information was asked to call the Downey Police Department, which is investigating the case, at 562-904-2308 or Investigator Alaina Clark at 562-904-2339. Anonymous tips can be phoned into Crime Stoppers at 800-222-8477.

School board ratifies agreement to boost academics at El Camino

■ Residents who meet income guidelines could potentially receive up to $30,000 for home repairs.

By Vincent Medina Contributor

NORWALK Norwalk-La Mirada Unified School District board education voted unanimously to ratify a contract with the National College Resource Foundation (NCRF) during their meeting on Monday.

Under this contract, the NCRF will aim to enhance the academic performance of El Camino High School students by providing them with advising and emotional support.

Students will also be given after-school tutoring, assistance to improve their math scores and support to help them on their path to college.

School board member Narcis Brasov expressed concerns over agreement, questioning whether the contract utilized outside businesses or a district responsibility.

"The contract itself seems like a high school counselor's job plus tutoring," Brasov said. "I'm concerned that we're outsourcing a quintessential district responsibility public responsibility to a private company.

The district has agreed to compensate the NCRF with $117,920 for its services between Sep. 2023 and July

Jessica Medrano, assistant superintendent of educational services secondary, explained the district made a plan of how to use the temporary Comprehensive Support and Improvement funding based on the needs of the school. The goal was to improve student's academic scores with financing over a short period of time.

"This was a solution the site worked to find that provides a variety of resources, not just math, tutoring, not just language arts, tutoring, but also college career counseling," Medrano said. "It's able to help them meet that goal of improving the graduation rate, which was the need initially for the CSI funds and why the school is labeled as CSI."

A school qualifies for CSI funding if the average threeyear graduation rate is below 68%, according to the California schools must have graduation data for the past three years to be eligible for support in this category.

Mark Hunter, assistant director/principal of El Camino High School, shared that the school qualified for CSI funding during the 2020-2021 academic year when the graduation rate dropped to approximately 45%. He noted this was the year when students were distance learning due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

graduation improved during the 2021- WHERE: Pico Rivera Sports Arena 2022 year and increased to 68%. During the 2022 - 2023 academic year, the graduation rate increased to 80%.

"Now the average graduation rate of those three years is 64%," Hunter said. "So we will meet the three year average requirement of 68%."

CSI funding for three years, so this academic year would be the final year El Camino High School receives these funds.

After these clarifications, Brasov motioned to pass Department of Education. The the contract, which was unanimously supported by the

> The NCRF will service students four days a week between Monday and Friday, from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., for 40 hours weekly. There will be at least three staff members including a site coordinator.

Paging Dr. Frischer...

By Dr. Alan Frischer

Every day I am asked about muscle cramps; I would imagine that we have all experienced them. What causes them? How can we stop them? Can they be prevented? Muscle spasms (cramps) are painful contractions tightening of the muscles. They're common, involuntary and unpredictable. They are most common in our calves and thighs, but can involve any muscle. Spasms range from mild and uncomfortable to severe, intense pain. The muscle may feel harder than normal, and/or look distorted. Spasms typically last from seconds up to 15 minutes or longer, and may return.

Muscle cramps can occur after working a muscle too hard or straining it; as a result of dehydration from sweating; or from holding one position for a long time. These kinds of muscle cramps, although painful, are harmless.

Sometimes a muscle cramp is related to an underlying medical issue. Atherosclerosis (peripheral artery disease) narrows the arteries, leading to too little blood flow to the muscles. In that case, muscle pain tends to come on with use, and resolve with rest.

A mineral deficit (potassium, calcium, or magnesium) is a common cause. This may be due to a lack of these minerals in the diet, or could be a side effect of certain medicines, like some diuretics used to treat high blood pressure and congestive heart failure. Vitamin D and thyroid deficiencies can also cause muscle cramps. Simple blood tests can detect all of these deficits.

Pressure on a nerve in the spine can cause cramping pains in the legs, which worsens with walking.

Other factors that may lead to muscle cramps include older age, poor conditioning, muscle fatigue, exercising in the heat, lack of stretching, excessive sweating which removes minerals from the body, pregnancy, being overweight, and other underlying health conditions.

There is no good sure treatment. There is no pill or injection that can instantly relieve a spasm. The best thing to do is to stretch and massage the muscle. If it involves the leg, get up and walk around. Try ice or heat, whichever is effective for you. Ibuprofen or acetaminophen can give some pain relief, and muscle relaxants may be helpful. Some people who get frequent muscle spasms find relief by taking supplements of calcium, magnesium, and vitamins B12 and D.

Here are some tips for prevention: Stav hydrated by drinking plenty of fluids through the day and during activities. (Note that liquids with alcohol or caffeine don't work as well). Stretch gently before and after exercise, and work towards better overall fitness. Avoid exercising in hot weather. Wear shoes that fit properly. Perform mild stretches or light exercise before bedtime. Discuss your medications with your physician; you might be taking one that can lead to muscle cramps.

If your muscle spasms are severe, occur frequently, respond poorly to treatment, and do not have an obvious cause, I urge you to see your doctor.

Early detection key to surviving breast cancer

With October observed as National Breast Cancer Awareness Month, it's important for women to have a good understanding of this potentially deadly disease.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), each year in the United States, about 240,000 cases of breast cancer are diagnosed in women. About 42,000 women in the U.S. die each year from breast cancer, and Black women have a higher rate of death from breast cancer than all other women.

In 2023, an estimated 297,790 new cases of invasive breast cancer are expected to be diagnosed in U.S. women.

Breast cancer is the most commonly diagnosed cancer among U.S. women. About 30% of all newly diagnosed cancers in women each year are breast cancer.

According to Dr. Karen W. Kwan, Hematology and Oncology, Kaiser Permanente Southern California, most breast cancers are found in women age 50 or older, but younger women are not immune to this disease. The CDC notes about 10% of all new cases of breast cancer in the U.S. are found in women younger than age 45. Men can also get breast cancer, but it's not as common. Less than 1% of breast cancers occur in men, the CDC reports.

The United States Preventive Services Task Force (USPSTF) recommends women start breast cancer screening at age 40 instead of the previously recommended starting age of 50. The USPSTF notes women should get screening mammograms every other year from ages 40 to 74.

According to the CDC, there are different symptoms of breast cancer, which include:

Any change in the size or shape of the breast.  $\,$

Pain in any area of the breast.

Nipple discharge other than breast milk (including blood).

A new lump in the breast or underarm.

The CDC notes many factors over the course of a lifetime can influence your breast cancer risk. You may not be able to change some factors, such as getting older or your family history, but you can help lower your risk of breast cancer by taking care of your health in the following ways:

Keep a healthy weight.

 $\label{eq:exercise regularly.} Exercise \ regularly.$

If you have a family history of breast cancer, talk to your doctor about other ways to lower your risk.

If you're taking or have been told to take hormone replacement or birth control pills, ask your doctor about the risks and find out if it is right for you.

Don't drink alcohol, or limit alcoholic drinks.

If possible, breastfeed your children.

Biden could no longer ignore the border

Our southern border is in a crisis and the President finally acts.

By Jon Gabriel

Jon Gabriel is a contributor to the Arizona Republic.

Former President Donald Trump promised to build a border wall that Mexico would pay for during the 2016 campaign but the neighboring country never did. Candidate Joe Biden vowed "not another foot" of the border wall would be built during his presidency. Now President Biden has decided to build it.

Immigration might be the strangest issue in politics.

What used to be a bitter dividing line has quickly become bipartisan, causing whiplash among activists on both sides of the metaphorical fence. This week, Homeland Security Secretary Alejandro Mayorkas wrote "it is necessary to waive certain laws, regulations, and other legal requirements in order to ensure the expeditious construction of barriers and roads."

Despite this, when Biden was asked Thursday if he believes border walls work, he answered, "No."

But Biden couldn't ignore the problem forever. In September alone, the US Border Patrol apprehended more than 200,000 migrants crossing the US-Mexico border unlawfully — of course, they couldn't count the people who got away.

This marks the highest total of the year and a large increase from August, which had about 181,000 arrests. And these crossings are expected to remain high in the near term, as one senior US Customs and Border Protection official told CNN.

Border states, especially Arizona and Texas, have demanded federal support for years, seeing their resources strained and desert cities overrun. But it wasn't until red-state governors started bussing migrants to northern climes last year that the issue grew more urgent in the Democratic party.

New York City Mayor Eric Adams flew to Latin America this week to discourage migration, pleading that the Big Apple is "at capacity." More than 100,000 migrants arrived in the city in the past year.

Illinois Gov. J.B. Pritzker called the influx to Chicago an "untenable situation," noting "the federal government's lack of intervention and coordination at the border." The governor reported more than 15,000 migrants arriving in his state in the past 13 months.

The fact that each metropolis is designated a "sanctuary city" adds to the irony.

According to a recent Gallup poll, 72% of Americans believe the situation along our southern border is either a "crisis" or a "major problem." With the next presidential election only 13 months away, Biden finally decided to act.

It's about time.

While big cities get the headlines, border communities internat have been racked with unprecedented numbers of a solutio unexpected guests. Yuma, Arizona, located in the southwest corner of the state, has been reeling since there we liden attempted to suspend the "Remain in Mexico" in the working its way through federal courts as the Biden administration negotiates a new agreement with Mexico.

No was agreement with Mexico.

Dr. Robert Trenschel, president and CEO of Yuma Regional Medical Center, said his facility spent $26 million from December 2021 to November 2022 on migrant care.

"The city of Yuma has 100,000 people, and we've had over 300,000 people cross the border here," Trenschel said. "That's three times the population of Yuma coming across the border. We're the only hospital which is within a three-hour radius, which means they come here."

As a result, Yuma residents need to travel well over 100 miles for basic medical services such as neonatal care, according to Trenschel.

El Paso has seen more than 2,000 people seeking asylum per day, up from 350-400 a few weeks ago, according to Mayor Oscar Leeser. "The city of El Paso only has so many resources and we have come to ... a breaking point right now," the mayor said.

If New York City is "at capacity," border communities passed that status years ago.

Building a barrier along key routes between the US and Mexico shouldn't be as controversial as politicians make it. Neither a wall nor a fence is a cure-all, but a commonsense tactic to mitigate illegal crossings.

Raphael S. Cohen, a political scientist at the nonpartisan RAND Corporation, notes that a border wall may succeed in curbing illegal immigration and provide "political space" for addressing systemic problems.

"The proposed wall on the US-Mexico border — like all previous walls — should be all previous walls — should be viewed as a means to an end, rather than an end unto itself," Cohen wrote in 2019.

Elisabeth Vallet, director of the Center for Geopolitical Studies at the University of Quebec in Montreal, agrees, calling barriers "a norm of international relations, and a solution in the quest for security." She notes that in 1990, there were only about 15 barriers in the world; as of 2022, there were 74.

President Joe Biden

No wall will stop non-citizens overstaying their visas or flying to the states and never heading back home. Well-funded cartels and bad actors will try to evade new physical barriers as they have in the past. But a wall will drastically reduce historic numbers in the short term, allowing the federal government to work with foreign governments and reinstate policies that have proven effective.

But what should be a win for the White House is turning into a muddled mess.

White House press secretary Karine Jean-Pierre continues to dodge questions while Biden bizarrely claimed that the border wall he approved won't work. Despite allowing Mayorkas to authorize the move, Biden has vaguely blamed Congress.

"I'll answer one question on the border wall," Biden said to reporters in the Oval Office Thursday. "The border wall — the money was appropriated for the border wall. I tried to get [Congress] to reappropriate it, to redirect that money. They didn't, they wouldn't. And in the meantime, there's nothing under the law other than they have to use the money for what it was appropriated."

"I can't stop that," the president added. Actually he could, just as he has for two-and-a-half years, but it has become politically untenable.

What kind of president would RFK Jr. be?

Robert F. Kennedy Jr. holds political views that don't fit a box.

By Peter Bergen

Peter Bergen is CNN's national security analyst and host of the podcast "In the Room With Peter Bergen."

On Monday, Robert F. Kennedy Jr. said he was running as a third-party candidate to be president of the United States. Kennedy holds a mix of Republican and Democratic policy views which could make him attractive to the large numbers of American voters who are unhappy about a Biden-Trump rematch.

This may pose some real dangers for both President Joe Biden and former President Donald Trump, who are the frontrunners in their respective parties, since in closely-contested US presidential elections, a small percentage of voters in relatively few swing states can have a disproportionately large effect on the outcome.

Third-party candidates — like the Green Party's Ralph Nader in the 2000 election between Al Gore and George W. Bush, and Jill Stein in the 2016 election between Hillary Clinton and Trump — have had an outsize effect on the outcome of close US presidential elections despite their relatively small numbers at the polls.

It's quite possible that Kennedy could do more damage to Biden as a third-party candidate than by running against Biden in the Democratic primaries, where Biden has a large lead over Kennedy. In a CNN New Hampshire poll last month, Biden had the support of 78% of likely Democratic primary voters in this early primary state, with only 9% for Kennedy.

By contrast, running as an independent candidate, about one in seven American voters would vote for Kennedy, according to an Ipsos/Rutters poll released on Thursday. That number could put a serious dent into Biden's support in a general election — as well as Trump's, since Kennedy draws support from both sides of the aisle.

So it is worth considering what — beyond his storied family political name and the dissatisfaction that many voters have with both Biden and Trump — the appeal of Kennedy might be.

RFK Jr.'s predilection for fringe positions is well known, particularly his long-debunked view that vaccines cause autism. But what makes him an attractive candidate for some Americans is that he is not easily pigeonholed as either a typical Democrat or a conventional Republican, since his policy positions straddle the left and the right.

His blistering critiques of the Biden administration on everything from how it has handled the Covid-19 pandemic to its support of the war in Ukraine have earned him praise from Republicans.

At the same time, he describes himself as "a traditional Kennedy Democrat. I'm a leading environmentalist, arguably, in the country. I'm for medical autonomy, for women's right to choose. I'm anti-war. I'm pro-free speech."

Kennedy told me this at the end of August for the Audible podcast "In the Room with Peter Bergen." Beyond querying him about his controversial views on the pandemic — in which he debated with me about whether Covid vaccines had actually saved many lives — I was also interested in exploring his positions on the kinds of issues many American voters care most about, such as the economy, the border, affirmative action, gun control, climate change, abortion and the war in Ukraine.

Helping Trump?

I asked Kennedy if he was worried that running against the president would only serve to hurt Biden's chances of beating Trump, the leading Republican nominee, in what will likely be yet another close general election.

He replied, "First of all, I get as many votes from Republicans as I do from Democrats. So, I don't think that there's that problem." Kennedy went on to say, "President Biden has wounded himself. You know, he's telling the country that he's brought prosperity in the country. And 57% of people in this country cannot put their hands on $1,000 if they have an emergency. For those people, the engine light comes on in their car, and it's the end of the world."

Asked how he would fix this situation, Kennedy explained, "I will wind down the empire abroad, and I'll start bringing that money home and investing in schools, public health, eliminating the chronic disease epidemic, and getting Americans healthy again. Our biggest cost, even bigger than the military, is health care."

I asked if he thought a second Biden term or a second Trump term would be worse, and he surprised me by saying, "I don't think either of them are good, but you know, I'm worried about Biden because I think he will — is more likely to get us in a nuclear war."

Kennedy also seems to firmly believe that the war in Ukraine is as much the Biden administration's fault as Russian President Vladimir Putin's. And he believes that, if the Russian leader's back were up against a wall, Putin wouldn't hesitate to use atomic weapons, telling me, "He's already said that if it's existential, he's going to use a nuclear weapon."

Kennedy's big idea in foreign policy is "neo-isolationism," i.e., pulling back from what some term "American Empire." His position is one that is embraced by many on the left flank of the Democratic Party as well as many Republicans, a large majority of whom think the US should stop funding the Ukraine war. A CNN poll published in August found 71% of Republicans think the US should not authorize additional funding to support Ukraine.

The Supreme Court

In light of the Supreme Court's decision last year that overturned Roe v. Wade and the constitutional right to an abortion, I asked Kennedy how the Catholic faith he had grown up with might have informed his views about abortion. He told me, "I've seen late-term abortion pictures and they're horrifying. So, I understand the people who want them banned, but I also am too skeptical of government to believe that it should be the one that should be dictating bodily decisions."

Kennedy is also opposed to the Supreme Court's decision in June to end affirmative action for minority Americans going to college, a case in which Harvard, his alma mater, was one of the defendants. At the same time, he says "legacy admissions," which give the children of alumni preferential treatment when applying to attend many elite colleges, should end. He described the practice as "affirmative action for White people only."

Even though the Supreme Court has produced two key recent decisions that he disagreed with, Kennedy would not — as some Democrats have advocated — add more liberal judges to the Supreme Court, saying, "I just think it's a terrible precedent. I'm very much aware of the attempts by FDR to do that and how that was viewed by the American public as cheating on the rules."

Climate change

Much of Kennedy's professional career was spent as an environmental lawyer, most notably helping to clean up the Hudson River in New York. Since this year is on track to be the hottest on record, I asked him what the US should do

Robert F. Kennedy Jr.

He said he opposed "carbon capture," a technique in which carbon is pumped under the ground in deep wells to be stored there. He describes this as a "boondoggle" for the carbon-producing industries. Instead, he advocates for "habitat" and "environmental" protection since "destroying the natural systems destroys the resilience of the planet to climate changes."

The border

I also asked Kennedy how he'd approach another important issue for voters: America's southern border.

Much of Kennedy's take on border security sounds more in line with Republicans than Democrats. He said Trump had gotten "the wall" mostly right but that "you don't need a wall all the way 2,200 miles from Brownsville, Texas to San Diego. But you do need a physical barrier. You do need a wall in the heavily populated areas." Kennedy also said many more asylum judges are needed to process the hundreds of thousands of asylum claimants who are now crossing the US-Mexico border.

The Second Amendment

Kennedy says he is not a gun owner himself, but he is not for "taking people's guns away," and he would include in that category semi-automatic weapons like AR-15s that have often been used in mass shootings in the US. He said, however, if he were to become president and the US Senate and the House both had passed measures banning AR-15s, he would go along with that decision.

But in discussing America's "gun culture" and the view by some that "their AR-15s are protecting them from government overreach" — he said it was a position he felt some sympathy with, given what he considered to be the massive US government overreach during the Covid pandemic.

On the Ukraine war, pandemic measures, US border policies, and the Second Amendment, RFK Jr. could easily be mistaken for a Republican, while on abortion, affirmative action and climate change, he sounds very much like a Democrat. All of this makes Kennedy a wild card who may scramble the presidential election and damage both Biden and Trump in unexpected ways.

Wrestling legend Tully Blanchard credits 'power of prayer' for changing his life

■ Speaking at the Mayor's Hall of Fame in 2011. Prayer Breakfast in Downey, Tully Blanchard revealed the importance of faith in his life.

By Alex Dominguez Staff Writer

from the jet flying, limousine riding, wheeling and dealing lifestyle of pro wrestling, Wrestling Hall of Famer Tully Blanchard says it was prayer that helped him turn his life around.

Blanchard was the keynote speaker at the 35th annual Mayor's Prayer Breakfast, held at the Rio Hondo Event Center last Thursday morning. He is a former singles and tagteam wrestling champion, who worked across the National Wrestling Alliance, World Wrestling Entertainment, and most recently All Elite Wrestling. Known as one of the original members of the Four Horsemen stable alongside Ric Flair, and Arn and Ole Anderson, he was inducted into the NWA Hall of Fame in 2009, and the WWE

Blanchard spoke on turning points in life and the power of

He recalled the day that his younger brother was killed in a car crash.

"My brother had lost control of his car going to baseball DOWNEY – After falling practice...16 years old, he was gone," said Blanchard. "That changed everything in my family. It wasn't much after that, both of my parents came to know Jesus.

> "I was 26, I'd graduated college, started my wrestling career, and my dad would call me and start preaching to me, and I'd go, 'Look, if this is all you want to talk about, don't call me anymore. That's not my world, that's not how I'm handling this thing."

Blanchard said he didn't know that his mom and dad "were praying diligently that there was a Christian man in their other son."

"I kept going, playing the and I used to get on TV and riding," said Blanchard. "We did. five words that changed my life: everything that you would think anybody was a star did. Drugs, me that I had never felt before." sex, and rock and roll.

"We wrestled every day someplace, 330 days a year, and get up on Saturday morning and fly to Atlanta and tape that 6:05 TV show at 10 in the morning when you didn't want to do anything but sleep. But that's how we made a living, and these prayers were rolling off in San Antonio Texas."

Blanchard wouldn't find his religion until a failed drug test cost him not only his position with the WWE, but a job offer World Championship Wrestling.

"In my own genius, I had managed to get fired from the only two places I could work in the country in eleven days," said Blanchard. "I had absolute panic. I don't know if anything has ever hit you like that; I could

"I laid in my bed, and I just life of a star. Ric Flair, Arn wanted to go to sleep, just turn it Anderson, and Barry Windham off, and it wouldn't go off. I laid in my bed for three hours, and > Blanchard said "That is what the power of prayer will do."

> "But you have to believe that He is, and that He is a rewarder of them that seek him," said Blanchard.

During the event, Mayor Claudia Frometa also spoke, thanking those in attendance for "praying for our city."

She said that she "covets your prayers.'

"Downey has been a shining light in the southeast Los Angeles County region, and over the course of the last couple of years it has been on shaky ground. I think you've noticed; you've realized that," said Frometa. "But at the same time, I think the Lord has a special plan for the city, and as believers we need to continue to believe that the Lord has a plan for the city of Downey, California; the 10th largest city in LA County."
