Economic development summit puts spotlight on college's impact

NORWALK - Cerritos College hosted its third Economic Development Summit on April 5.

The one-day conference featured four speakers and brought together industry leaders, businesses, Russell brings nearly two decades of Capitol Hill experience organizations, and educators from across the region to examine an in-depth perspective of the incoming workforce and the critical role Cerritos College plays in the economic development of Southeast Los Angeles County.

> The opening keynote, Dr. David Hayes-Bautista, distinguished professor and director of UCLA's Center for the Study of Latino Health and Culture, presented data on the economic contributions of Latinos in the United States. Despite the disproportionate impact of COVID-19, the Latino community showed resilience in the labor force with higher participation and growth rates in wages and salary. Highly educated children of immigrant parents have significant economic potential with their bilingualism, high levels of human capital, and decades of productive years ahead. Dr. Hayes-Bautista said the county could maintain economic preeminence by leveraging this demographic.

Guest speaker Luke Meyer, director of the Los Angeles Center of Excellence for Labor Market multicolored pinwheels. Research, shared labor market data from a research study conducted in November 2023. Meyer discussed the economic benefits of Cerritos College to the surrounding community, bringing in 1961: nearly $540 million in revenue and supporting more than 5,600 jobs. The college's investment in education yields high returns for students, taxpayers, and society. He also stressed that jobs requiring higher education are better protected from economic shocks, increasing earning potential and job opportunities in times of economic downturn.

Cerritos College President/Superintendent Dr. Jose Fierro emphasized community colleges' crucial role in economic development. "Community colleges provide affordable training programs that prepare students for high-paying jobs and help workers retool themselves and gain new skills to advance in their careers," said Dr. Fierro, citing the college's successful partnerships with General Motors and Northgate. "Collaboration between education and industry is essential to drive economic mobility."

The closing guest speaker, Stephen Cheung, president and CEO of the Los Angeles Economic Development Corporation (LAEDC), discussed the future of Los Angeles' economy, addressing the challenges of growing income inequality, population decline, and the cost of doing business in Los Angeles. Looking into the future, he emphasized the city's unique strengths, including its diversity, global industry presence, and innovation potential. Cheung stressed the need to embrace the global power and influence of Los Angeles to drive economic growth and underscored the importance of workforce training programs focused on emerging skills in manufacturing automation, cybersecurity, logistics, and space industries to meet future job demands.

The speakers unanimously agreed on the positive impact of community colleges on students' lives and the regional economy. "We will continue to align our educational programs with the business interests of the communities we serve," said Dr. Fierro. "We are committed to helping residents in the region use their education to break out of the cycle of poverty and financial inequality and improve their quality of life."

The event was made possible thanks to the sponsorship of Southern California Edison.

Church upsets neighbors with plans for affordable housing

■ St. Mark's Episcopal Church is exploring plans to build 60 housing units on its former school campus.

By Alex Dominguez

DOWNEY – Plans by a local church to build a housing development for kids and homeless families has caused an uproar with neighbors and city officials alike.

Mark's Episcopal Church, with the Abbey Road nonprofit organization, is eying a project that would see the demolition of its school building and fellowship halls, and the construction of a 60-unit building to house transition-aged foster youth, small families impacted by homelessness, and low-income individuals and families in its back parking lot.

closed since 2020 due to a combination of financial, enrollment and maintenance issues.

According to Daniel Vaughn, Senior Warden at St. Mark's, no plans have been finalized or submitted to the city, though he says the idea "has been percolating" since it will be at least three years 2017. Vaughn says the church "stumbled upon Abbey Road."

Another neighbor, Ralph Peck, said "this is not the place to do this."

"They're talking a threestory building here in the middle of our residential properties, towering over all of our houses, looking in our backyards," said Peck. "These people are going to be wandering up and down our streets; I don't know if they're drug addicted or what, but this is not the place to do this."

Vaughn expressed disappointment with reaction, saying that the purpose of the meeting was "to provide information."

"We felt that they didn't give us much of a chance to explain our plans. They were not there to listen, they were there to attack," said Vaughn. "I was very discouraged at just how closed a lot of those people were."

Paging Dr. Frischer...

By Dr. Alan Frischer

've been practicing medicine in this wonderful community for many years. Can you guess the number one concern among my patients?

Anxiety. The world has changed so dramatically, and so rapidly, that it sometimes makes my head spin. It isn't only our health that worries and threatens us;

it's the economy, politics, the environment, our jobs, our savings. Add to that the leftover effects of the pandemic, which include for some a self-imposed isolation from family and friends. Yes, anxiety is running rampant.

Anxiety manifests in many ways. Some find themselves in a constant state of worry; overthinking plans and dwelling on worst-case outcomes. Some have difficulty handling uncertainty; becoming indecisive and fearful of making the wrong decision. Some find it difficult to relax; feeling restless, keyed up, on edge. Some have difficulty concentrating.

Clearly, anxiety is not merely a mental disorder. Physical manifestations include fatigue, trouble sleeping, difficulty concentrating, headaches, palpitations, abdominal pain, muscle tension and aches, nervousness, being easily startled, sweating, nausea, diarrhea, flare-ups of irritable bowel syndrome, and irritability.

None of what follows will surprise you, but consider incorporating some of these coping mechanisms to help The meeting also angered manage life during these Claudia challenging times:

> Schedule time every day for relaxation techniques such as meditation, yoga, tai chi, breathing exercises, massage, music, and walks or other forms of exercise.

- Encourage yourself to pursue hobbies.
- Make a conscious effort to maintain a positive
- Instead of becoming angry, defensive, or passive, work on stating your feelings, opinions, or beliefs. In other words, be assertive, rather than aggressive.
- Work on developing time management skills.
- Keep an anxiety journal, ranking events on a scale of 1 to 10. Note those activities which make you feel anxious (watching TV news, perhaps?), and the thoughts going through your mind before and during. Note what makes you feel less anxious.
- If you hyperventilate (experiencing dizziness, numbness/tingling, and/or lightheadedness), exhale into a paper bag and then inhale from the bag. This increases your carbon dioxide level, which can reduce the urge to breathe rapidly, and reduces the dizziness and tingling.
- Seek out support from your community: your family, friends, neighbors, or religious organization. Spend time with those you love, even if it's merely over the phone or online.
- · Limit alcohol, caffeine, tobacco, sugar, and recreational drugs.
- · Take care of your body with exercise, hydration, nutrition, and sleep. Your body will handle stress far more easily when it is fit and

Let's remind ourselves to periodically evaluate our lifestyle, and incorporate some proven coping techniques. If they don't seem to help, I urge you to seek treatment with your physician, therapist, or other health care professional.

NASA was never the same after the Columbia tragedy

The 2003 Columbia space shuttle disaster altered NASA's place in the space industry.

By Douglas Brinkley

Douglas Brinkley is a professor of history at Rice University. He is author of "American Moonshot: John F. Kennedy and the Great Space Race."

Around the start of this century, the world counted only two major players in manned space exploration: The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) and Roscosmos, the Russian Space Agency. Ten years later, the heavens were crowded by comparison, with a number of private companies vying to restart the space race with Russia. Internationally, China had regular manned missions and the United Arab Emirates, Japan and the European nations were drawing close to success.

The turning point between the two eras was an unforeseeable tragedy: the disintegration of the Columbia space shuttle on February 1, 2003. It occurred almost exactly 17 years after a previous shuttle, the Challenger, burned just after lift-off.

That 1986 disaster had resulted in a towering wave of public anger at NASA, mainly because top officials had been advised very specifically to scrub the launch. Simply put, the weather was too cold for the equipment. The intrepid American space program survived the Challenger horror, but NASA's self-doubt never subsided. Not even two decades later, after the Columbia exploded during reentry, the two deadly failures broke the faith that many among the American people had in NASA.

Seven astronauts were onboard the Columbia for its 16-day mission, primarily to perform scientific experiments. The launch in mid-January had been uneventful – except for one thing. The team assigned to review video of the voyage noticed what seemed to be a loose piece of the protective foam layer insulating the shuttle's external tank. Soon thereafter a chunk of foam about as big as a briefcase dislodged and struck the front of the left wing. The analysis of the malfunction was communicated to others at NASA, but the problem was considered minor.

Shuttles were invariably damaged during missions. It was only to be expected. "There's this term in NASA called accepted risk," explained Nancy Currie-Gregg, who flew four shuttle missions, the last in 2002, "There is no such thing as zero-risk space flight, but how do you decide how much risk is acceptable?"

Because other shuttle missions had returned safely with "shredded" surface tiles – and because the stalwart Columbia had brought astronauts home from 27 previous flights – many NASA officials were lulled into complacency. They went so far as to assure the pilot and commander via email that "there is no concern ... We have seen the same phenomenon on several other flights and there is absolutely no concern for entry."

NASA officials also decided against enlisting spy satellite photography to examine the shuttle damage more thoroughly. If they had, it's possible that the astronauts could have repaired the spaceplane or at least abandoned it for refuge on the International Space Station. Instead, as the Columbia made its descent from space, superheated atmospheric gases entered through the gaping hole left by the dislodged chunk of foam. The structure was compromised and the shuttle broke apart in midair. Wreckage spread over Texas and Louisiana.

In the wake of the disaster, NASA Administrator Sean O'Keefe said in a statement, "This is indeed a tragic day for the NASA family, for the families of the astronauts who flew on STS-107, and likewise is tragic for the Nation."

As the Columbia Accident Investigation Board (CAIB) noted in its final report, "the NASA organizational culture had as much to do with this accident as the foam." All of NASA's launches were suspended for two years. While the shuttles eventually flew again, post-Columbia, the program was stunted and curtailed.

But as NASA floundered, Elon Musk's upstart SpaceX scheduled its own launches. Musk's undertaking initially proved just how hard rocket science is, though his company finally found success in 2008 with its reusable Falcon Heavy rocket. The billionaire's club was usurping NASA in space. At about the same time, Jeff Bezos' Blue Origin was developing rockets aimed mainly at suborbital flight. United Launch Alliance brought two legacy aerospace companies together, Boeing and Lockheed Martin, in a concerted effort to develop and launch massive rockets. All four companies are thriving today in the space industry.

Virgin Galactic, an American company operated by Sir Richard Branson, is dedicated to space tourism rather than exploration. Likewise, Axiom Space was founded in 2016 to establish a space station for adventurers. And now, SpaceX has set its sight on returning humans to the moon.

Space entrepreneurs were themselves launched into action, driven by the chance to make money during NASA's lull after the demise of the Columbia. NASA, far from feeling threatened, has encouraged many of the private companies with massive contracts. The agency already had a long history of dealing with subcontractors, using its pocketbook to steer aerospace development; that tradition has adjusted seamlessly to the current space economy.

Whether the rapacious current era in space will be propelled by the idealism of President John F. Kennedy's American Moonshot is an uncertain question. Certainly, the seven astronauts doing round-the-clock experiments in physics on the Columbia had, just as JFK hoped, "set sail on this new sea because there is new knowledge to be gained, and new rights to be won, and they must be won and used for the progress of all people."

Opioid crisis, homelessness problems compounded by bad actors

A multi-faceted approach is required to address the issues facing our county.

By Jonathan Solomon

As a proprietor of a gun store nestled in the vibrant community of Burbank, California, I am afforded a unique vantage point from which to witness the intricate web of societal challenges that beset our city.

Foremost among these trials is the insidious grip of opioid addiction, a blight that not only ravages lives but also fuels a dangerous uptick in crime rates. Yet, as we confront this epidemic, it is imperative to recognize the multifaceted nature of our county's woes, which are compounded by factors such as corporate malfeasance, rampant homelessness, and the staggering cost of living.

The steady influx of patrons seeking firearms for self-defense serves as a stark reminder of the pervasive sense of fear and vulnerability that permeates our neighborhoods. This phenomenon, though often attributed solely to individual anxieties, is inextricably linked to broader systemic failures, chief among them being the opioid crisis. McKinsey Consulting's strategic partnership with Purdue Pharmaceuticals, engineered to maximize profits from highly addictive opioids like OxyContin, cannot be overstated in its role in exacerbating addiction and the ensuing surge in criminal activity. The consequences are dire: fractured families, embattled communities, and lives shattered by violence.

As custodians of public safety, we cannot ignore the systemic failures that fueled the opioid crisis. We must hold accountable the corporate entities who played a significant role in its devastation, and implement stricter regulations to prevent similar tragedies.

Undeniably, powerful players like Purdue Pharma bear heavy responsibility. In 2023, the company pleaded guilty to three criminal charges related to its marketing of OxyContin, agreeing to pay over $5 billion in fines and resolve thousands of lawsuits from individuals and communities harmed by the drug. McKinsey & Company, a consulting firm that advised Purdue on marketing strategies, agreed to pay over $640 million to settle lawsuits that they helped fuel the crisis. Yet they're still powerful actors fueling socio-economic disparities in Los Angeles County.

To comprehensively mend the tears in our social fabric, we must also squarely face the looming specter of homelessness that casts a shadow over our streets. The visible presence of individuals grappling with homelessness not only underscores systemic failures in our social safety net but also exacerbates feelings of insecurity among residents. As resources are strained and support systems falter, marginalized individuals are left vulnerable to exploitation, some of whom succumb to the numbing allure of substance abuse, perpetuating the vicious cycle of addiction and crime.

The exorbitant cost of living in Los Angeles serves as another potent accelerant, stoking the flames of desperation that drive individuals to desperate measures. Skyrocketing rents, coupled with stagnant wages, force many residents to grapple with the harsh reality of financial precarity, leaving them vulnerable to exploitation and entrapment in the cycle of addiction and crime. In such an unforgiving environment, the quest for survival often trumps concerns for public safety, breeding a sense of lawlessness that further exacerbates our city's challenges.

Personally, I have firsthand experience of the dire consequences of this desperation, having fallen victim to retail crime when my gun store was targeted for robbery last year. This violation left an indelible mark, deepening my understanding of the urgent need to exercise my Second Amendment rights to safeguard myself, my establishment, and my clientele. Now, more than ever, we must redouble our efforts to address the systemic issues that drive individuals to resort to such violent and desperate measures.

While firearms may provide a temporary sense of security for some, they alone cannot address the deepseated challenges that confront our communities. It is only through a comprehensive approach that addresses the intersecting issues of corporate misconduct, homelessness, and economic inequality that we can truly create safer, more equitable communities for all.

OJ Simpson, football star and double-murder suspect, dies of cancer

LAS VEGAS – O.J. Simpson, the USC and NFL star running back- turned-actor whose acquittal for the murders of his ex-wife and her friend in the downtown Los Angeles "Trial of the Century" changed the face of the criminal justice system, has died from cancer, his family announced Thursday. He was 76.

"On April 10th, our father, Orenthal James Simpson, succumbed to his battle with cancer. He was surrounded by his children and grandchildren. During this time of transition, his family asks that you please respect their wishes for privacy and grace," the Simpson family posted on social media.

Simpson was battling prostate cancer and was in hospice care, according to reports by TMZ.

A Hall of Fame football player and Heisman Trophy winner when he played at USC, Simpson transitioned to sportcasting and acting after his football career, including appearances in films such as "The Towering Inferno" and the comedic "Naked Gun" movie series. He also starred in a series of memorable commercials for Hertz, showing him sprinting through airports and dodging other passengers and luggage like football linebackers.

But Simpson became a cultural icon following the killings of ex-wife and her friend in 1994, a nationally broadcast police chase on L.A. freeways with Simpson in back of a white Ford Bronco, and his ultimate acquittal of murder charges following one of the most high-profile court cases in history.

Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ron Goldman were found stabbed to death on June 12, 1994, outside of Brown Simpson's home in Brentwood. Days later, Simpson was identified by police as a suspect in the killings.

Simpson, with friend Al Cowlings, led police on a chase in a white Bronco through Southern California five days after the killings. An estimated 95 million Americans watched the chase on television though Los Angeles that lasted for two hours.

Simpson eventually surrendered to police and was placed on trial for the murders. Overseen by Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Lance Ito, the trial became a national spectacle, with gavel-to-gavel live television coverage and the often-theatric antics of Simpson's "Dream Team" of attorneys, most notably the late Johnnie Cochran, who immortalized the line "If it does not fit, you must acquit." The conduct of the trial led to questions about Ito's ability to control the high-profile attorneys and swarming media, and also about whether such intense media coverage should be permissible in criminal trials.

The trial dug deep into American racial divides, with Simpson's attorneys sowing seeds of doubt about whether Simpson -- a Black man, albeit a rich and famous one -- was being fairly treated by the U.S. justice system and police, particularly in a murder case with two white victims.

Simpson was acquitted of the murder charges in October 1995, 11 months after the trial started, and it exposed deep racial divides across the country, with opinions of the jury's decision differing wildly in Black and white communities.

In 1997, a jury in Santa Monica found Simpson civilly liable for the deaths of Goldman and Nicole Brown Simpson, and he was ordered to pay their families $33.5 million in damages. Much of that judgment is believed to have never been paid.

Twelve years after the "Trial of the Century," Simpson was found guilty of kidnapping and armed robbery for breaking into a Las Vegas hotel and casino with other men in September 2007 and stealing at gunpoint what he claimed was his own sports memorabilia. He was sentenced to 33 years in prison a year later and was released on parole on Oct. 1, 2017.

Simpson is survived by four children, Arnelle and Jason, from his first marriage, and Sydney and Justin from his marriage to Simpson Brown.

GOVERNMENT

CITY OF NORWALK
HEART OF NORWALK SPECIFIC
PLAN PROJECT
PREPARATION OF ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT REPORT AND PUBLIC SCOPING MEETING

Lead Agency: City of Norwalk, Community Development Department

Project Applicant: City of Norwalk, Community Development Department

Notice of Preparation Review Period: Wednesday, April 3, 2024, to Friday, May

Scoping Meeting: Tuesday, April 23, 2024, 6:00 p.m. to 7:30 p.m., details below

Notice is hereby given that the City of Norwalk (City), as Lead Agency under the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA), will prepare an environmental impact report (EIR) for the Heart of Norwalk Specific Plan Project (proposed project) pursuant to the California Public Resources Code, Division 13, Section 21000 et seq. (CEQA Statute), and the California Code of Regulations, Title 14, Division 6, Chapter 3, Section 15000 et seq. (CEQA Guidelines).

The purpose of this Notice of Preparation (NOP) is to (1) serve as a public notice pursuant to CEQA Guidelines Section 15082 that an EIR will be prepared; (2) advise and solicit comments and suggestions regarding the scope and content of the EIR to be prepared; and (3) provide notice of the public scoping meeting. The City is seeking your input regarding the scope and content of the EIR problems input on postpoilible. of the EIR, including input on potentially significant environmental effects, mitigation measures, or project alternatives that should be explored in the EIR. If you represent a public agency, the City seeks input as to the scope and content of the environmental information that is germane to your agency's statutory responsibilities in connection with the proposed project.

Due to time limits mandated by state law. public agencies, members of the public, or any other interested parties are requested to respond to this NOP in writing no later than 30 days from the date of this NOP. The City will accept written comments regarding this NOP through the close of business on Friday, May 3, 2024. Please send all written comments, including emailed comments, to Carlos Rojas or Alexander Hamilton at the Project Location: The City is bordered by the cities of Downey to the northwest, Santa Fe Springs to the north and east, Artesia to the south, Cerritos to the south and west, and Bellflower to the west. The proposed specific plan area, or project site, consists of approximately 615 acres located at the center of the City. The project site is generally bound by the Imperial Highway to the north; Interstate 5 (I-5) Freeway to the east; Rosecrans Avenue to the south; and Pioper Roulevard to the west. The and Pioneer Boulevard to the west. The Burlington Northern Santa Fe Railroad traverses the Plan Area from the north-east corner to the southeast corner.

Description: The City will prepare an EIR to analyze environmental impacts associated with implementation of the proposed project which would include the establishment of the Heart of Norwalk Specific Plan. The purpose of the Specific Plan is to revitalize the underutilized corridors within the center of the City and spur development of new commercial and residential uses, while balancing place making and open spaces. Some of the key themes of the Specific Plan revolve around: making places, connecting with corridors, and supporting the social element. These environments would social element. These environments would incorporate a variety of urban residential uses, places to walk and spend time, nightlife and spaces that can encourage and celebrate local culture, such as performing arts spaces.

The Specific Plan includes land use, zoni and street improvement changes that will facilitate new community-supporting development. In general, the Specific Plan: • Identifies three new framework districts that preserve the City of Norwalk's visual and cultural character, including a Front Street Historic District, Town Square District, and Triangle District:

 Reconfigures Front Street as one-way to prioritize pedestrian safety and divert traffic to Firestone Boulevard.

 Reconfigures San Antonio Drive (San Antonio Corridor) to create a linear park with neighborhood-serving amenities to provide an ideal walking, biking and driving connection between Norwalk Town Square, Front Street and the Civic Center.

 Redevelops Firestone Boulevard (Firestone Corridor) into a green urban boulevard that supports new residential and commercial development. Establishes the Norwalk Railway Corridor

Rail Trail which provides a greenway parallel to the existing railroad to provide a landscaped trail with planted walkways, artwork, and cultural exhibitions to provide ar inviting and safe environment for pedestrians Implements a new pedestrian and bicycle path running adjacent to the Southern Pacific Railroad right-of-way and provides a connection to the regional recreational

Potential Environmental Effects: The City will prepare a comprehensive EIR that evaluates all potentially significant environmental impacts associated with the anticipated buildout of the proposed project. The EIR will explain the potentially significant effects of the proposed project as well as the reasons that other effects are not potentially significant. Pursuant to CEQA Guidelines Section 15060(d), an initial study is not required to determine that an EIR will be prepared, and an initial study was not

In accordance with Section 15082 of the CEQA Guidelines, the City has prepared this NOP to provide agencies, organizations, and interested parties with information describing the proposed project and its potential environmental effects. Consistent with Appendix G of the CEQA Guidelines, the 20 environmental topics that may be analyzed in an EIR are:

prepared for the proposed project.

Aesthetics Aestrictics
Agriculture & Forestry Resources
Air Quality
Biological Resources
Cultural Resources Energy Geology & Soils Greenhouse Gas Emissions Hazards & Hazardous Materials Hydrology & Water Quality Land Use & Planning Mineral Resources Population & Housing Public Services Recreation

Transportation Tribal Cultural Resources

Utilities & Service Systems

The City has determined that the proposed project could potentially affect 15 of the 20 environmental topic areas identified in Appendix G. These 15 topical areas are aesthetics, air quality, cultural resources energy, greenhouse gas emissions, hazards and hazardous materials, hydrology and and nazardous materials, hydrology and water quality, land use and planning, noise, population and housing, public services, recreation, transportation, tribal cultural resources, and utilities and service systems. These impacts will be analyzed in the control of the control detail in the EIR. The EIR will address the short- and long-term effects of the proposed project on the environment. Feasible mitigation measures will be proposed for impacts that are determined to be potentially significant and reasonable alternatives wil be considered. A mitigation monitoring program will also be developed for any mitigation measures required by the City. The proposed project is expected to have no impact on agriculture and forestry resources, biological resources, geology and soils, mineral resources, or wildfire, and therefore the EIR will not present a detailed analysis of the project's impact on these topic areas.

Document Availability: The 30-day public review period for the NOP is from Wednesday, April 3, 2024, to Friday, May 3, 2024. In accordance with the time limits mandated by State law, if there are any concerns about the scope and content of the information to be addressed in EIR, written comments may be submitted via email or by mail to the addresses below. All written comments should be submitted at the earliest possible date but must be submitted no later than close of business Friday, May 3, 2024.
