Cerritos College secures $1M to expand veterans career center

NORWALK - Congresswoman Michelle Steel secured $1 million in congressional funding to expand student veteran employment at Cerritos College.

Unemployment among young veterans is nearly triple the national average, yet student veterans possess an array of unique skills and training as a result of their military service. Studies show that veterans remain with their initial employers 8.3 percent longer and are 39 percent more likely to be promoted than their nonveteran

These numbers indicate that student veterans are more likely to be successful in terms of employment persistence and advancement in meaningful job opportunities.

Nonetheless, many veterans still experience underemployment when transitioning to civilian jobs.

The funding Rep. Steel secured will establish the Cerritos College Career Command Center, providing student veterans with on-campus job opportunities to work and earn income. This will empower them to learn and teach valuable work and life skills among a diverse, welcoming community of employees and students.

During the two-year pilot program, the college will gather data to assess student veterans' academic achievements and reintegration into civilian life. The program aims to establish a model that can be replicated statewide and nationwide.

"We thank Congresswoman Steel for championing our student veterans who have sacrificed themselves to protect our country and freedom," said Cerritos College President/ Superintendent Dr. Jose Fierro. "With this funding, our student veterans will gain meaningful job experience while focusing on their education, leading to personal and professional growth and advancement."

"By connecting student veterans with resources and programs in their local communities, we not only honor their service to our nation, but we also make a concrete investment in developing our workforce and strengthening our economy," said Rep. Steel.

Detectives seek help in solving 2020 killing

NORWALK - Authorities Thursday appealed for the public's help to solve the 2020 killing of a man who was gunned down in the parking lot of a business in Norwalk.

Raul Cervantes Corona, 32, was wounded about 6:45 p.m. Dec. 18, 2020 as he sat in the driver's seat of his truck outside a Dollar Tree store in the 10900 block of Rosecrans Avenue, where he was waiting for friends to arrive for an "off-road vehicle outing," according to the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department.

"An individual approached him on the driver's side and shot In what was the worst act of him in cold blood," Sheriff Robert Luna said at a news conference Thursday morning at a tire shop in Hawthorne that had been owned by Corona.

According to the Los Angeles County Department of Medical Examiner, Corona had been shot in the head.

"Unfortunately, he died at the scene," Luna said. "The shooter fled in a light grayish-color Kia Forte that was waiting nearby. It is very important to note that nothing was taken from Raul. His wallet, his cell phone, his truck, and the off-road vehicle he was towing were all still there."

Luna said security video showed people driving in the area of the crime scene that night.

Luna displayed a security image of a man at a gas station before the crime, who is believed to have been the getaway driver. The man had a "visible and unique ace of spades tattoo" on the top of his right hand, Luna said.

Luna also displayed a drawing, based on a witness account, "I'm proud to support the of a man believed to have been the gunman. And he displayed a photo of a man he said was being sought as a "person of interest" in the investigation, identified as 23- year-old JaMaree Boone.

> "We believe he may have information regarding the senseless murder of Raul," Luna said.

> Anyone with information on the case was urged to call the Sheriff's Homicide Bureau at 323-890-5500.

Lynwood teen earns $50,000 Edison college scholarship

LYNWOOD - Firebaugh High School senior and avid engineering enthusiast Brigitte Lopez is among 30 Southern California students to be named a 2024 EdisonScholar, earning a $50,000 scholarship for her outstanding academic performance and dedication to shaping a clean energy future.

Lopez, who earned early admission to Stanford University for the upcoming fall semester, plans to major in aerospace engineering. She aspires to work at NASA or SpaceX and drive innovation with an environmentally conscious approach to technology while promoting diversity and inclusivity in the STEM field.

"I feel extremely grateful to receive such an award that aims to help students from underrepresented backgrounds. I am reminded of the quote 'Si Se Puede' (it is possible), motivating me to continue following my dreams as there are people who can support and guide me," Lopez said. "This is not just an award to help fund my higher education, but also an award that can show my appreciation for those who have helped me get to this point."

Edison International, the parent company of Southern California Edison, annually awards $1.5 million in scholarships to 30 high school seniors pursuing majors in science, technology, engineering and math at four-year universities.

Lopez boasts a 4.64 GPA while balancing rigorous International Baccalaureate (IB) and Project Lead the Way (PLTW) courses and extracurricular activities, including cheer, dance and serving as a student director in the Lynwood Partners Educational Foundation. With a distinct passion for innovative engineering, she is also an active participant in her school's Mathematics, Engineering, Science Achievement (MESA) club.

Her leadership skills helped develop and execute a computer program, earning her team first place in the humanoid category during the 2023 and 2024 SkillsUSA State Championships.

"I have seen Brigitte grow and evolve into a confident, skilled and collaborative student who is passionate about science and engineering," PLTW engineering teacher John Ude said. "Her journey exemplifies the transformative power of education and mentorship. I am incredibly proud of her as her mentor and feel honored to have played a role in her journey."

Lopez – who said she was encouraged from a young age to help others and contribute positively to the world – credits Firebaugh High School for empowering her to embrace challenges and evolve as a high-achieving student leader.

EMERGENCY PERMIT KINDEVA DRUG DELIVERY, L.P. 19901 NORDHOFF STREET NORTHRIDGE, CALIFORNIA 91324

The California Department of Toxic Substances Control (DTSC) has issued an Emergency Permit to Kindeva Drug Delivery, L.P. for onsite treatment of expired chemicals at 19901 Nordhoff Street. The items to be treated include: sixteen (16) containers of tetrahydrofuran, one (1) container of ethyl ether, and five (5) containers of 2,2 azobisisobutyronitrile.

The Clean Harbors Environmental Services (Clean Harbors) has been contracted to conduct the treatment. The chemicals are potentially reactive and unsafe for transport in their present state. The treatment involves the addition of solutions to the containers to stabilize the chemicals. Once these chemicals are treated, the items will be transported offsite for proper management. DTSC has determined that these chemicals pose an imminent and substantial endangerment to human health and the environment if not properly managed. Therefore, an Emergency Permit should be issued. This Emergency Permit is effective from April 9, 2024, through June 8, 2024. The Emergency Permit includes measures to minimize any adverse impact to the community and the environment.

CALIFORNIA ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY ACT (CEQA): DTSC has determined that the issuance of this permit is exempt from the requirements of CEQA and has filed a Notice of Exemption (NOE) with the State Clearinghouse. The Emergency Permit, NOE, and Kindeva's request for this project is available for review at the file room located at:

Sheriff's dog recovering after it's shot in Compton

COMPTON – A Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department dog was recovering and "resting comfortably" Thursday after being shot by an assault suspect during a search in Compton.

"During the course of the search, the suspect discharged his firearm, which struck K9 `Kjeld' resulting in an injury," according to a social media post by the sheriff's department. "Fortunately, K9 Kjeld, who was equipped with a bulletproof vest, underwent successful treatment and has since been discharged from veterinary care."

The confrontation occurred Wednesday night near Spruce Street in Compton, where deputies were working to arrest a suspect for assault with a deadly weapon, sheriff's officials said.

"The suspect was subsequently apprehended without any further escalation," sheriff's officials said. "K9 Kjeld's actions stand as a testament to his valor and dedication."

Sheriff's officials said Kjeld "saved the lives of our deputies and the suspect who shot at him."

Kjeld, who is referred to as "Kid" by his police partners, has been with the sheriff's Special Enforcement Bureau since January 2023.

"Our entire LASD family wish him a speedy recovery at home," according to the sheriff's department.

Bass calls for change in State of the City address

By City News Service

LOS ANGELES – Mayor Karen Bass Monday delivered an optimistic State of the City address, including a call for "the as well as charting a path most fortunate Angelenos" to participate in a capital campaign to speed creation of affordable housing for people homelessness crisis, rising experiencing homelessness.

LA4LA is seeking "personal, private sector and philanthropic funds to help us the cost of capital and speed up housing," Bass said in the lateafternoon speech from City her third grandchild, Oliver. Hall's Council Chambers.

public sector together -- and I work for everyday, a huge part now we must prevail on the of my heart is with him and private sector," Bass said.

"LA4LA can be a sea change for Los Angeles -- an unprecedented partnership to confront this emergency an example of disrupting the status quo to build a new system to save lives."

officers despite a budget deficit.

Bass said she remained committed to her goal of increasing the size of the Los Angeles Police Department to 9,500 officers. The latest figures for sworn officers stood below

"Supporting our sworn personnel is deeply important to me. And the status quo simply cannot Angelenos -- so we are acting to change it," Bass said.

"As a result, we're attracting record numbers of applicants to the police academy -- and my budget for next year maintains our LAPD staffing goals."

Bass said she remained optimistic for the future because of how far the relationship between officials from the city and Los Angeles county and city has come in just "one short year."

The mayor is required annually to address the City Council before the release of the proposed city budget. Bass' proposed spending plan for the 2024- 25 fiscal year, which begins July 1, will be released later this month before it goes to the City Council for revisions

Bass drew applause as she touted past accomplishments, forward to address the city's projected $467 million budget deficit, a continued crime and explained how the eight games of the FIFA 2026 World Cup at SoFi Stadium in Inglewood and 2028 Olympics can benefit the city.

On a personal note, Bass also revealed her family welcomed

"While I've spoken tonight "We have brought the about the 4 million Angelenos humanity and generosity of the my other grandchildren right now," Bass said.

> "I know City Hall can do big, bold things for L.A....For today, and for the future that my grandchildren will inherit."

She added, "I will never accept that we have to settle for the way things have Bass also reiterated her goal always been...and if we keep of hiring additional police challenging the status quo -through the budget and across the board -- we will make sure Los Angeles is a city that puts the people's business first... that puts results first...and that builds a new Los Angeles we can all be proud of."

> The mayor recognized that her Inside Safe program, the cornerstone of her efforts to reduce homelessness, was a protect part of a "rescue phase" to deal with the emergency, and that aspect is "always expensive."

> > "There is no way around it -- motel rooms rented by the night are expensive -- but it is far, far more expensive to leave people unhoused on our streets," Bass said.

> > The program has resulted in more than 2,500 people who were formerly living in encampments receiving interim housing, mainly in motels, since shortly after she took office in December 2022, according to figures provided by the Los Angeles Homeless Services Authority.

> > Inside Safe and the city's overall approach to ending homelessness is "evolving and will continue to evolve," she added.

The city is looking for a new, permanent chief of police following Michel Moore's retirement in February. A national search is underway. Bass reiterated that the process will not be a "closed-door" conversation.

While Bass did not hint at what her proposed 2024-25 budget will look like, she said it is her goal to "change the way L.A. budgets." The city budget for the 2023-24 fiscal year was about $13 billion.

According to Administrative Officer Matt Szabo, the overall $467 million deficit represents a combination of $289 million in unexpected spending -mostly on the police and fire departments and liability claims -- and a $187 million shortfall in expected revenues.

Homeless people need more than a house

Throwing money at the homeless crisis is meaningless without wraparound services.

By Matthew Barnett

Matthew Barnett is co-founder of the Los Angeles Dream Center and senior pastor of Angelus Temple.

In 2021, the City of Los Angeles announced that it would dedicate over $1 billion to provide much-needed services and resources to its homeless population. L.A. has consistently sought new ways to provide funds to fight what has become one of the city's most pressing needs.

This included a quarter-percent sales tax, which generates more than $350 million every year that goes to a variety of initiatives. These include shelter beds, temporary housing services and the creation of affordable, permanent housing.

Yet despite all these innovative efforts, homelessness continues to rise. In 2018, the number of homeless people living in Los Angeles was 52,765. Last year, in 2023, that number had risen to 75,518.

This isn't something unique to L.A. Cities like Portland, San Francisco and Seattle are all wrestling with reversing this trend.

To be sure, this is a monumental challenge. But there is hope.

There's hope because a shift in thinking is starting to take hold. Leaders are beginning to understand that homelessness isn't only a housing issue. Currently, policymakers, NGOs and civic leaders are thinking of other, less traditional solutions that support the whole person and address all root causes of homelessness.

Those facing homelessness need more than just housing to build an independent lifestyle and thrive. They need community. They need mentors and friends. They need the genuine love and support that we all need when challenges come our way.

In short, they need to be treated like human beings.

Housing solutions can and should be part of the response, but enduring change will only come when paired with critical resources like job training, addiction treatment and mental health services.

Because often, homelessness goes deeper than a lack of shelter. It's impacted by the way you grew up and the situations you experienced. And it's often an uphill battle that requires a healthy physical, emotional and spiritual well-being.

That's the story a young woman named Sarah shared with our team not long ago.

From ages 3 to 6, Sarah was molested by a close family member. Throughout her childhood, her mother struggled with drug addiction, and physically and verbally abused Sarah as well.

Sarah told us how this trauma profoundly impacted the way she saw herself and her relationships with others. She said her painful childhood led to feeling "worthless, disgusting, and abnormal about myself, along with feelings of rejection and inadequacy due to my mom's behavior towards me."

When Sarah's brother moved out and she and her mom were left to fend for themselves, Sarah's mom relapsed. They were soon evicted, and then Sarah dropped out of high school. For the next several months they were left living in motel rooms and homeless shelters.

Then, finally, there was a ray of hope.

Sarah joined the Job Corps in 2020 at age 16. She began training to get a job that would support her and her mom.

That is, until COVID-19 hit.

During the pandemic, Sarah was kicked out of Job Corps and lost her only way to earn money. Once again, she found herself on the streets.

That's when Sarah came to our team at the Los Angeles Dream Center. The resources, support and sense of purpose she found here gave her hope. But her new friends also restored her confidence and dignity, and equipped her with the skills she needs to chase her own dreams.

"I plan to graduate with my GED and go to school for Human Services so that I can build a program for all youth who are homeless, abused, lost, or have no hope," Sarah told us.

This demonstrates the power of holistic care, of being surrounded by a team of mentors and cheerleaders committed to helping people toward complete physical, emotional, and spiritual well-being.

Churches and other faith-based organizations are often well-equipped to provide the type of nurturing environment that focuses on restoring whole beings. When organizations like these work hand-in-hand with the state, we are more likely to get at the root causes of what leads to sustained homelessness and address the pain and trauma that leads victims into a downward spiral. A community that cares is the best recipe for solving this crisis. I know it works, because I've seen it work time and time again.

It turns out that homelessness is frequently the byproduct of years of destructive habits and patterns that have been repeatedly reinforced. What's needed are new habits and a community that lovingly holds people accountable in their pursuit of a better life. That's what thoughtful leaders on this issue are starting to put into practice. And that gives me hope. Hope for the people of our city that have been hopeless for far too long.

Blockbuster should stay in the past

There's a new push to bring back video stores but nostalgia isn't enough reason to think it would work.

By Bill Carter

Bill Carter covered the media business for more than 25 years at The New York Times.

People can get nostalgic about almost anything.

I'm nostalgic about good egg creams, which once were in every place with a soda fountain in my native Brooklyn. Also, I'm nostalgic about every street game we played with a Spalding ("Spal-deen") high bouncer.

Until recently, I had not thought about being nostalgic about having to drive to a store in a strip mall to rent a movie to watch on a date night at home. (Nor, in the VHS era, about having to remember to rewind.)

But after stories about people trying to revive the whole Blockbuster experience, I felt compelled to remember those halcyon days.

What I mostly remember from the video-rental era is wandering around the big floor space, whose walls were lined first with cassette boxes, later with DVD cases, displayed under genre categories — drama, comedy, mystery, documentary, kids, foreign, horror, indie — and pulling down the cases to read the backs in search of something that might work for both my wife and me.

I also recall pondering the persistent question: "How did all these lousy movies get made?"

The better ones, especially the recent "blockbusters," were almost always out to renters who got there earlier.

So, often we wound up with either some under-the-radar rom-com because some actor we liked was in it; or maybe a French film about some affair that went "hilariously" wrong; or a drama that promised "gripping tension" or "life-affirming" themes. (Actually, I would generally avoid anything that sold itself as life-affirming, because that usually translated to "treacly.")

Most of these boxes/cases would be adorned with blurbs from critics like, "Love and laugher, in merry abundance!" Or the perennial, "An instant classic!" These would be attributed to a newspaper in Ashtabula, Ohio, or a publication I'd never heard of, like, "Film Forum-and Fauna."

Upon viewing, the disappointment quotient was alarmingly high, which often led to making more than one selection next time, in hopes that two guesses would lower the failure rate. Even if it did, that resulted in one film being watched for 10 minutes before being rejected, and the unfortunate subsequent development that its wretchedness had not fully set in, leading to its being rented again a couple of months later because the title, the forgotten plot details (and those blurbs) sounded so promising.

So, truly, I had not thought to miss the Blockbuster era of regular video rentals.

After all, if you like a movie and you have the right streaming service, you can just order it up to watch whenever you like, right? You won't get shut out because a couple in Omaha, Nebraska with a subscription to the same streaming service got there first.

That's not to say that the whole streaming experience is flawless, of course.

Like the video store days, the film might not be easily available or easy to find. You might have to hunt around to find it, if it isn't "Barbie" or "Mission: Impossible."

And if you're just browsing through the list of "thrillers" as you used to in the store on foot, the same experience of "never heard of this, what's it about?" kicks in; then an exclamation-filled blurb pulls you in, and so you read the synopsis and that doesn't tell you much so you spend another 10 minutes going on Rotten Tomatoes, trying to find some critics whose views might sync up with yours; and then your eyes start to glaze over and you find yourself instead going back to episode four of the British crime series on Acorn TV that you started but now has begun to get predictable.

Even if you do find the movie you were looking for, or some "overlooked gem" that your sister in Virginia recommended, it might be on a service you don't pay for; or it's on one you do pay for, but to see this one you have to pay an additional fee of $9.99.

Now that's getting a whole lot closer to that old Blockbuster experience. (Though, on the bright side, no fine for not rewinding your VHS tape.)

Still, in terms of convenience, it's inarguable that streaming in the living room beats a trip to the video store.

When it works. And when you don't care how much you're paying.

The idea of gathering old movie DVDs in a lending library of sorts definitely has a quaint appeal, which is likely why folks like film producer Brian Morrison — cited in the New York Times piece on Blockbuster nostalgia — got the idea to do it. And why a director like Ava DuVernay has endorsed it.

One of the best points she made about what's been lost in the switch from physical DVDs to streaming has been the disappearance of those "director's cuts," and the deep dives into the "making of" that were included with the DVDs of movies. I personally did not often wander off into those "extras," but when I did, I enjoyed them.

I sense that if the streaming services decided to add that feature, they would charge extra for it, given that so many of them are losing lots of money.

But I doubt the surge of nostalgia will inspire a sudden boom in DVD sales. (Yes, believe it or not, films are still converted to DVDs.)

Every technology has its day, and once it is replaced, there's no going back — except among some wistful aficionados.

Some people still listen to radio dramas. And you know what? Some of them are not bad at all!

Anthony Bassett: Following the American Dream

By Joel Carpio Talon Marks

Anthony Bassett, infielder for the Cerritos College baseball team, left his family and all he knew behind in Nicaragua to chase his dream to play baseball professionally in the United States.

Born and raised in Nicaragua, Bassett said his childhood was fun, an experience he wouldn't replace for anything, but economically things weren't always easy.

Bassetts' parents taught him to value and appreciate his family and what he has despite financial struggles. He said it's made him realize and cherish everything he can here and the opportunity he has now in the United States.

Growing up playing ball was instilled in him from a young age. His family started teaching him how to play, and one day his mom took a day off work to take him to his first practice.

Bassett went on to play in the U18 World Baseball Classic for Nicaragua and explained in Spanish his journey getting

"In Nicaragua, they're overlooking all the leagues that are there, then a pre section list comes out of the invitees to the practice and slowly they start cutting players," Bassett said, "I've been on team Nicaragua since U10 and then from there I made the U12, U14, U15 until the U18 team which is when I moved to the U.S.'

When he got to represent his country in the U18 WBC, he said it was an honor and filled him with pride; an experience he described as beautiful having to have played in the tournament and getting to meet players from the big leagues around the world.

He learned a lot in Nicaragua, having learned and experienced different ways of playing the game from different coaches.

"I feel very grateful for having played there [Nicaragua] and having learned to play the way I play now," Bassett said, "Coming from there it motivates me more here [U.S.] to know that no one knows me, I want them to know my name.

A lot of sacrifices were made for Bassett to continue chasing his dream of playing baseball at a higher level. Leaving his family behind in Nicaragua was one of the biggest.

Bassett said, "I left my family transfer isn't at the top of over there, my mother, my grandparents, all my family that was over there, I haven't seen them in four years, I haven't been able to go back."

The move from Nicaragua to the U.S. was a big and drastic change for Bassett because he only knew the basics of English.

Over time, the change grew on him as he played his first college baseball season at LA Harbor in 2022, and over the summer he joined the MLB Academy Barons which led him to meet some people who helped him find his way to play for Cerritos College.

"Franky [Lopez] the pitcher and Calix [Armijo] were playing of Talon Marks, the student on my team, we became friends and they explained to me what was happening at Cerritos and that Coach Fernley was going to come, I had heard really good things about him and decided to take the opportunity to play here," said Bassett.

Baseball isn't the only thing Bassett likes to do. In his spare time he enjoys spending time with his girlfriend, catching up with his mother who now lives in the U.S. and playing mini golf.

Playing in the MLB is the ultimate dream Bassett is chasing, and he hopes to one day make it and play for his favorite team, the New York

"Ever since I was seven years old my dream was to play for the Yankees and to be like Alex Rodriguez. He was the player that inspired me when I was a kid," Bassett said.

Currently, looking to Bassett's priority list at the moment. Although he does have an offer from a university to further his playing career, he's focused on enjoying his time at Cerritos right now and having fun with the team and his teammates.

Bassett believes he's not ready to decide on his future yet, but believes God will lead him to the best path.

"I'm focused on ending the year with the team the best we can, become champions, win as many games as we can and let God see what I deserve for the future," Bassett said.

Joel Carpio is managing editor newspaper of Cerritos College.

SoCal News Briefs

ANAHEIM: After an hours-long meeting, the Anaheim City Council early Wednesday gave preliminary approval to a major Disneyland expansion project.

The Disneyland Forward project is meant to expand development and add hotel rooms to the theme park by utilizing about 57 acres of parking and unused land. The plan is essentially a shuffling around of previously approved zoning to allow for more attractions, hotel rooms and other entertainment and attractions without expanding the theme park.

LOS ANGELES: The state Attorney General's Office announced Wednesday it will not pursue any criminal charges against a Los Angeles Police Department officer involved in a December 2021 shooting inside a North Hollywood Burlington store that killed an assault suspect and a 14-year-old girl who was struck by a stray bullet inside a dressing room.

The teen, Valentina Orellana-Peralta, was killed Dec. 23, 2021, while shopping with her mother -- trying on Christmas dresses -- at the store at 12121 Victory Blvd. The girl was in a second-floor dressing room when a bullet fired by Officer William Jones passed through a wall and struck her.

LOS ANGELES: A

Los Angeles City Council committee Wednesday approved a $15 million deal to aid Chinatown apartment building tenants who have been fighting rent hikes since 2020.

The Housing and Homelessness Committee voted 4-0 in favor of the proposal that came out of negotiations between the Los Angeles Housing Department and the landlord, 636 NHP, for the property known as the Hillside Villa Apartments, a 124-unit building constructed fifth suspect was arrested in connection with a suspected gang-related shooting in Long Beach that killed an Army veteran and father who was struck with a stray bullet while doing yard work outside his home, police said Wednesday.

LONG BEACH: A

Jamie Tucker, 20, of Long Beach, was arrested Tuesday on suspicion of murder and attempted murder and was being held in lieu of $8 million told City News Service bail, according to the Long Beach Police Department.

LYNWOOD:

Contending the killing was unforeseeable, attorneys representing Los Angeles County want a judge to dismiss a lawsuit brought by the estate and brother of a 32-year-old woman who allegedly died at the hands of another inmate at the Los Angeles County women's jail in Lynwood in late 2021.

The complaint by the estate of the late Destiny Ortega and her sibling, Steven Stevens, was filed in Compton Superior Court in October 2022 and amended two months later, now alleging wrongful death, negligence, civil rights violations and failure to summon immediate medical care. A deputy found the mortally wounded Ortega about 3:15 a.m. Dec. 29, 2021, on the floor of her cell at the Century Regional Detention Facility a day after Pomona police arrested her on suspicion of a parole violation, sheriff's officials said previously.

ORANGE: A 40-year-old man was charged Wednesday with allowing his pit bull to get loose, with the dog subsequently injuring a police officer in Orange.

Nicholas Arvid Wilson was charged with a felony count of allowing a vicious animal at large causing great bodily injury as well as misdemeanor counts of unlawful transportation of syringe waste and possession of a weapon on park property.

COVINA: A San

Bernardino County woman has been charged with murder for allegedly supplying fentanyl to two young Covina men who died within less than a week of each other in what are believed to have been drug overdoses.

Isyss Ibisola Akerele, 21, of Colton, was charged with two counts of murder in connection with the March 31 death of 20-yearold Andrew Nunez and the April 4 death of 18-year-old Rickey Renta III, along with three drug- related counts and an allegation that she was free on bail or her own recognizance at the time of the alleged crimes in connection with an earlier arrest in San Bernardino County, Deputy District Attorney Phil Stirling Wednesday.

STUDIO CITY:

Authorities said Wednesday the crash on the northbound Hollywood (101) Freeway that killed a Los Angeles Fire Department recruit was not believed to have been a criminal hit-and-run.

The crash that occurred about 5:10 a.m. Monday near Vineland Avenue in Studio City took the life of 22-year-old Jacob Fuerte, who was driving a Jeep that collided with another vehicle, according to the California Highway Patrol and the LAFD.

LOS ANGELES: A judge Wednesday cited free-speech grounds in dismissing a lawsuit filed by a Koreatown plastic surgery and laser treatment center that alleged a social media influencer libeled and slandered the business on TikTok by suggesting the staff was rude and that customers should go elsewhere.

Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Maureen Duffy-Lewis granted Tina Kim's anti-SLAPP motion, finding that Kim's commentary was opinion and that a business such as the plaintiff, WAVE Plastic Surgery and Aesthetic Laser Center, cannot be the plaintiff in an invasion of privacy action.

WHITTIER: A Los Angeles County sheriff's deputy has been charged for allegedly stealing money from a driver's coin purse after a traffic stop last year in the Whittier area and then concealing the evidence and filing a false police report, District Attorney George Gascon announced Wednesday.

Jessica Lynn, 39, is set to be arraigned July 2 in a downtown Los Angeles courtroom on one felony count each of filing a false police report and altering, planting or concealing evidence, along with one misdemeanor count of petty theft not exceeding $950 in value, according to the District Attorney's Office.

On Saturday, April 15, 2023, at about 2:46 a.m., Lynn conducted a traffic stop for excessive window tint at a strip mall located at 10422 Whittier Boulevard, Whittier.

The driver was not in possession of a valid driver's license. After searching the vehicle, Lynn recovered a coin purse containing money and is accused of stealing the cash and discarding the coin purse in a trash receptacle.

If convicted on all charges, Lynn faces a maximum sentence of six years, two months in state prison.

LOS ANGELES: A judge has rejected a veteran former Los Angeles Fire Department firefighter/paramedic's claim that he was wrongfully fired in 2023 on allegations he posted compromising photos of a woman on pornographic websites and vandalized her vehicle.

Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Curtis Kin denied terminated LAFD employee Marcus Portis' bid for reinstatement after he was let go in 2023 on the revenge porn and vandalism allegations. The judge heard arguments on April 9, took the issues under submission and issued a final ruling Tuesday.

SOUTH GATE:

Authorities Wednesday again touted rewards totaling $30,000 in hopes of generating tips leading to the person responsible for the fatal shooting of a 57-year-old grandfather in South Gate.

Hector Ascencio Sr. was fatally shot on Sept. 16, 2023, after answering the front door of his residence in the 2500 block of Glenwood Place, according to the sheriff's department.

LOS ANGELES: Home sales dropped in Southern California and across the state last month, while prices continued to increase, according to figures released Wednesday by the California Association of Realtors.

Unadjusted raw sales decreased on a year-over-year basis in all major regions except the Central Coast, and sales in Southern California experienced the secondbiggest drop from a year ago, declining 7.8%.

LOS ANGELES: LeBron James and his Laker teammate Anthony Davis and Clipper forward Kawhi Leonard were among the 12-player U.S. Olympic men's basketball team announced Wednesday by USA Basketball.

This is the fourth Olympic selection for James, a member of the U.S. gold medalwinning 2008 and 2012 teams and 2004 team that won the bronze medal.

Davis was also a member of the 2012 team.

Leonard is among the five first-time Olympians on the team, along with Golden State Warriors guard Stephen Curry, Minnesota Timberwolves guard Anthony Edwards, Philadelphia 76ers center Joel Embiid and Indiana Pacers guard Tyrese Haliburton.

There is a fourth player on the team with a Los Angeles tie, Boston Celtics guard Jrue Holiday, a former standout at UCLA and Campbell Hall School in Studio City.

LOS ANGELES: The Lakers will open the playoffs Saturday in Denver, trying to end an eight-game losing streak to the Nuggets.

Denver won the final regular-season game between the teams last season and swept the Lakers in the Western Conference finals en route to its first NBA title.

LOS ANGELES: Los Angeles County sheriff's deputies recently arrested members of a robbery crew that specializes in stealing scratcher tickets from 7-Eleven convenience stores.

Investigators believe the same crew committed 44 robberies over a period of two months, stealing California Lottery scratcher tickets and other items with a retail value totaling more than $250,000.

They allegedly redeemed more than $90,000 from the stolen lottery scratcher tickets.

In surveillance video released to the public, two members of the crew are seen entering a 7-Eleven, with one hopping the counter and grabbing trays full of tickets and handing it to the other member before they bolted from the store - all within a matter of seconds.

As detectives were investigating the case, they say they caught the crew red-handed, robbing another 7-Eleven store of more than $3,000 in scratcher tickets.

Three adults and one juvenile were arrested and booked on robbery charges. The adults were being held on $100,000 bail and the teen was detained in a juvenile facility. The names of the suspects were not immediately released.

Chapter 11 bankruptcy filing, according to news sources.

The restaurant chain is considering filing for bankruptcy amid growing debt, sources with knowledge on the matter told Bloomberg.

The restaurant has been finding it difficult to make money with their current leases and labor costs, and are currently seeking advice from commercial law firm King & Spalding in order to figure out how to restructure to cut costs, the outlet also reported.

CULVER CITY: Travis Kelce, the Super Bowl champion football player, is entering a new phase of his career Wednesday as game show host.

He will host the new game show, "Are You Smarter Than a Celebrity?" on Prime Video, the streaming service announced Tuesday.

The show is billed as a spinoff of "Are You Smarter Than a 5th Grader?" which aired on Fox from 2007-09 and 2015, in syndication from 2009-11 and Nickelodeon in

In the new version, an adult contestant will rely on a classroom full of celebrities from stage, screen and sports to help them answer 11 questions on a range of subjects, pulled from elementary curriculum, in an effort to win a $100,000 prize.

For the final question, which will always be on the sixth-grade level, the contestant selects one celebrity to discuss the answer with before locking in.

"I grew up loving game shows, and I'm excited to be following in the footsteps of so many TV icons by hosting my very first one with 'Are You Smarter Than a Celebrity," Kelce, the Kansas City Chiefs tight end known as the boyfriend of pop star Taylor Swift, said in a statement.

"The original show is a great success, so to be bringing a new format with everyone's favorite celebrities to the screen, will definitely be entertaining. I'm just happy to be on the hosting side of the equation here and excited to see how these famous faces keep up."

The premiere date was not announced. Twenty episodes have been ordered.

The executive producers include Mark Burnett, who has produced "Survivor," "The Apprentice," "Shark Tank" and "Are You Smarter Than a 5th Grader?"
