Homeless living along 105 Freeway to receive access to housing

• A $51.5 million state grant will allow L.A County to house people over the next three years.

NORWALK -Los Angeles County has been awarded a $51.5 million state grant to expand its Pathway Home program and help nearly 600 people living along the 105 Freeway and nearby riverbeds access housing and services over the next three years, with the ultimate goal of ending their homelessness.

They would be added to the nearly 600 people the county has already enrolled in Pathway Home since its launch in August 2023.

The county applied jointly with the Los Angeles Homeless Services Authority (LAHSA) Encampment for the Resolution Funds (ERF) to address one of the largest groups of encampments on the state's right of way: the I-105 corridor from West Athens to Norwalk. The surrounding community has been disproportionately impacted by homelessness and poverty and endangered by flooding.

Paging Dr. Frischer...

What's the difference between antiperspirants and deodorants? Are they safe?

We use deodorants and antiperspirants because of moisture and odor. Sweat is the body's cooling mechanism, and our armpits density of sweat glands than do other areas of the body. Sweat itself doesn't have a strong odor, but it is broken down by bacteria, which then produce an odor. The moist warmth of the armpit is an ideal environment for bacteria.

Antiperspirants and deodorants work in different ways to reduce body odor. Deodorants work to eliminate armpit odor, but not sweat. Antiperspirants reduce sweat. Deodorants are typically alcohol-based, and increase skin acidity, which makes the skin less attractive to bacteria. They also contain perfume to mask odor. The Food and Drug Administration considers deodorants to be a cosmetic product, while antiperspirants are treated as a drug.

Antiperspirants usually include aluminum-based compounds that reduce the amount of perspiration by temporarily blocking sweat pores. Are there risks associated with using them?

• A few studies have theorized that if the skin absorbs these aluminumbased compounds, the estrogen receptors of breast cells might be affected, leading to an increased risk of breast cancer. It has been noted that most breast cancers develop in the upper outer portion of the breast, which is the area closest to the armpit, where antiperspirant is applied. However, multiple studies have found that cancer tissue in those who use antiperspirants does not appear to have a higher concentration of aluminum, and at this time, the American Cancer Society has found no link between cancer and the aluminum in antiperspirants.

Studies from the 1960's found high levels of aluminum in the brains of those suffering from Alzheimer's disease. That research called into question the safety of everyday household items such as aluminum cans, antacids...and antiperspirants. Subsequent studies did not support those concerns, and any connection between aluminum and Alzheimer's disease has since been disproved.

An FDA warning appears on antiperspirant labels, which states: "Ask a doctor before use if you have kidney disease." Experts believe that it is almost impossible to absorb enough aluminum through the skin to harm the kidneys. However, because a poorly functioning kidney is not able to remove aluminum, those with chronic kidney disease should indeed avoid antiperspirants.

What about deodorant? (Note, by the way, that most antiperspirants also contain deodorant.) Deodorants do indeed contain chemicals which show up in fat cells.

Parabens are a group of chemicals used as preservatives. Although it's possible that these chemicals may interfere with the way the body produces and regulates estrogens, the American Cancer Society and the National Cancer Institute say that there is no conclusive evidence linking them to any significant problems.

Triclosan prevents bacterial contamination and kills bacteria on the skin. While some research points to a potential problem among amphibians and fish, there is no evidence that triclosan poses any problem in humans.

Phthalates help deodorant and other cosmetics stick to the skin. While it is possible that they may have an effect on the way the body produces and uses testosterone, there is no significant evidence of harm seen in studies to date.

There are possible issues with fragrances. Fragrances are formulated from a wide variety of chemicals, and certain individuals might react to any one of these chemicals. The specific ingredients in fragrances are not regulated.

EMERGENCY PERMIT KINDEVA DRUG DELIVERY, L.P. 19901 NORDHOFF STREET NORTHRIDGE, CALIFORNIA 91324

The California Department of Toxic Substances Control (DTSC) has issued an Emergency Permit to Kindeva Drug Delivery, L.P. for onsite treatment of expired chemicals at 19901 Nordhoff Street. The items to be treated include: sixteen (16) containers of tetrahydrofuran, one (1) container of ethyl ether, and five (5) containers of 2,2 azobisisobutyronitrile.

The Clean Harbors Environmental Services (Clean Harbors) has been contracted to conduct the treatment. The chemicals are potentially reactive and unsafe for transport in their present state. The treatment involves the addition of solutions to the containers to stabilize the chemicals. Once these chemicals are treated, the items will be transported offsite for proper management. DTSC has determined that these chemicals pose an imminent and substantial endangerment to human health and the environment if not properly managed. Therefore, an Emergency Permit should be issued. This Emergency Permit is effective from April 9, 2024, through June 8, 2024. The Emergency Permit includes measures to minimize any adverse impact to the community and the environment.

CALIFORNIA ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY ACT (CEQA): DTSC has determined that the issuance of this permit is exempt from the requirements of CEQA and has filed a Notice of Exemption (NOE) with the State Clearinghouse. # USC should let its valedictorian speak

USC's explanation as to why they canceled valedictorian Asna Tabassum's speech is disingenuous

By David Marcus

David Marcus is a columnist living in West Virginia and the author of "Charade: The COVID Lies That Crushed A Nation."

Reasonable people can disagree about whether Asna Tabassum, who has expressed the view that the state of Israel should be destroyed, ought to be the University of Southern California's duly appointed commencement speaker.

There are prominent conservative voices such as Mary Katharine Ham, David Harsanyi, and Guy Benson, firm supporters of the Jewish state of Israel all, who say let her speak, in part because sunlight is the best disinfectant for ignorance or hate.

I agree with them.

But there are others who say calling for Israel's demise is just as disqualifying as the unrepentant use of a racial slur, and I can certainly understand that perspective as well.

But what we should all agree on, what is utterly obvious and staring us in the face, is that USC's explanation as to why they canceled the valedictorian's speech is a sack of disingenuous dunnage. And worse, it all but scapegoats Jews.

Here was the school's pathetic explanation, "The intensity of feelings, fueled by both social media and the ongoing conflict in the Middle East, has grown to include many voices outside of USC and has escalated to the point of creating substantial risks relating to security and disruption at commencement."

It is absolutely true that leftists have a long track record of causing mayhem when speakers on campus say things they don't like, it is also true that more recently anti Israel protesters have done the same.

But what we do not have is any record of pro-Israel entities or individuals acting in such violent or destructive Ocasio-Cortez and Katie Porter were directly asked by Fox manners. Put simply, the threat USC is describing does not exist.

No Muslim students have had to hide in a library as protestors accost them as happened to Jewish students at Cooper Union, no roving bands of pro Israel activists are shutting down bridges, burning flags or chanting "death to America," or death to anything.

If the speaker were pro-Israel there might be a legitimate threat, but there is no threat here, which is exactly why USC won't specifically define it.

So what is the real reason for the cancellation? There are several plausible possibilities.

Maybe the president of USC didn't want to be dragged before Congress for promoting antisemitism, maybe there were concerns that the speech could offend attendees, or even worse, large donors to the institution.

But If USC believes that Tabassum's statements and ideology are not disqualifying then they have a responsibility to protect her free speech, on the other hand, if they do, or if they fear harm to the reputation or bottom line of the school then they have a responsibility to say that too.

In other words, if you're canceling the speech because of hateful statements then say so, don't blame imaginary violent Jews.

This cop out from USC is especially cowardly and damning because Tabassum's virulent anti-Israel rhetoric, far from being rare or obscure, is mirrored by members of Congress.

Just this week, 43 Democrats and Republican Thomas

Masssie voted against condemning the phrase "From the River to the Sea," which can only mean the destruction of Israel and its total replacement by a Muslim Palestinian State.

Some of these members, such as Reps. Alexandria News if they condemned the chant "Death to America," or the burning of American flags and they declined to answer.

Obviously, the left wishes to excuse and even normalize this kind of dangerous, anti-American rhetoric, and that is exactly what USC is doing with its lies about why Tasabbum won't be taking to a lectern.

Just like AOC and Porter the university is refusing to comment when presented with the question of whether calling for the destruction of Israel is a disqualifying statement for a commencement speaker.

There is a long history of antisemitism being swept under the rug across the globe, it is an uncomfortable issue that people and institutions find ways to ignore.

That approach doesn't generally end well.

Whether calling for the destruction of Israel is an antisemitic statement that should bar a person from an honor such as valedictorian is a reasonable argument, in fact, just the kind of debate that colleges and universities are meant to foster.

Instead, USC has simply decided to punt on the question, leaving the completely false impression that Tabassum has been canceled by threats from conservatives or Zionists.

For my part, I say, let her give the speech, but what is more important is for the University of Southern California to explain exactly why that isn't happening.

Biden needs to act now on immigration

By Fareed Zakaria

Fareed Zakaria is the host of Fareed Zakaria GPS, airing at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. ET Sundays on CNN.

Bill Maher recently said on his show that the 2024 election was going to be fought over two issues: immigration and abortion. The party that best navigates these cultural battlefields is likely to prevail in November.

Each party has an advantage, the Democrats on abortion and the Republicans on immigration. Roe v Wade, the landmark 1973 Supreme Court decision that legalized abortion, energized generations of conservative voters who felt deeply on the issue but were also outraged that courts had taken the question out of the democratic process.

It might seem hard for him to backtrack; he has loudly taken credit for the repeal of Roe v. Wade and touted his anti-abortion credentials. But Trump seems able to say anything, and even do anything, without losing the cult-like following he has with Republican voters. He can appeal to the middle ground, certain that his base will stay with him.

President Joe Biden, on the other hand, does not have the fanatical following that Trump does. He has constructed a coalition carefully appealing to different groups with specific policies. If he loses one of those groups, his team fears that the math will not add up come Election Day.

have recognized that they can game the asylum system by bringing in migrants who are moving for economic reasons but who apply for asylum, claiming that they are being persecuted at home — and thus get the right to stay, have legal hearings and eventually work. Last fiscal year, nearly a million people applied for asylum in the US. In the EU last year, that number was more than 1.1 million.

The waves of recent migrants have produced problems as anyone on the ground can confirm, from New York City to El Paso to Stockholm. Sweden today is home to one of the highest gun crime death rates in Europe. And it is not a coincidence that its second largest political party is one that traces its roots to World War II-era fascism.

Now, it's abortion rights voters who are energized, fueled by states like Arizona that are putting in place draconian restrictions on abortion. With the margins small in many swing states, abortion could be the issue that brings out suburban women, who could tilt those states blue in November.

On the other hand, the Republican Party is now led by former President Donald Trump, who — on this issue as on many others — is supremely opportunistic. Trump, of course, proudly supported abortion rights for years until he started flirting with a political career within the Republican Party, at which point he reversed course fully.

Now that he sees it is politically problematic, he is shifting his stance once again. He has criticized Arizona's abortion ban and has pledged not to sign a national

But he needs to risk it and get tougher on immigration. It has become a proxy for all kinds of issues where people feel that elites simply don't get the concerns of average people. And the concern is rooted in real facts on the ground.

The US has taken in huge numbers of immigrants over the last five decades. In 1970, foreign-born people made up 5.7% of the country. As of 2020, that number was 15.3%. And it's not just America. In Sweden, that number went from 6.6% in 1970 to 19.8% in 2020; in the UK, from 5.3% to 13.8%. As I note in my new book, "Age of Revolutions," the Western world has seen a wave of unprecedented migration. Considering the numbers and the cultural diversity of the immigrants, people have been remarkably tolerant.

In both the EU and the United States, gangs and cartels

The Biden administration has made the case that it has put in place a set of well-crafted policies to limit asylum-seekers, that it needs Congressional action to do more and that Republicans want this problem to fester so that they can reap its electoral benefits. (They even tried to impeach Homeland Security Secretary Alejandro Mayorkas on utterly bogus charges. The Democraticmajority Senate quickly put a stop to that effort.) All true.

But Biden must show he can fight. He should declare a national security emergency, send the National Guard to the border, work with Congress to suspend the asylum process and propose a new one that basically makes it impossible to get asylum if you just show up at the border. Many will scream, and it will all be challenged in court. But it will signal that Biden is taking the problem seriously.

Kids deserve better than Lunchables

By Fareed Zakaria

Fareed Zakaria is the host of Fareed Zakaria GPS, airing at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. ET Sundays on CNN.

When I was 10 years old, I used to happily unseal a Lunchables and enjoyed making mini sandwiches from crackers, cheese slices and some form of deli meat. It tasted good. But what I didn't know at the time (and neither did my mom) was the negative impact eating ultra-processed foods (UPFs) had on my body.

That was the mid-1990s, and nutritional research has come a long way since then. So why are we now feeding Lunchables to children as part of the National School Lunch Program (NSLP)? To make matters worse, Consumer Reports evaluated the nutrition of two Lunchables kits available in schools and discovered that they have higher sodium levels than the Lunchables kits sold in grocery stores.

Now, we can't be fooled with a stamp that says these lunch kits are an "excellent source of protein," right? This doesn't mean that these lunch kits are healthy. Sure, there is "100% Freshness Guaranteed," but that's because of preservatives such as sodium nitrite.

In a statement to CNN, Kraft Heinz, the maker of Lunchables, said that the company has taken action to better the nutrition profile of Lunchables, including partnering with Fresh Del Monte to make Lunchables with fresh fruit, and "reducing the sodium in all Lunchables crackers by 26%."

"All our foods meet strict safety standards that we happily feed to our own families. We are proud of Lunchables and stand by the quality and integrity that goes into making them," Kraft Heinz said.

I want to be clear: Getting free or low-cost meals to millions of children is important, and the USDA should be commended on how the program is run.

But the US can do so much better in terms of the types of meals we are providing our children. The decision to allow Lunchables to be served as part of the NSLP is not a step in the right direction.

Would you want to eat one?

Lunchables are a type of UPF, foods that contain chemical additives such as artificial flavors. The turkey and cheddar Lunchables, served as part of the NSLP, has "smoke flavor added."

In a study published in February in the British Medical Journal, eating more UPFs was associated with a higher risk of obesity, cardiovascular disease, depression and several other adverse health outcomes. Eating these types of foods has also been linked to cognitive decline in adults. And conversely, reducing UPF consumption in children can substantially reduce obesity.

One of the challenges faced by the USDA is bringing the NSLP in line with the latest Dietary Guidelines for Americans (DGA), although they are making progress. In a study published last year in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition, the authors compared current school meal standards from 2010 to the latest 2020-2025 DGA. They found that implementation of the DGA standards would significantly decrease body mass index (BMI) and blood pressure.

Providing more nutritious food to kids has benefits both in terms of the health and medical cost savings. It also reduces dietary disparities across income and race.

We have done this in the past and can do it again. After the 2010 Healthy, Hunger-Free Kids Act was passed, nutrition quality improved. This is particularly important as school meals are often the best quality meal a child will get during the day. Meals that adhered to a higher nutritional standard were also thrown away less, according to a study published in Childhood Obesity in 2015.

And although the USDA should be applauded for announcing recent changes to the school nutrition standard, to better align the food we serve our kids with current guidelines, we can do so much more. The current plans focus on reducing added sugars and sodium, and increasing the consumption of whole grains. But what about UPFs?

What we need is to start integrating language around UPFs explicitly into national dietary guidelines as other countries have done. This is not only important for children, but for all of us.

"The Play That Goes Wrong" (Jan. 24 - Feb. 16, 2025) is a 1920s murder mystery, but as the title suggests everything that can go wrong does.

"Legally Blonde" (April 25 - May 18, 2025) follows the transformation of Elle Woods as she tackles stereotypes and scandal in pursuit of her dreams.

Elle appears to have it all, but then her life is turned upside down when her boyfriend dumps her so he can attend Harvard Law. Determined to get him back, Elle charms her way into the prestigious law school, where she realizes her potential and sets out to prove herself to the world.

Season subscriptions are now on sale. Single tickets for "Waitress" and "The Play That Goes Wrong" go on sale June 28, and tickets for "Fiddler on the Roof," "Legally Blonde" and "Frozen" go on sale Sept. 13.

Metro ridership grows to record levels

• A developer's plan to replace a church with 33 condos hit a roadblock Wednesday.

By City News Service

LOS ANGELES - Los Metro Tuesday Angeles reported a 9.4% increase in ridership on its bus and rail services in March compared to the same time last year with nearly 26 million boardings.

Average weekday rail ridership grew to 205,320 from 193,025 in March 2023, representing a 6.4% increase while average weekday bus ridership grew to 750,598 from 642,468 from the same period last year, or a 16.8% increase.

The agency noted that combined the total bus and rail average weekday ridership grow more than 14% since March 2023.

March 2024 marked the 16th consecutive month of year-over-year ridership growth, according to the transit agency.

In March, Metro had a total of 25,880,698 boardings on its bus and rail systems. An average of 955,918 rides were taken each weekday with Saturday boardings averaging 606,255 and Sunday boardings averaging 555,029.

Metro's March total bus and rail ridership combined stood at 81.5% of its March 2019 pre-pandemic level. Total weekend ridership in March was 89.2% of pre-pandemic levels and total March weekday ridership was 79.5% of prepandemic level.

The reconfigured A (Blue) and E (Gold) Lines were up 25.6% on weekdays and 26.3% on weekends.

In March, the A Line saw 1,412,523 total weekday boardings and surpassed the subway B Line, which saw 1,385,496 boardings. The C Line average weekday ridership was up 22.2% and the K Line weekday ridership.

Metro's fare capping policy provides riders who pay with a TAP card a set fare of no more $5 a day or $18 over seven days. Once they've reached those limits, they ride free for the remainder of the day or sevenday period.

Metro's Mobility Wallet Pilot Program gives in-need Angelenos a debit card with $150 per month to spend on transportation. The card can be used to take the bus, ride the train, use bike share, take Metro-Micro and much more.

The agency recently updated its monthly ridership numbers dating back to April 2022 to correct a data validation error which inaccurately counted ridership at an average of 5 percent lower than actual ridership on Metro's light rail lines (A, E, L, C and K).

Metro has corrected its data validation procedures to account for this error and has added additional validations to avoid such an error occurring again. This error had no effect on Metro's operations or finances. Metro discovered this error through a public discussion on Reddit.
