College is finalist in NASA challenge

NORWALK - Cerritos College's student team has been selected as a finalist in NASA's 2024 Gateways to Blue Skies Competition. Of the eight chosen nationwide, Cerritos College stands out as the sole community college among competitors, such as Boston University and Columbia University.

Sponsored by NASA's Aeronautics Research Mission Directorate (ARMD), the Competition tasked student teams with researching and conceptualizing aviationrelated systems to aid natural disaster management. Teams were required to submit a five- to seven-page proposal and a video summarizing their concept.

The Cerritos College team, known as Project F.I.R.E. (Fire Intervention Retardant Expeller), is addressing the critical issue of wildfires in California. After studying the problems and current students proposed an innovative solution involving an advanced alert system and AI detection to locate fire outbreaks in their initial stages. Upon detection, recycled and repurposed site, equipped with thermal cameras to pinpoint the fire's origin. These drones would then drop pellets of expanding foam to smother the fire, slowing its spread until personnel arrive at the site.

Mentored by Astronomy Professor and Engineering Chair Janet Mclarty-Schroeder, the team will participate in the 2024 Gateways to Blue Skies: Advancing Aviation for Natural Disasters Competition, where they will present their design concepts to a panel of industry experts at the 2024 Blue Skies Forum, May 30 and 31 at NASA's Ames Research Center in Mountain View, California.

"Our team has done an amazing job putting this proposal together, and I can't wait to see them give their presentation to a team of NASA and industry professionals next month," said Mclarty-Schroeder.

"Imagine having the chance to tackle real-world challenges and learn valuable problemsolving skills at the same time. That's exactly what this opportunity offers students - a chance to grow personally and professionally while making a real impact on the world."

In Lynwood, 'Dreamer' students learn college options

■ Lywoond Unified hosts its annual conference where undocumented students are inspired to continue learning.

LYNWOOD - Dreamer students from Lynwood School District Unified were empowered with vital support, resources and the inspiration to chase their higher education aspirations during the district's annual Dreamers Conference on April 19.

During the conference, now in its eighth year, Lynwood and Firebaugh high schools students heard from inspiring speakers Andrew Roldan, a Lynwood alumnus, community leader Francisco Moreno and entrepreneur Vincent Ortiz, who shared their moving stories and firsthand advice on navigating challenges as undocumented students, known as Dreamers. # Metro certifies rail line EIR

■ Construction is expected to begin soon on the new light rail line, with a station in Downey.

By City News Service

DOWNEY - The Metro Board of Directors Thursday unanimously certified the final environmental impact report for the first segment of the Southeast Gateway Line, a 14.5-mile light rail project that will connect the A Line's Slauson station to Artesia.

With the certification, the $7.1 billion project is expected to qualify for federal grants, backing up the $2 billion of local and state funds already committed, according to Metro officials. It's expected to open by 2035.

According to Los Angeles County Supervisor Janice Hahn, a board member who represents the Southeast area, Thursday's certification vote will enable the 14.5-mile segment of the project -- which will have eight stations -- to enter the construction phase, expected to begin by the end of this year.

Hahn said 44% of residents along the line live below the poverty level, and that construction and operation of the line will create between 37,000 and 46,000 jobs, and generate $5 billion per year in economic activity.

When completed, the overall 19-mile project -- which will eventually include another 4.5-mile segment -- will serve 1.4 million residents between Union Station in downtown LA and Artesia. It will run through Vernon, Huntington Park, Bell, Cudahy, South Gate, Downey, Paramount, Bellflower and Cerritos.

Hahn called the project a "game changer for some of the most transit dependent communities in Southern California."

"Most of this line will serve equity focus communities that have some of the worst air quality and suffer from some of the worst congestion anywhere in the entire state," Hahn said.

Thank you, Downey

By Kathy Perez

DOWNEY Downey Patriot headline on April 26th stated: "Welcome to Downey" and featured photos of Carpenters fans who had gathered in our for the celebration of the Carpenters' 55th Anniversary. Most of them have now traveled back to their homes in all parts of our country and the world, and I want to let Downey know that they all indeed felt very "welcomed".

I had the great honor of working with both the organizers of the fourday event and the city to coordinate all of the events that took place here. There are members of our community who deserve to be publicly acknowledged for their involvement. All of them contributed to the success of not only the event, but to projects that will remain for years to come.

Thank you to Mayor Trujillo for all of his help and attendance at the Downey events. As a fellow Carpenters fan, he understands how important it is for our city to honor our hometown heroes and their musical legacy. I appreciate his support and guidance and especially his help in organizing our own Carpenters Downey Committee.

> Special thanks

Rick Rodriguez, and our generation. committee members Jason Chacon and Monica Ortiz from Parks and Recreation, Michael Calvert executive director of the Chamber of Commerce, Eric Pierce from the Patriot and the Downtown Downey Improvement Association key community members Patty Russell-Rohrer, Joseph Luisi, and Jeannie Wood.

In addition, thank you to our council members and city staff who listened, responded, and helped all Carpenters requests forward. Thank you especially to Ben Dickow and Dan Martin at the library and Council member Dorothy Pemberton for your extra help and support.

Thank you to Pastor Brad Biggerstaff and the congregation of the Downey United Methodist Church for allowing us to use your beautiful and significant church for the acoustic

Thank you, also, to our local businesses, especially the Embassy Suites, Look Dine-In Cinemas, and our historic McDonald's for hosting and accommodating our fans, as well as the downtown stores and restaurants.

A special thank you to the owners of the iconic Newville House for welcoming the fans and the neighboring allowing residents for everyone to descend onto your street. Lastly, thank you to The Downey Patriot staff for covering the celebration, placing it on the front page last week, and supplying the fans with copies to take

I heard nothing but positive comments from the fans about their time in Downey. Here are just a few:

"I'm so impressed that the city of Downey not only allowed us to flood their city, but also strive to keep the Carpenters legacy in the forefront of their lovely city." Doug McComas, Georgia

"Thank you to the City of Downey for ALL they did to make our event happen! It's nothing short of extraordinary! The city was in tip top shape and I noticed how clean it was and how all the landscaping was well cared for. To see

Do the homeless have the right to sleep on sidewalks and in parks?

Court ruling could allow local authorities across the US to crack down on homeless encampments

By Betsy McCaughey

Betsy McCaughey is a former lieutenant governor of New York and chairman of the Committee to Reduce Infection Deaths.

In a Supreme Court showdown Monday over whether the homeless have a "right" to camp in public, almost no one mentioned the actual victims of that crazy idea. Homeless advocates, including the American Civil Liberties Union, told the court that living on the streets is a "victimless" crime. Victimless?

Everyone who has to step over needles and human poop and navigate around half-conscious humans while walking to work or taking their kids to school is a victim.

Every store owner whose entrance is blocked by makeshift cardboard shelters is a victim.

Every family that wants to use a park and finds it cluttered with sprawling tents is a victim.

The homeless are more likely to commit violent crimes than people who aren't homeless. The public has every reason to be wary.

Municipalities all over the U.S. are watching City of Grants Pass, Oregon v. Johnson, which challenges a 9th Circuit Court of Appeals ruling barring penalties for sleeping with blankets and other paraphernalia on public property. The 9th Circuit – known for its left-wing rulings – says these penalties amount to "cruel and unusual punishment" because the homeless have no choice.

No choice is another whopper. San Francisco authorities report that 60% of homeless individuals living on the street refuse shelter when it's offered.

Here in New York City, every homeless person is guaranteed shelter. When Mayor Eric Adams sends outreach teams from the Department of Homeless Services to the tent encampments, only about 5% take the offer for shelter. The other 95% choose living rough.

Justice Clarence Thomas got closest to this practical truth when he asked if the Grants Pass ordinance criminalizes lacking a home, or the deliberate decision to sleep rough instead of going to a shelter.

A big surprise is who is siding with Grants Pass – Democratic pols, including California Gov. Gavin Newsom, and a long list of big blue cities except – you guessed it – New York City.

Grants Pass lawyers explain that the 9th Circuit has "erected a judicial roadblock" affecting virtually every municipality in the West, preventing them from clearing encampments. The results are "crime, fires, the reemergence of medieval diseases, environmental harm, and record levels of drug overdoses, and deaths on public streets."

Phoenix city officials, in a friend-of-the-court brief, complain that 9th Circuit judges are acting like "homeless policy czars," usurping what local governments should decide. Justice Brett Kavanaugh echoed that, warning against having "federal courts micromanaging" homeless policy.

That's what's been happening. Anti-camping regulations adopted in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Phoenix and Portland, Oregon, were all barred following the 9th Circuit's precedent. And that precedent has also been cited by courts in the rest of the U.S. as a reason to tolerate homeless encampments.

Grants Pass is so atypical of the larger cities wrestling with homelessness that the outcome of the case is somewhat difficult to predict. It's a town of 40,000 with a small, church-run shelter.

But Monday's argument suggests the justices will rule 6-3 or 5-4 that municipalities can ban sleeping on public property. The ruling will affect the entire nation.

Except perhaps New York City, which is moving away from common sense.

The City Council adopted a "Homeless Bill of Rights" in 2023, making Gotham the only big city with an explicit right to sleep in public spaces. Mayor Adams did not veto it. There would have been no point. The law was adopted unanimously. What are city lawmakers thinking?

Homeless people deserve compassion, but allowing them to freeze to death or succumb to disease isn't compassionate. Data show they are shortening their own lifespan by 30 years or more.

Jumaane Williams, the city's public advocate, sponsored the "Homeless Bill of Rights," blathering that the city must look at the root causes of homelessness rather than "stoking fear."

But fear is warranted. And the public deserve clean, safe streets afe streets.

Fair warning: Williams is eyeing Adams' job as mayor.

The court's expected ruling will allow local authorities across the U.S. to crack down on homeless encampments. But the justices cannot command that they do it.

The law-abiding public – the real victims of homelessness – need to elect local leaders who will say "no" to preferring the rights of the homeless over the rights of the rest of us.

New York City voters, it's up to you.

Why student journalists matter

Student reporters are working to keep our elected leaders accountable to voters.

By Quinn Mitchell

Quinn Mitchell is a high school freshman from Walpole, New Hampshire. He runs a podcast and has attended over 100 presidential campaian events

I live in a New England community where town hall meetings foster open dialogue — anyone can openly participate and inquire into public issues. If answers aren't satisfactory, the audience can ask more questions.

Yet I've watched presidential candidates dodge and weave through straightforward questions with answers that never would have held up in town meetings: places where every citizen can be a journalist, seeking public answers and accountability from town officials (who typically answer to the voters gathered).

As a 16-year-old aspiring journalist who's been called a "clown," a "disruption" and a "joke," it might be surprising that these pejoratives did not come from my siblings or classmates — they came from presidential campaign staff and political operatives.

I've asked presidential candidates pointed and respectful questions. "Did Trump violate the peaceful transfer of power?" Was January 6 "a danger to democracy?" While I ask questions to candidates on both sides of the political aisle, I mostly attended Republican events this primary cycle with the Democratic Party's recent stripping of New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation status.

Still, I've been removed from a Republican event by the police and physically intimidated by Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis' security team. At an "Our Great American Comeback" event in New Hampshire, DeSantis evaded responding to my question about the peaceful transfer of power. (His previous remarks stressed the importance of upholding the Founding Fathers' key principles — the peaceful transfer of power being one of them.) A week later, DeSantis' guards physically intimidated and removed me after I asked him to follow up on his January 6 "answer" — to which the Florida governor replied, "Come to my next event."

Last November, I attended another event with former South Carolina Gov. Nikki Haley. Even after following her Q&A instructions, she refused to answer my question, and I was moved along by Haley and her team.

My experiences are just part of a disturbing trend. Gen Z journalists are often shut down by authoritative figures and officials, and student journalists across the country are not guaranteed complete constitutional First Amendment protection — discouraging active participation from students and rousing fear of litigation.

Encouraging my generation to speak up and not be fearful is crucial, particularly with the looming 2024 presidential election in November. Young people have the power to enact real change; a Tufts study found that Gen Z will make up over 40 million voters this year, accounting for nearly one-fifth of the American electorate.

But keep in mind that we don't know who's running the show: super PACs or the candidates. Like many in our country, I worry about the prospect of escalating conflict due to growing political, social and economic divisions. If a then-15-year-old's questions provoked such hostility, we must pose more challenging questions to politicians, especially on topics they want to avoid or withhold from the public. The obsessive control, management of campaign events and media response I've experienced echo a long history of censorship in the US, dating back to the Alien and Sedition Acts of 1798, which "made it made it a crime for American citizens to 'print, utter, or publish...any false, scandalous, and malicious writing' about the government."

If officials across the political aisle can't talk to each other with respect and understanding, how can we solve existential threats to our future? I've tried asking how candidates plan to address these issues. While some might think we're "too young" to be concerned about or understand national policy, these outcomes determine our future: a future that Gen Z is increasingly concerned about.

Many people in my generation feel that we're inheriting a troubled and burning world: one stripped of resources and devoid of the hope and possibilities that previous generations enjoyed.

Knowing the power of open access and seeing the lack of access on the campaign trail, I continue to explore my passion in journalism: the act of seeking truth from power — especially when that power is dodging and weaving. I decided to recast my experiences as a call to action, witnessing the political process with the critical eye of Gen Z and asking the hard questions that matter to the world around me — even when it gets a little scary.

I plan to do my part by practicing amateur journalism anywhere I can. I want to encourage my generation to participate in the process, to take their seats and to ask the questions that politicians seem most eager to avoid. It's our legacy, right and responsibility.

PROBATE

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF: RANDALL D. PERRY CASE NO. 24STPB04643

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the WILL or estate, or both of RANDALL D. PERRY. PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by LISA C. FILLER in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES. THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that LISA C. FILLER be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act with limited authority. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority. A HEARING on the petition will be held in this court as follows: 05/31/24 at 8:30AM in this court as follows: 05/31/24 at 8:30AM in Dept. 62 located at 111 N. HILL ST., LOS ANGELES, CA 90012

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law. YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.
